IN FIFTH DISTRICT

Heavy Balloting For Goldwater Likely Tuesday

By SAM HANNA
Political Editor

Fifth District voters are expected to vote heavily for Republican Barry Goldwater for President in Tuesday's general election as Louisianians tangle with 41 constitutional amendments on a crowded ballot.

Ouachita Parish has the only local races in the Fifth District with Democrats and Republicans seeking three seats on the School Board in Wards 5 and 10.

But the neighboring Eighth District has a congressional race between Democrat Speedy O. Long, a Jena attorney, and Republican W. S. Walker, a retired Army colonel from Winnfield.

PRINCIPAL RACE

Fifth District politicing, however, has centered around the presidential race between President Johnson and Goldwater, the Arizona senator who obviously has strong support in the Monroe area.

Not a single Fifth District office holder has declared public support for President Johnson, which should be a good sign of what the people are thinking.

With one of the largest absentee votes in history, the voters probably will go to the polls in record numbers, especially since voter registration has hit an all-time high.

Louisiana has 1,202,056 voters registered, including 102,167 in the Fifth District, with Democrats far out-numbering Republicans, 1,179,234 to 17,474 for the GOP.

The Republican Party in Louisiana, however, is showing signs of new life. Locally, two Republicans are running for the Ouachita Parish School Board—Mrs. George Snellings Jr. in Ward 10 and Dr. Claude K. Smith in Ward 5.

Ward 10, the biggest ward in Ouachita, will elect two School Board members from a field of three candidates, consisting of Mrs. Snellings and Democrats Milton W. Ford and H. W. (Buddy) Tolson.

The Ward 5 races pits Dr. Smith against a West Monroe attorney, William Norris III, who, like Tolson, won a first Democratic primary victory last July. Ford, in Ward 10, captured a second Democratic primary win.

While there aren't any more local races in the Fifth District, Winn Parish, which borders the Fifth, has a School Board race in Ward 1 between Democrat H. E. Powell Jr. and Republican W. B. Stewart.

But the Eighth District, which takes in Winn and also LaSalle in the Monroe area, also has a race for the State Board of Education. Fred Tannihill, a Democrat from Pineville, is running against Republican Ralph E. Creed.

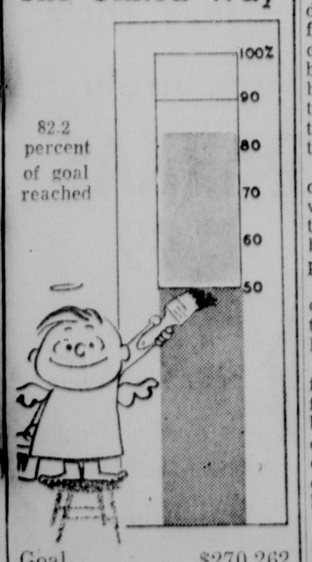

Political observers are predicting a big Goldwater victory in North Louisiana, although polls show President Johnson in the lead on a national basis. Goldwater stumped through Shreveport and spoke in Monroe four years ago when the Fifth District voted for Richard M. Nixon over the late President Kennedy.

Since 1948 the Fifth District has voted Republican twice, Democratic once and States Rights once.

With the polls opening at 6 a.m. and closing at 8 p.m., voters will have to rush within the three-minute limit because of the 41 constitutional amendments. Voters, however, can choose to vote on just some of the amendments or not any at all.

There is a difference between this election and state elections in that the law permits bars to remain open for the general election, but closes them down when the people are voting for state officials in primaries.

French Aims To Rip Fleet Stepped Up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—French President Charles de Gaulle appears to have stepped up his behind the scenes efforts to sabotage the U. S. - sponsored NATO nuclear surface fleet project, diplomatic officials said Saturday.

Added to other French policy trends, they said, this foreshadows increasing strains between Washington and Paris, no matter who wins the U. S. election.

NO HOPES LEFT

France's agreement Friday to grant Russia seven-year credit terms dashed any lingering hope here that Paris might respect an already shaky international agreement to limit such loans to five years.

De Gaulle's recent recognition of Red China also added to U. S. troubles. It will inject new force into the effort at the forthcoming United Nations assembly to admit the Peking regime.

And De Gaulle's determination to proceed with his own nuclear force creates more difficulties for American policy.

The French psychological offensive to block the proposed NATO nuclear fleet has reached the point where officials here are receiving informal hints, which they do not believe, that De Gaulle might even go so far as to pull out of the alliance if the project goes through.

Administration officials acknowledge that Paris is working harder than ever to dissuade the British from joining the project and to dampen West German enthusiasm for it.

The intensified campaign is being carried on at various levels. Paris has been careful not to make any formal representations but its views are being spread in a variety of ways.

Soviet Heads Will Continue China Policy

Editorial Attacks Peking Oligarchy In Former Tones

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's new rulers solidly reaffirmed today their support of the key tenets of former Premier Khrushchev's position in the Kremlin's dispute with Communist China.

For the first time since Khrushchev's ouster, the Soviet Communist party organ Pravda attacked "chauvinism and petty bourgeois adventurism, opportunism and dogmatic or revisionist distortion of theory" — all epithets hurled at Peking leaders at the height of the Soviet-Chinese dispute.

REAFFIRMS MEETING

A front-page Pravda editorial also repeated Soviet determination to press for a world meeting of Communist parties — a Khrushchev project bitterly opposed by the Chinese.

The party daily clearly restated Soviet positions on key issues over which the Chinese and Russians have wrangled.

The outspoken defense of the Soviet ideological position, while not mentioning the Chinese by name, appeared certain to aggravate the Soviet-Chinese dispute. It has been in a state of truce since Khrushchev lost power Oct. 14.

It said: "Meetings of representatives of fraternal parties, visits by party and government delegations of a number of Socialist countries which have taken place of late, testify to an identity of their views on the basic problems of our time, to their common desire for the further development of all-round cooperation among equal and sovereign peoples following the road of socialism and communism."

Return Today

Returning from Atlanta, Texas, today after a short visit are Mr. and Mrs. George Von Diezelski and daughters Martha and Lou of 105 Selman Drive.

While on Texas soil they visited with Mrs. Von Diezelski's mother, Mrs. Mattie Dees of Atlanta.

Goblins Quiet

Local public safety and law enforcement agencies experienced a relatively quiet Halloween Saturday night in comparison to bygone years.

A check with local authorities revealed minor cases of broken windshields, egg throwing, and brick throwing, as the only trouble of the evening.

A spokesman for the Monroe Fire Department said they had encountered no difficulties with the exception of a couple of false alarms on the north side of town.

WARNED, ARRESTED

Drug Sit-Ins To Ask President For Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sit-in demonstrators seeking to end a federal ban on shipment of the controversial cancer drug Krebiozen were arrested Saturday but were freed with a warning that they will be rearrested if they resume their demonstration.

There was no immediate indication whether those arrested will attempt to return Monday to the Welfare Department building to resume their passive protest.

The demonstrators at a news confernece late Saturday said they will carry their fight to President Johnson.

The sit-in outside the fifth-floor office of Secretary of Welfare Anthony J. Celebrezze was begun Thursday by a group of cancer victims and sympathizers. About a dozen spent Thursday and Friday nights in the building.

Saturday morning, federal guards confronted the 18 persons who were keeping the vigil and told them they were violating a law against occupancy of a federal building during nonworking hours. They were told to leave or be arrested.

Four left but four men and 10 women were arrested on charges carrying a possible maximum penalty of a $100 fine and six months in jail. They were taken to Municipal Court but on arriving there were told by Asst. U.S. Atty. John R. Kramer that the charges are being dropped.

They were given this warning: "If on Monday morning you go back, all of you, no matter how sick you are, will go to jail."

Margaret Fuhro, a spokesman for the group, told reporters "They feel they are going to die without Krebiozen and they will die in jail."

She did not say specifically, however, that this means they will defy Kramer's ultimatum.

Krebiozen has been barred from interstate shipment since July 1963 when its sponsors withdrew an application for an exemption for investigational use.

3 Are Nabbed In New York Jewels Theft

No Gems Found; FBI Detain Two On U.S. Charge

NEW YORK (AP) — Two men were arrested in Florida and another here Saturday in one of the century's most astonishing jewel theft cases. The FBI, which reported the arrest, said none of the gems had been recovered, however.

The precious stones were stolen Thursday night from the famed Museum of Natural History here. They included the world's largest star sapphire, the renowned "Star of India," and a star ruby termed the most perfect in the world.

SOME PRICELESS

The 22 gems taken from the museum, in what was seemingly an amateur but daring bit of thievery, were formally valued at more than $300,000. However, authorities said that because of the unique quality of some of them they actually are regarded as priceless.

The FBI said the two men arrested in Miami were charged with transporting stolen jewelry across state lines. It identified them as: Allen Dale Kuhn, 26, and Jack Rolland Murphy, 27.

They were seized in what the FBI said was Kuhn's "luxurious" home in the Brickell Town House apartments at 2451 Brickell Ave.

The man picked up here was identified as Roger Frederick Clark, 29, described as unemployed and a resident of Miami.

The FBI said the trio had been living in a West Side hotel here for several weeks.

Kuhn was said to have described himself as a self-employed salvage diver with past jobs as a Miami Beach swimming instructor.

Murphy was listed as a professional diver whose surfing interest gave him the nickname of "Murph the Surf." He reportedly had appeared in water shows at resort hotels.

Plane Collision Over Georgia Fatal For Six

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Two Army transport planes taking part in maneuvers collided Saturday, killing six crewmen. They were in a formation of four Caribou CV2 planes.

A witness said the wings of two of the planes brushed together before the two aircraft plunged into a field and burst into flames about 18 miles south of Augusta. The Army said the planes carried a crew of three men each.

An Army spokesman identified two of the six men killed as Capt. Richard M. Cannon, 29, and CWO Lowell I. Farris, 35, both of Columbus, Ga.

Names of the four other victims were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

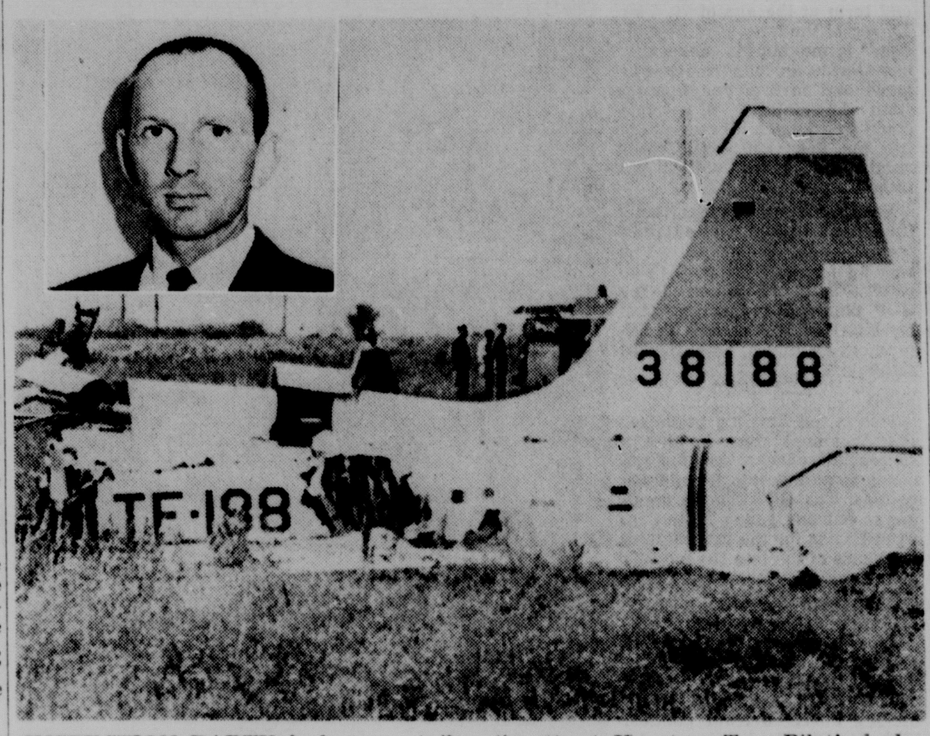

The planes had just taken off from one of several temporary landing fields which were built as a part of the extensive maneuvers called Air Assault II.

Although the planes carry 32 men when transporting troops, none was aboard except the crewmen. An Army spokesman said the flight was strictly a training mission for the crewmen.

There had been only one other fatality in connection with the maneuvers, which began Oct. 4. A man descending from a helicopter by a rope fell to his death.

About 32,000 men are involved in the 11th Air Assault (Test) Division maneuvers in the Carolinas and Georgia. The maneuvers are to test air assault capabilities of an entire division.

The Army said the planes involved in the crash were assigned to the 10th Air Transport Brigade at Ft. Benning, Ga.

Saigon Ruler May Promote Better Ways

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The high National Council confirmed Tran Van Huong as premier Saturday and he called for discipline, sacrifice and belt-tightening in South Viet Nam's war against communism. Americans said they were impressed by his display of toughness.

Confirmation of the 61-year-old former mayor of Saigon took place in a brief, formal session of the 16-member council which took over the government from Premier Nguyen Khanh's military regime. Huong is a civilian.

TOUGH, HONEST

One of the U.S. observers who attended the session said of him: "This man looks really tough and really honest. I get the impression we might see some big changes around here, all for the best."

In his first public speech since being elected by the council, Huong sounded tough. He vowed to crack down on what he called the degradation of youth, and to clean up government. He said his regime would revitalize the nation's efforts in the war against communism.

He vowed to break up a thriving black market and to halt injustices he said are being carried out by local officials, and said politics should be kept out of religion, apparently a reference to Buddhist-Roman Catholic rivalry.

Fair Weather Will Continue

"Fair weather — friends together."

If this old saying is true, residents of the Twin Cities area will usher in the month of November by going out and getting together with friends today.

MILD

The weatherman says it will be fair and mild through tonight.

High temperatures will range from 78 to 84 — compared to a high of only 70 a year ago. The low tonight will be somewhere between 50 and 60 — the low last year was 34.

A typical warm and clear day closed out the harvest month of October Saturday for Monroe and surrounding sections.

Winds will be variable 5 to 15 miles per hour.

GOOSE SUSPECTED

Astronaut Killed In Plane Crash

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Astronaut Theodore C. Freeman, who one day hoped to pilot a space ship to the moon, died Saturday in a plane crash on a soggy Texas plain.

First reports indicated a goose might have caused the crash.

Manned Spacecraft Center spokesmen said, however, it would be two or three weeks before the cause could be determined.

FIND FEATHERS

Workers at the crash scene were reported to have found feathers among the wreckage.

Witnesses said Freeman, 34, a veteran test pilot who usually rode a bicycle to work, was approaching Ellington Air Force Base for a landing when at 300 to 500 feet the canopy of his swept-wing T38 jet trainer suddenly flew off.

Several flights of geese were observed flying close to the ground because of a low-hanging fog.

Workers said the plane appeared to have crashed nose-down, scattering wreckage over a small area. The wreckage consisted mainly of two parts — the fuselage and wing, and the cockpit.

The crash was at 11:50 a.m., 9 minutes after Freeman had taken off on a routine proficiency training flight.

A Manned Spacecraft Center spokesman said there was no communication between Freeman and the control tower to indicate trouble in the aircraft.

Freeman's body was found about 100 yards ahead of the wreckage. It was not known if he had ejected or was thrown from the plane on impact.

Amendments Stand Is Taken

An election night tally sheet is on Page 7B, and a sample ballot and story on Fifth District voting trends on Page 5B. Several other stories on the candidates and campaign issues also will be found on inside pages.

NO SECRET POLICE

New Chiefs Promise Better Russian Life

MOSCOW, Sunday (AP) — In a major effort to calm the fears of Soviet citizens shaken by the overthrow of Nikita S. Khrushchev, Pravda today pledged there would be no return to secret police rule in Russia and that a better life for the average man remained the Kremlin's goal.

The main organ of the central committee also promised to continue a war-avoiding policy of peaceful coexistence with the West and, indeed, to work for "the improvement and development of relations with all capitalist countries."

That would obviously mean, first of all, with the United States.

For the first time since Khrushchev's ouster, Pravda returned to an attack on the Chinese Communists — without naming them — and repeated the call for an international Communist congress on the problem.

Without mentioning Khrushchev by name, the newspaper praised many of the achievements — especially in space, agriculture and industry — made while he was the Soviet Union's leader.

It urged the need to proceed from there.

This was Pravda's first word to the Soviet reader of what he can expect under the new leadership of first Communist party secretary Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin.

The paper said the party's leadership "regards as the most important task the improvement of the principles of socialist democracy, strict observance of socialist legality, eradication of any violations of law and order.

"The transition to communism spells the utmost development of the freedom of the personality and the rights of Soviet citizens."

This was a clear pledge not to return to the terror of Stalin's day.

LBJ Slates Meet Today On Situation

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — A Viet Cong mortar barrage crashed into South Viet Nam's second largest airport early this morning, killing four U.S. servicemen, wounding about 20 other Americans, and destroying or damaging 17 planes.

Six of the planes destroyed were U.S. Air Force B57 jet bombers that have been in this country since the Gulf of Tonkin crisis in August.

COLLISION REPORTED

There also were unconfirmed reports of a midair collision of two U.S. Air Force transport planes at Bien Hoa during the bombardment.

The Viet Cong fired about 100 shells into the airport.

According to preliminary reports, the Communists began pouring 81mm mortar fire into Bien Hoa Airport 15 miles northeast of Saigon 26 minutes past midnight local time — 11:26 a.m. EST, Saturday.

The fire was deadly accurate and concentrated on the hanger and billet area of the big modern field. Bien Hoa is South Viet Nam's most important military field and has been enlarged to handle the largest bombers made.

Besides the six B57s destroyed, eight other B57s were damaged, two propeller-driven fighter bombers were destroyed, one while trying to take off, and a helicopter was destroyed.

This was by far the most destructive attack by the Viet Cong in the history of this war against any American installation.

Vietnamese casualties from the shelling, if any, were not immediately known.

Informed of the Viet Cong assault while he was campaigning in New York City, President Johnson scheduled a meeting today in Washington with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and other top administration officials. White House aides said the attack could not be considered "a severe setback" in the Vietnamese war but added it might be an important development in the hostilities.

U.S. military officials in Saigon said artillery and planes from Bien Hoa struck back in the approximate direction of the Viet Cong mortars, but there were no indications whether the enemy was hit.

The huge attack clearly seemed planned by the Viet Cong to coincide with South Viet Nam's national day, Nov. 1 was being celebrated through out South Viet Nam as the first anniversary of the overthrow of Ngo Dinh Diem by a military coup.

Police reported they understood the Viet Cong terrorists were likely to try some bombing in Saigon during the day, and maximum security preparations were in effect.

The Bien Hoa airfield has been closed to newsmen since 1960 except for rare occasions. The field has been the site of a number of semisecret operations, including active U.S. Air Force participation in the guerrilla war here.

KEY CONTEST

Governors Hold Spotlight Share

WASHINGTON (AP) — The spotlight is on the presidential race in Tuesday's election, but across the nation there are a number of key contests for governor and senator. In many cases, they are intertwined with the presidential race.

In brief, they are:

ARKANSAS

Gov. Orval Faubus seeks an unprecedented sixth straight two-year term. Winthrop Rockefeller, brother of New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, is making a determined bid to become his adopted state's first Republican governor in a century.

Rockefeller has accused Faubus of building a vast political machine with state jobholders, and criticized his handling of illegal gambling operations in the Hot Springs resort area. Faubus has accused Rockefeller of being a racial integrationist. A rejuvenated Republican organization and a sharp increase in the number of Negro voters could be the keys in this race.

CALIFORNIA

Sen. Pierre Salinger, a Democrat, has been campaigning feverishly for the Senate seat to which he was appointed this summer after the death of Democrat Cl Engle. Republican nominee George Murphy, once a stage and screen song and dance star, has been going at a more leisurely pace and reportedly has cut sharply into Salinger's early lead.

Salinger, onetime White House press secretary, has emphasized his association with the late President John F. Kennedy. Murphy, while agreeing with most of Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater's views, has declined to endorse him. Both candidates are plagued by some infighting in their own parties.

ILLINOIS

Gov. Otto Kerner, a Democrat, seeks a second term. Charles H. Percy, fresh from a successful business career, has been campaigning since July 1963. A victory could push him into the future GOP presidential picture. The outcome is expected to hinge on the traditional downstate-Republican vs. Chicago-Democratic vote.

Kerner has cited an improved economy and state financial picture and tried to tie Percy to Goldwater. Percy has charged Kerner with failure to reapportion the State Legislature. He has endorsed and campaigned for Goldwater.

MICHIGAN

Republican Gov. George Romney is shooting for a second term on the claim that his administration helped improve the state's economy and financial picture. Rep. Neil Staebler, the state's Democratic congressman-at-large, contends the improved economy is due to a better national economy.

Even though Romney has pointedly refused to endorse Goldwater, Staebler has tried to link the governor and the presidential nominee. Key to the race could be whether many of those who vote for President Johnson — who is favored to win in Michigan — will switch to Romney for governor.

NEW YORK

Vote switching also is expected to be a factor in New York's Senate election between Republican incumbent Kenneth B. Keating and former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, brother of the late president.

Kennedy has drawn large and often emotional crowds since plunging into the campaign in a state which he hasn't lived in since early childhood. Keating has been hammering on this "carpetbagger" issue.

Some democrats have said they'll vote for Keating because of his liberal record and refusal to endorse Sen. Goldwater. Another factor in the race: Conservative party candidate Henry Paolucci, who may draw votes from Keating.

OHIO

Rep. Robert Taft Jr. is challenging Democratic Sen. Stephen M. Young's bid for a second term at the age of 75. Taft, 47, son of the late "Mr. Republican," is making his move after one term as congressman-at-large and several years in the Ohio Legislature. A victory could well launch him on a later try for the GOP presidential nomination which eluded his father.

Young, a staunch supporter of the Kennedy-Johnson administration, has sought votes by seeking to link Taft with Goldwater. Taft has endorsed the GOP nominee and campaigned for him, but has pointed to differences on issues, notably civil rights.

OKLAHOMA

This is the first big game for Bud Wilkinson since he quit a successful career as football coach to plunge into Republican politics. The GOP Senate nominee is battling young State Sen. Fred Harris for the two remaining years of the late Democratic Sen. Robert S. Kerr's term.

Each man strongly supports his party's presidential nominee. Wilkinson has attacked Harris on grounds of absenteeism; the 33-year-old attorney replies that Wilkinson, 48, was a lifelong absentee from politics. With Democrats holding a 4-1 registration edge, Wilkinson is bidding for the support of conservative Democrats.

PENNSYLVANIA

Goldwater appears to be the major issue in the Senate race between incumbent Republican Hugh Scott and Miss Genevieve Blatt, three-time Democratic state secretary for internal affairs. She bucked the party organization in an uphill fight to win the nomination in a primary election.

Scott backed Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton in his belated bid for the GOP presidential nomination. He has reluctantly endorsed Goldwater, but points to many differences between them. Miss Blatt is criticizing Scott's endorsement in hopes that a predicted Johnson victory will make her the third woman in the Senate.

TEXAS

Sen. Ralph Yarborough, a liberal Democrat, faces opposition from a hard-campaigning Republican, George Bush, as well as many conservative Democrats who have never supported him. But a onetime foe, Johnson, has solidly endorsed his homestate senator. Bush, a Houston oilman making his first race, is the son of former Sen. Prescott Bush, R-Conn. He is a strong supporter of Goldwater.

TOMATO—FRUIT OR VEGETABLE?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Legally, tomato is a vegetable.

In 1893, the Supreme Court of the U. S. rendered this decision. An importer had argued that tomatoes were fruit and hence, at that time, not subject to duty. The court held the tomato to be a vegetable because it "was usually served at dinner — with or after the soup, or with fish or meats that constitute the main part of the meal."

Homecoming Plans Made By Techsters

RUSTON (Special) — Plans for homecoming at Louisiana Tech on Saturday, Nov. 7, are begin completed, it was announced by James Norris of West Monroe, Student Senate vice president and chairman of the annual reunion observance.

Members of alumni classes of the years ending in four's will be honored at the homecoming. Automobiles of those years are being sought for a parade at halftime of the football game between Tech and Southeastern, which will start at 2 p.m. Saturday. The cars will carry girls wearing attire of years of the classes to be honored. Special routines by the Tech band are being arranged for those years.

Letters have been mailed to campus organizations asking for entries in four divisions of the annual display contest. The categories include sorority, fraternity, religious and dormitory.

Juding of the displays will begin at 9:30 a.m. No parade will be held this year. The exhibits will be taken down between 6 p.m. Sunday and 10 a.m. Monday in order to allow more persons to see them Sunday afternoon.

Events for the morning will include registration and coffee at 10 a.m. till noon in Harper Hall parlor; open houses all day at the religious and fraternity centers; Blue Jacket alumnae tea at 10:30 a.m. in Adams Hall parlor; and dedication of Harper Hall and open house at Hutcheson Hall at 11 a.m.

The annual Alumni business meeting will be held at 4:30 p.m. in Memorial Gymnasium and the alumni barbecue at 5:30 p.m. in the Men's Old Gymnasium.

Pre - game ceremonies will begin at 1:40 p.m. at Tech stadium. The homecoming queen and her court will be introduced at the event. The queen will be crowned that night at the dance.

Negroes Against GOP Candidates, Leader Declares

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Nobel Prize winner Dr. Martin Luther King said Saturday 98 per cent of the Negro vote Tuesday would go against Republican presidential nominee Barry M. Goldwater.

In Baltimore as part of a six-city "get out the vote" tour, the Negro rights leader said:

"Some of the philosophies espoused by Goldwater give great comfort to the racists supporting him. If Goldwater is elected we can expect an attempt to be made to nullify all the gains in civil rights.

"I feel his election would mean a great deal of frustration not to only Negroes but all poor people in general.

FIGHT FOR CONGRESS

State GOP Candidates Assail Veteran Democrats

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Goldwater Republicans swinging an anti-civil rights axe assailed Louisiana's Democratic stronghold in Congress Saturday, and majority whip Hale Boggs battled in their path.

Veteran Democrats Edwin E. Willis, chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities, and James E. Morrison also fought the Republican threat in advance of Tuesday's general election.

So did Democratic newcomer Speedy O. Long, who unseated Rep. Gillis W. Long in the Eighth District, a bastion of Louisiana Longism and the Democratic Party.

Louisiana is 98.1 per cent Democratic in voter registration but in recent years the voters have turned to some party switching in the vote machine booths and the GOP challenge has broadened.

This time, it extends to a State Board of Education seat in the Eighth Congressional District, 10 parishes where there are contests for school board posts, and in the East Baton Rouge city-parish government.

David Treen took on Rep. Boggs in the state's Second Congressional District; Publisher Robert J. Angers Jr. tackled Willis in the third; businessman Floyd O. Crawford met Morrison in the sixth, and retired Army officer William S. Walker took on Long.

Democratic Gov. John McKeithen said he was taking no part in the race between Sen. Barry Goldwater and President Lyndon Johnson.

But he threw his political stature behind party nominees for Congress and others seeking office from the state level down.

McKeithen, strong against civil rights programs, has said this is the overriding issue in the race.

The governor is a product of the Democratic faction launched by the late Kingfish Huey P. Long and carried on by his brother, the late Gov. Earl K. Long.

Speedy Long, a former state senator, was an unsuccessful candidate for state insurance commissioner on McKeithen's gubernatorial ticket, and remains a close friend of the governor.

"I'm as strong for him as I can be," McKeithen said.

U.S. Sen. Russell B. Long, son of Huey, Mrs. Earl K. Long, and Gillis Long, have united behind President Johnson and the Democrats.

Louisiana's other four congressmen are unopposed.

Boggs whipped Treen, 36, two years ago 57,395 to 27,971, and roundly defeated another Republican two years earlier.

Treen attacked Boggs as against freedom of choice and a backer of the move to stack the House Rules Committee. He said Boggs, five weeks ago, "voted to spend $13 million to enforce this vicious (civil rights) law."

He said Boggs remarked on nationwide television, after the assassination of President Kennedy, that drum beaters of hate in his district "are the ones who really pulled the trigger that killed a great American."

He said the Democratic whip failed to do anything to get tidelands settlement money for Louisiana, voted six times to increase the national debt, is against government close to home and for more federal government in rural, urban and state affairs, and introduced legislation to "put the federal foot in the schoolhouse door."

Boggs told his constituents, "it's easy to throw around words. I can call all our levees socialism and our post offices as well, even the streets. It's silly."

As to the Rules Committee, Boggs fired back, "the result of increasing the membership of the Rules Committee has brought about the emergency works bill which has meant better sewerage for Jefferson Parish."

While Angers was backing the conventional Democrats, Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock became vice chairman of the Democrats-for-Goldwater in Louisiana and endorsed Angers against Willis in his home district.

He said Angers, publisher of the Franklin Banner-Tribune, would assure Louisiana "a forceful and articulate spokesman for the conservative cause" in Congress.

NORTHEAST HOMECOMING

Kahn Is Elected To Head Alumni

David L. Kahn, 35-year-old Monroe insurance agent, won the presidency of the Northeast Louisiana State College Alumni Association in the annual Homecoming election at the college Saturday.

He is a 1955 graduate of NLSC and was chairman of the association's fund drive earlier this year.

Robert H. (Bob) Kennedy of West Monroe, took the vice presidential post. He is 29 years old, a 1961 graduate, and is agency director of a West Monroe insurance firm.

Kennedy was a member of the alumni board during the year and was chairman of the alumni scholarship committee.

Elected to serve as members of the board of directors were Elvis "Chug" Stout; John Ensminger, Johnny (Bo) Mitchell Rowland Carter, Ray Vineyard, Gerald Arrant and James Beaver.

Other new board members include W. T. Childers of Caldwell, Allie Fuglaar of Catahoula, Charles Quimby of Concordia, J. T. Herrington of East Carroll, Sonny Stephens of Franklin, Robert Greer of Jackson, Lloyd Duke of LaSalle, H. B. Halbach of Madison, Bob Oden of Morehouse, Emmett Brown of Richland, Wenonah Netterville of Tensas, Raymond Masling of Union, H. W. (Woody) Boyles of West Carroll and Austin Abrams of Winn.

Alumni Association members also unanimously passed an amendment to the articles of incorporation to eliminate dues to the associtation.

In other action the group heard a report from the outgoing alumni president, J. Carl Parkerson, on highlights of the year.

Members also heard a financial report, a Louisiana Council report and a statement of appreciation from the Baton Rouge area chapter.

Parkerson was awarded a plaque in recognition of his work for the year.

At the annual alumni dinner meeting, Dr. George T. Walker, president of Northeast State, praised the College's Alumni Association for its active participation and support in the current year. He commended, in particular, Alumni President J. Carl Parkerson, Vice President Bill Norris and members of the Alumni board.

"They conducted the best organized and most effective alumni fund drive Northeast has experienced," said President Walker. Most of the funds raised were allocated to Alumni Scholarships with awards being made to 25 students for the current year.

"Through this scholarship program and in other ways, our alumni have been of great assistance in recruiting outstanding students," Dr. Walker declared. "We are proud, too, of the ways in which they have helped us in dealing with financial needs of the College."

Dr. Walker then gave alumni present a report on Northeast State's growth, using slide charts to illustrate.

He noted the statistics show that for the first time in the six-year period covered that Northeast is receiving state appropriations in equal ratio to the full - time student equivalent enrollment. Of the 40,700 students enrolled in Louisiana's nine state colleges, 9.6 per cent are at Northeast. Of the $33.9 million in state appropriations for the same colleges, Northeast is receiving 9.6 per cent.

"This represents an increase of 28 per cent over 1963 - 64 and is an increase of 146 per cent over 1958 - 59 in state appropriations for Northeast," Dr. Walker said.

During this period of time, Northeast's enrollment has increased approximately 89 per cent, from 2241 in the fall of 1958 - 59 to 4229 at the present time. College employees have increased from 228 to 431, with professional faculty and staff members up from 137 to 222.

Total expenditures of operating and auxiliary funds have increased from $1.8 million of 1958 - 59 to $4.9 million, the anticipated figure for 1964 - 65 — an estimated 172 per cent increase.

Due to a highly successful program of private financing for income - producing auxiliary enterprises — residence and dining halls, and other student facilities — Northeast has been able to keep pace with space needs in these areas, the president reported.

"To keep pace with demands in the future, we must build an additional large dormitory each year for the next several years," Dr. Walker said. This can be accomplished through the issuance of revenue bonds. An immediate need is for state appropriations for classrooms and laboratories in which to teach our bulging enrollment."

Between 1958 and the present time, campus floor space for dormitories, dining hall and College Union has increased from 122,000 to 414,000 sq. ft., with another 100,000 sq. ft. of dormitory and dining hall space currently under construction. Academic space has increased from 176,000 to 268,000 sq. ft. during the same period.

"While we have been expanding housing and other service facilities nearly four times, we haven't yet doubled the space needed for teaching our rapidly rising student population," Dr. Walker reported.

As for the future, President Walker predicted Louisiana college enrollment in public institutions will reach 120,000 by 1970, which is almost double the 1964 fall enrollments.

"I think our estimates are indeed reasonable," Dr. Walker explained. "They are based on the actual record of increased enrollments year - by - year for the past decade.

Northeast State enrollment rose from 1211 in 1955 to the present 4229. College officials predict a 1970 enrollment of 7500.

Church Slow On Birth Talks

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Roman Catholic teaching on birth control was under searching examination Saturday on two separate fronts, but it may be years before any firm decisions are announced.

In the Vatican Ecumenical Council during the past two days cardinals and bishops rose to question the centuries-old Roman Catholic teaching on marital sex and birth control.

The council debate ended Friday, and now a council drafting commission must take it into account in revising a draft schema on the church in the modern world. The commission is not expected to complete its work before another council session, perhaps in 1966.

At the same time, a study ordered by Pope Paul VI last June 23 is continuing. This study is believed still in preliminary stages. Presumably the papal study group and the council commission will consult, but work separately.

When Pope Paul first announced his study it was generally assumed that basic church opposition to birth control would not be brought into question, but that limited use of the new contraceptive pills would be studied.

But in this week's council debate several cardinals and prelates questioned the very validity of the church's birth control teaching, suggesting that conjugal love was necessary for the spiritual well being of the married couple, and should not be considered simply from the viewpoint of procreation.

The church now officially opposes the entire concept of birth control, except for the rhythm system. But in a 1951 speech Pope Pius XII said "serious motives" of a medical, economic or social nature might "exempt" a couple from the "positive and obligatory carrying out of the (sex) act."

Many theologians feel the council debate will produce a change in attitude toward birth control by the rhythm system, accepting it as something normal and not exceptional.

Contraceptives are another issue.

Some Roman Catholic scientists and theologians have suggested that the new contraceptive pills might be used to make the rhythm system more certain.

Legion Member Drive To End On November 11

L. B. Faulk Post No. 13, American Legion, will culminate its membership drive on Veteran's Day Nov. 11.

At the regular monthly meeting to be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the Legion Home on Forsythe Ave., Vice Commader Dick Sherman will report on the current drive.

Last week was American Week in Monroe. Monroe Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard signed a proclamation designating the week and also praising the legion for its stand against Communism. In the proclamation he also urged all eligible veterans to join the organization.

The local mayor called attention to the great community service programs of the Faulk Post for their work in the American Legion Amateur Baseball teams, the Boys and Girls State programs, oratorical contests and child welfare assistance programs.

Milton W. Ford, commander of the local post, announced that the post had received a National American Legion Award for its 1963-64 Americanism work in Monroe. He paid tribute to the outstanding leadership of J. B. Bradley Sr. who was commander at that time.

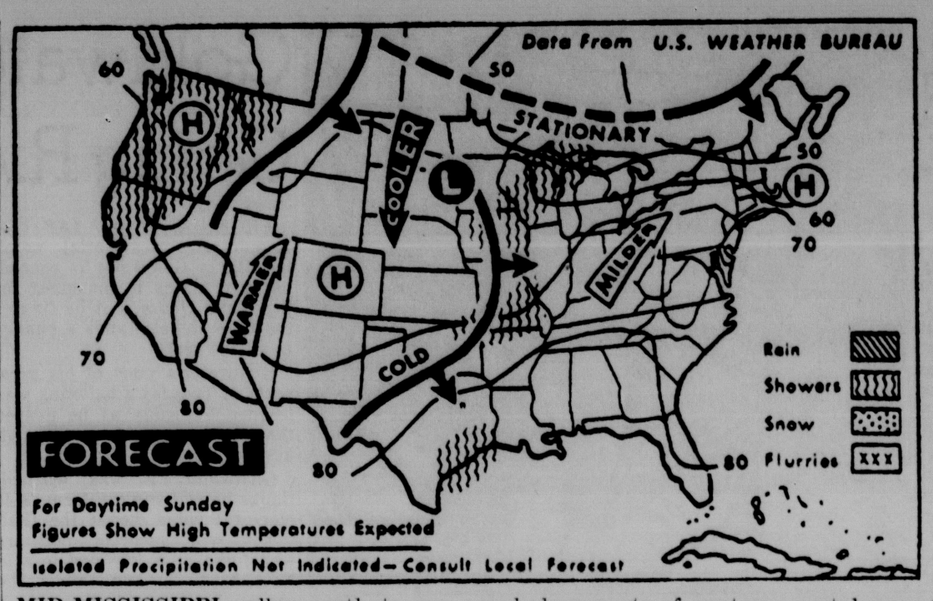

All members are urged to attend the meeting Monday because a report will be made on the party for members and their wives scheduled for Nov. 14.

LONG, LOUD OVATION

Barry Goldwater Attacks Civil Rights Act In South

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater made his final presidential campaign bid in the South on Saturday night, denouncing the 1964 Civil Rights Act as "unfair discrimination in the private affairs of men."

Government must "insure freedom of association," the GOP candidate told a cheering crowd here in the capitol city of South Carolina.

"But it cannot and should not insure association itself. That is a matter of the heart and conscience," he said.

The Arizona senator was given a long, loud ovation.

The speech was carried over 87 television stations in 14 Southern and border states including Texas, Oklahoma, and West Virginia.

Near the same spot where President Johnson stopped to speak Monday, Goldwater spoke briefly en route downtown from the airport.

Scores of children in Halloween costumes joined the street crowds near the city auditorium. Police estimated the crowd outside the auditorium at between 80,000 and 90,000.

South Carolina Sen. Strom Thurmond, who changed party affiliations to support Goldwater, spoke and so did James F. Byrnes, of Columbia, secretary of state under President Harry S. Truman.

Byrnes spoke out harshly against decisions by the U.S. Supreme Court and said he was telling President Johnson, the people "will not sacrifice our independence for a handout."

The auditorium was filled to its 4,000-seat capacity and thousands of persons listened outside where loudspeakers were placed and a television screen erected.

Goldwater's main theme was civil rights, but he fired at Johnson for wanting "more and more control over your lives."

Someone telephoned the auditorium and said a bomb had been planted in the building, but a check by a bomb disposal squad from nearby Ft. Jackson turned up nothing.

"Freedom to associate is a double freedom or it is nothing at all," he said. "It is wrong to erect legal barriers against either side of this freedom.

Goldwater flew here on the next to last fully day of campaigning from rallies in his home town of Phoenix, Ariz., and in San Antonio in President Lyndon B. Johnson's home state of Texas.

At Phoenix, he termed as "strange, distorted minds" those that would unilaterally disarm the country, saying that to keep the peace, the U.S. had to be strong militarily.

Both Texas and the South are crucial keys to the victory Goldwater claims he's going to get next Tuesday.

The speech he made Saturday night was almost identical with one he made earlier this week in Cleveland, Ohio, and before that in Chicago. But it was the first time he had directly spoken on civil rights in a state in the South.

"Of course," he declared, "government should not discriminate among citizens on irrelevant grounds such as color, creed or religion, and no political leader believes it should.

"No person," Goldwater asserted, "whether government or private citizen, should violate the rights of some in order to further the rights of others."

He said he opposed the 1964 Civil Rights Act because it posed an issue which he termed "unfair discrimination in the private affairs of men.

"No law," he argued, "can make one person like another if he doesn't want to. Government can do little more than offer moral leadership and persuasion.

"The ultimate solution lies in the hearts of men."

The Arizona senator said he was opposed to the forced bussing of school children to achieve a racial balance. This, he continued, could lead to "racial quotas as a principle of equal opportunity in every aspect of social life.

"Our aim," Goldwater declared, "is neither to establish the segregated society nor to establish an integrated society. our aim is to preserve a free society."

Campaign Issues Discussed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are quotations, issue-by-issue, from the thousands of words that Lyndon B. Johnson and Barry M. Goldwater have addressed to the nation this presidential campaign year:

ROLE OF GOVERNMENT

Johnson — "A responsible government will not turn its back on workers whose jobs have been taken over by machines. Will not gaze into the sky while millions of Americans live in poverty . . . a responsible government is going to put education at the top of our list of unfinished work." (Oct. 15 at Rochester, N.Y.)

Goldwater — "This (Democratic) administration, no matter how you slice it, wants to pass solutions on to the people from Washington. It is Washington-centered, not state-centered. It is bureaucracy-centered, not individual-centered. People generally. . . are coming to recognize the issue involved: free enterprise and balanced government versus a controlled economy and an all-powerful central government." (Oct. 5 at Washington.)

WAR AND PEACE

Goldwater — "The outright lie that I am trigger happy. . . the nuclear thing, 'Goldwater will get us into war,' that's the most damaging thing I have run into. But I think that is being overcome by just people stopping to think that no man, particularly no American, is ever going to push the button." (Oct. 12 at Phoenix, Ariz.)

Johnson — "Peace is the most important issue in this campaign. . . in a world such as this — a nuclear world, there is no room for bluster and bluff and belligerence. There is room only for courage, intelligence and reason." (Oct. 21 at St. Louis.)

CIVIL RIGHTS

Johnson — "We seek to give every American, of every race and color, his full rights under the law." (Sept. 7 at Detroit.)

Goldwater — "If you ever hear me quoted as favoring the right to associate — without favoring the equally vital right not to associate — look again, because somebody will be kidding you." (Oct. 26 at New York.)

MEDICARE

Goldwater — "The Social Security system is not the way to do it effectively. One sure way to wreck the Social Security system would be to saddle it with unnecessary new burdens, such as medicare. We penalize every aged citizen if we thus bankrupt the system." (July 5 statement to The Associated Press.)

Johnson — "Is it asking too much for this bountiful country to prepare a law so that older folks can face illness when it inevitably comes and face it without the chill foreboding of an empty purse or an inadequate insurance policy?" (April 17 at Washington.)

VIET NAM WAR

Johnson — "We will not be worn down. We will not be driven out. We will not be provoked into rashness. But we will continue to meet aggression with firmness and unprovoked attack with measured reply." (Aug. 12 at New York.)

Goldwater — "If I am elected I intend to come to grips with this vital question. . . The unfortunate fact is that we are at war in South Viet Nam. American boys are fighting and dying in the Asian jungles and it becomes more apparent every day that this administration is drifting — that it has no policy worthy of the name." (Oct. 5, at Washington.)

MORALITY

Goldwater — "Something basic and dangerous is eating away at the morality, dignity, and respect of our citizens — old as well as young, high as well as low. . . When immorality occurs — and you know this from the study of history — it always starts at the top." (Oct. 20 on television.)

Johnson — "The seemingly insurmountable moral issues that we face at home and abroad today can be resolved by men of strong faith and men of brave deeds. . . The identity of private morality and public conscience is. . .deeply rooted in our tradition and constitution." (March 25 at Washington.)

VIOLENCE

Johnson — "We do not, of course, condone violence or taking the law into your own hands, or threatening the health of safety of our people. . .We do not think that the violation of one right or the denial of one right should permit the violation of another right." (April 16 at news conference.)

Goldwater — "The growing menace to personal safety, to life, limb, and property, in homes, churches, playgrounds, and places of business, particularly in our great cities, is the mounting concern of every thoughtful citizen. Security from domestic violence, no less than from foreign aggression, is the most elementary and fundamental purpose of any government." (July 14 at San Francisco.)

NUCLEAR CONTROL

Goldwater — "I suggest that the supreme commander of NATO, who is an American officer and probably always will be, have direct command over a NATO nuclear force, trained, ready and equipped, on European soil." (April 14 position statement.)

Johnson — "I believe that the final responsibility for all decisions on nuclear weapons must rest with the civilian head of the government, the president of the United States." (July 24 news conference.)

TRAN VAN HUONG

Aged Schoolmaster Heads Viet Namese

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — An aging school teacher with high blood pressure, who was earning $20 a month less than two months ago as a dental clerk, today is premier of South Viet Nam.

Tran Van Huong was born of a poor family in 1903 in the Mekong Delta province of Vinh Long. He has held political posts from time to time, but most of his life was spent in obscurity.

Hatred of corrpution made him a dreaded figure in Saigon's civil service, after Premier Nguyen Khanh picked him on Sept. 12 to serve as mayor of Saigon.

Huong made clear he would brook none of the petty corruption that had characterized the city administration for years. He began firing offenders.

"The whole City Hall still has a bad case of jitters," one insider said. "We don't know from one day to the next what he's going to turn up. I think almost everyone is worried about his job for one reason or another."

Huong had served as mayor of Saigon once before, in 1954 and 1955 when Ngo Dinh Deim was premier of South Viet Nam.

At that time, Huong electrified civil servants used to doing things in colonial style by riding to work on a bicycle instead of a chauffeured limousine. This gesture attracted laughter at first, then grudging respect.

Huong no longer rides the bicycle. He is driven in a small sedan.

He contrasted sharply with the man he replaced last month as mayor — Brig. Gen. Duong Ngoc Lam, who was known as one of the busiest party hosts in Saigon.

As commander of the Vietnamese civil guards, Lam commanded South Viet Nam's most important paramilitary units.

Huong and his wife separated years ago, and neither has remarried. He has two sons, one a student in London. Huong himself has lived alone in a modest house.

Other than his two terms as Saigon mayor, Huong has not held public office before.

He taught school in the Mekong Delta before going to Hanoi to take a normal school degree in 1926. In 1937, he won an appointment as primary school inspector in Tay Ninh Province, a job he held all through the war.

Huong hated the French colonial government and resigned when the French returned in 1945. From then until his appointment as mayor in 1954, he dabbled in politics and lived from hand to mouth doing odd jobs.

From 1948 to 1950, he was salesman at one of Saigon's large pharmacies.

Huong didn't get along with Diem either, and left the job of mayor in 1955. From 1956 to 1960 he was secretary general of the Vietnamese Red Cross, in which job he worked for Nguyen Luu Vien, who is expected to hold an important cabinet post under Huong.

Huong was picked up in 1960 by Diem's secret police after signing a petition denouncing the Diem regime. He was held for a few months and released, plunged into poverty and obscurity and again became a clerk.

But he was not forgotten.

When political leaders convened two months ago to organize a new government, the choice of Huong as premier was based on the idea that a poor man is best qualified to protect poor people.

How did Huong feel about it? "I think it would be more appropriate to offer me condolences than congratulations," he said with a laugh.

Goldwater Sure California Going Right; Five States Lost

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater is conceding five states in his quest for the White House, but he figures the GOP ticket stands a chance in all the rest.

Goldwater's view of his prospects in Tuesday's balloting was learned Saturday as he neared the finale of his campaign against President Johnson.

Goldwater, it was learned, thinks he will win California's 40 electoral votes, hopes the GOP ticket will surprise pollsters who forecast a lopsided loss in New York — and thinks the same thing could happen in Michigan.

He argued the Republican ticket can be counted out only in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, Hawaii and Alaska. These states have 33 electoral votes among them. It takes 270 to put a man in the White House.

Roaming the nation in the windup days of his campaign, Goldwater has said it will take the biggest political upset of the century to beat Johnson — and repeatedly forecast he will do it.

The senator was said to feel his prospects have improved in the final week of the campaign and are getting better daily.

The following was disclosed as the senator's views on these state races:

California — Goldwater points to a poll taken for him, said to put his standing at 48 per cent against Johnson's 52 per cent. This, Goldwater feels, reflects an upsurge that is still going on.

Arizona — Another poll in Goldwater's native state was said to reflect a 12 - point increase for the Republican nominee in the last 10 days. It was said to put the race there at 46-46, with the rest uncommitted.

New York — While not optimistic, Goldwater hopes for a surprise showing. He was said to feel that if the New York City Democratic turnout could be cut by three to five per cent, while Republicans score heavily upstate, he could win.

Goldwater was said to believe New York City Negroes will not turn out as heavily for Johnson as would have been the case for the late President John F. Kennedy.

But, at the same time, he argues that resentment over the busing of school children from one neighborhood to another for the sake of racial balance could cost Johnson votes.

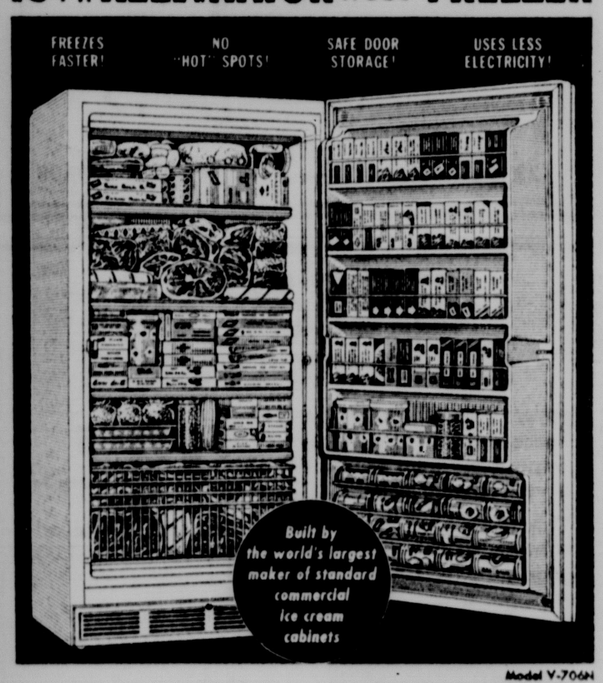

Texas — Goldwater believes his campaign here is moving up, sees hopeful signs in GOP polls and argues Johnson has no organized support in his home state.

Ohio and Illinois — Goldwater expects to win both, counting heavily on what he sees as powerful GOP organizations.

Pennsylvania — He had first viewed the situation here as hopeless, now calls it a tossup. Goldwater counts as one of the most heartening scenes of his campaign the mid-October turnout he drew to a street corner rally in an Italian neighborhood of South Philadelphia.

Florida and Georgia — He rates these as tossup states in the South, an area in which he expects to score.

Tech Theatre Play To Open

The Louisiana Tech Theatre Players will present Jules Romains' play, Dr. Knock, Tuesday through Saturday, November 10-14, in the Little Theatre on the Tech campus.

Dr. Knock is a modern theatre classic which ran for four years in France in the Louis Jouvet production, and has been presented twice in London and twice in America.

The cast for this amusing satire on medical quackery is headed by Tech alumnus Gene Jones who is returning to the campus as guest artist for this production. Since his graduation from Louisiana Tech in 1962, Jones has appeared extensively in advanced productions at the School of Drama at the University of Arkansas, and in professional summer stock in Springfield, Missouri.

SPOTLIGHTING THE AREA

With Jimmy Hatten

On this morning after Halloween 16 years ago, the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Paola lay lifeless at their home at 1710 Tensas Street in Winnsboro.

Both had been slain with a .22 caliber pistol on Halloween night by an intruder still unknown. Mystery has piled on mystery in the 1948 slaying. Not only is the culprit himself still outside the arms of justice, but an informative file on the slaying has vanished.

Morning World correspondent Otis Hassell reports that he saw the file when the late Hiram B. Waller was sheriff. Sheriff A. J. Stephens has been unable to locate the file.

A 1960 feature recounting the double murder, written by Hassell, gives some of the atmosphere of the night: "It was Halloween night. A slight drizzle was noticeable outside in the chilly wind which partially dampened the spirits of the usual group of masked, yelling pranksters, but failed to halt the intentions of a murderer."

It was in this setting that the four shots rang out.

The Jonesville Lions Club would rather put its shoulder to the grindstone with everyone else to push over worthwhile projects. But it has never been one to back away from controversy.

This is the club that joined the battle over the Jonesville Locks and Dam dispute, taking on a big-town newspaper in the process, and finally saw its objective realized.

The club believed that the proposed lock and dam to be located in that area should go below Jonesville but met strong opposition.

An Alexandria newspaper took the opposite view. The club forthwith passed a resolution against the newspaper's action, began a widespread campaign, sponsored programs, and were eventually gratified when the decision to locate the structure below the town was made. Some wildlife people also took the opposing view to the club's action. But with the decision to locate the structure below the town and to build a control structure on Catahoula Lake, all were apparently pacified.

But this is only one milestone in the club's progress chart after its reorganization in 1960. Other successful projects included elimination of a dangerous railway underpass on Hwy. 84 west of Jonesville; helped obtain a municipal airport; sponsored a fund drive for the Block Bears football program in 1962 which raised more than $2400 and put the program on a sound financial footing; worked to get highway connections between Larto in the southern part of the parish with Marksville; donated $1,000 to the Band Boosters Club for the purchase of uniforms. And, the club sponsors a Christmas tree program annually, sends a handicapped child to Lions camp, sponsors two boys to Pelican Boys State and, well, you get the idea. The club has 30 members.

Its presidents: Bob Cotton, 1960-61; Ted Husser, 1961-62; C. K. Pierce, 1962-63; George Griffing, 1963-64.

Some thoughts on professional political pollsters by H. W. Bozeman of Winnfield:

"It is my opinion that pollsters hurt the front-runner and help the underdog candidate. In the past 20 years, the political pollsters have been wrong seven times out of 10. In my opinion, this is due to two reasons. First, it appears that there are always from five to 10 per cent of the voters who vote for the underdog candidate in any election. . .

"Possibly another five to 10 per cent of the voters vote against the pollsters' front-running candidate to "show up" the pollsters."

Last Sunday, Judge Vincent M. Mouser of Columbia addressed the Shell, Hearne, Carroll and Jordan families whose forefathers came to Jackson Parish from Georgia in covered wagons.

Maybe these words which he spoke will explain some of the attitudes of the pioneers and from where they drew their spirit:

"It was not altogether what they left," Judge Mouser said, "when they left Georgia, or what they found when they reached Jackson Parish, Louisiana, but what they had in their hearts."

"It was," he continued, "a heroic Christian mission. In all their trials and hardships, they never lost their faith in God."

Mangham Man Critical After Car-Bus Crash

Two persons in a car traveling south on South Second Street were seriously injured early Saturday morning when their car collided with a Negro school bus going east on Texas Avenue.

Listed as in critical condition late Saturday at St. Francis Hospital after suffering multiple internal injuries was Harver Mercer, a 22 - year - old Mangham resident, a passenger in the car.

The driver of the car, Woody K. Godwin of 1403 Woodland Street, West Monroe, was reported to be in serious condition but progressing satisfactorily after suffering a broken leg and multiple abrasions.

Police said the impact of the collision caused the bus to topple over onto the car. The bus, part of a caravan returning from a football game with a police escort, was driven by Genva Thompson, 38 - year -old Negro of 113 Wood Street. Officers said the bus apparently failed to stop at a stop sign, but since the bus was part of the caravan, no charges would be filed pending investigation.

Several of the Negro students aboard the bus were treated for slight cuts and bruises at St. Francis Hospital and released.

Church Burned Following Rally By Rights Group

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A predawn fire destroyed a rural Negre Baptist church near Ripley Saturday, hours after the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party staged a "get-out-the-vote" mass meeting.

Sheriff Wayne Mooney of Tippah County in northeast Mississippi, a section free of any previous church burnings or bombings, said the Antioch Baptist Church, seven miles from Ripley, was reduced to ashes.

The wooden frame structure was used earlier this summer as a "freedom school" by volunteers of the Council of Federated Organizations.

About 200 persons, mostly Negroes, rallied at the church Friday night to hear Mrs. Fannie Lou Hamer of Ruleville, a freedom party candidate.

The church burning was the first in five weeks in Mississippi.

Earlier this summer, at least 33 houses of worship, mostly rural Negro churches, were damaged or destroyed by fires.

Helicopter Picks Ill Man Off Ship

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A U. S. Coast Guard helicopter Saturday lifted a stricken seaman from a tanker in the Gulf of Mexico and flew him to the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital here.

He was identified as Alfred Dunk, 35, Milton, Mass. The Coast Guard said he was suffering from either a perforated ulcer or a heart condition.

Crewmen aboard the helicopter reported Dunk appeared to be in satisfactory condition.

Johnson Says 'Extremism Unpardonable Vice'

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson has predicted victory for himself in Tuesday's election because he said the people believe his opponent's "extremism in pursuit of the presidency is an unpardonable vice."

Johnson came to Madison Square Garden on Saturday night for a giant rally that he said in a prepared text, would end his campaign. This came after two hard-hitting appearances in Delaware and a scheduled motorcade through Nassau County.

In the windup, Johnson accused GOP presidential nominee Barry Goldwater and his running mate, Rep. William E. Miller, of conducting a campaign of "mudslinging, smears and scandal" that was "dedicated to extreme ideas, not to old values."

"They are not conservatives in the American tradition," the President said. "They are interested in tearing down institutions, not to preserve them. 'Conservative' may be written on their banner. But 'radical' is in their hearts.

Johnson chided Goldwater for, in his words, not offering "a choice, not an echo," an early GOP campaign slogan. Instead, the President said, his rival had restorted to "mudslinging."

"I can tell you why they are doing it," Johnson said. "They found out that the American people would overwhelmingly reject their ideas and their programs. They found out that the great silent vote was a myth. They discovered that the revolution of the extremists was a dying ember.

"They ran smack into the good sense of the American people.

"They discovered that as far as the American people are concerned extremism in pursuit of the presidency is an unpardonable vice.

"Moderation in the affairs of the nation is the highest virtue."

Accompanied by former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy and his wife, Johnson and Mrs. Johnson sped on a 12-mile Long Island motorcade. Kennedy is seeking to win the U.S. Senate seat from New York currently held by Republican Kenneth B. Keating.

Tens of thousands of generally enthusiastic spectators lined the route. However, there were some hostile signs and cheers for Goldwater.

One sign borne aloft by a teen-ager said: "He Is For Estes, He Is For Baker, Lyndon Johnson Is a Faker."

Johnson supporters came back with a sign observing Halloween. It said "Goldwater's a Trick — Johnson a Treat."

At Franklin Squares the Munson fire department lined up three large pieces of equipment and let go with all sirens as Johnson passed. However, a couple of blocks down the highway the Johnson motorcade ran into a covey of Goldwaterites enthusiastically shouting: "We want Barry."

Contrary to his usual custom, Johnson did not get out of his car even once during the motorcade. He didn't make impromptu speeches or shake hands.

Johnson flew by helicopter from Long Island to the Wall Street heliport, then traveled in a motorcade to the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Crowds greeted him along the way, and police had cleared the route to the hotel. At one point — on East Houston Street — his motorcade halted as fire equipment raced by on a parallel street.

Johnson retired to the presidential suite of the hotel to have dinner and tape some television programs.

SEVEN TEEN-AGERS

Wreck Kills 8 In Kansas

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Their bodies lay scattered grotesquely along the road, in a ditch, in a nearby field. Moments earlier there had been eight of them in one car, two in another.

Then, at a country road intersection 10 miles east of Wichita, the cars collided, one ramming the other broadside.

Eight of them were killed. Seven were Wichita teen-agers in one car. The eighth victim, in the other, was a former "blue baby" who once had his heart removed for 35 minutes for repairs. His mother said he may have had a premonition of his death.

The collison occurred Friday night. Of the 10 young people involved, the only survivors were David Saxe, 17, and Don E. Copening, 18, both of Wichita.

Saxe, reported in critical condition, was in the car with the seven teen-agers who were killed: Craig Miller, 14, and Carolyn J. Hull, Lyle R. Moore, John C. Todd, Mary C. Newsom, Diane Ralston and Carol Ann Merrill, all 15. They were high school sophomores, and some had attended a high school football game, authorities said.

Copening was the driver of the other car. His only passenger was Henry Kindred, 21, of Rose Hill, Kan. They were on the way to pick up Copening's mother, employed by an aircraft plant.

Kindred was the former "blue baby" — born with a condition that doesn't let the blood get enough oxygen and causes a bluish tint to the skin.

He lived with a congenital heart defect, she said, and developed a mental problem.

When he was 14 years old a psychologist said the mental condition traced to his physical defects.

Doctors at a hospital in Topeka, Kan., began experiments and brought in specialists from the University of Kansas Medical Center, who were developing an open heart surgery technique.

In 1960, Mrs. Kindred said, Henry underwent surgery and his heart was outside his body for 35 minutes while physicians put a plastic patch on it and cleared an obstruction in an artery.

"He was barely 17 years of age then and he had a 12-year-old mentality," his mother said. "Four months later he had the mentality of a 14-year-old.

"And ten months to the day — after surgery — he was taken into Uncle Sam's Army."

Kindred spent two and one-half years in the military, returning from Germany two months ago.

STILL AFFABLE

Defamed Banker Goes Back Home

VALENTINE, Neb. (AP) — Affable Dick Davenport came home Saturday to this thriving cattle town where he had won respect as banker, churchman, sports lover and after-dinner story teller.

But this was a sad day in Valentine.

Examiners had locked Davenport's Nebraska State Bank reporting that $1.5 million had been misappropriated.

And in the chill darkness before dawn the county jail doors swung open to admit Davenport.

Some of the affection for Davenport remained.

"I'm ging to see to it that he gets fed real well," said Mrs. George Welker, wife of the sheriff.

Davenport, 45, was president of the state bank, one of two in the community of 3,000. State Banking Director Henry Ley said Davenport admitted misappropriating $1.5 million over a 14-year-period. The banker was charged with embezzlement.

Ley said Davenport told him the money was used in land and cattle deals, the stock market and gambling.

Davenport took over the bank after World War II from his father, a man with a reputation as a conservative banker who put on no airs, but who was a leader when there were things to be done in the northern Nebraska town.

The younger Davenport also succeeded his father as town treasurer, and in civic and church activities with his wife, a slim, attractive brunette who still has a drawl she brought from Alabama.

With two sons, one of whom now is at the University of Nebraska, they lived without ostentation in a modest brick home.

"If you walked down the main street last week and asked 100 persons who was the most respected man in Valentine, 95 would have said Dick Davenport," one of his friends observed.

RICHARD L. DAVENPORT, 45, (left) president of the Nebraska State Bank at Valentine, Neb., talks to Lancastor County Sheriff Merle Karnopp after the banker appeared at the office of the state banking director Friday and admitted he had misappropriated $1.5 million over a 14-year period. Cherry County authorities charged Davenport with embezzlement and federal authorities charged him with making false entries. (AP Wirephoto)

LOUISIANA CAMPAIGN

Leaders Predict Goldwater Win

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — At least 57 per cent victory for Barry Goldwater in Louisiana, based on a total vote of 898,000, was predicted Saturday by Leroy Ellis, Goldwater state campaign manager.

"This, of course, depends upon every member of the Goldwater volunteer organization in Louisiana doing their jobs," he explained. "If every one does his job, Senator Goldwater should receive over 500,000 votes in Louisiana."

Ellis pointed out that an 860,000 vote prediction had been made by Secretary of State Wade O. Martin and that the additional votes were expected to come from the efforts of the Goldwater volunteer group. Weather will also be a factor in the total vote cast, he conceded.

Charlton Lyons, state Goldwater campaign chairman, predicted victory nationally for the Goldwater - Miller ticket.

"There has been a marked upsurge in support of Senator Goldwater all over the nation in the past two weeks," Lyons commented. "Senator Goldwater has now been on television enough for the voters to know him as a man with the leadership qualities and integrity and honor necessary for the presidency."

"Most important, the voters across the U. S. have found that what Senator Goldwater is saying makes sense." Lyons continued. "I am confident that this upsurge will continue to grow, and there will be a new occupant in the White House following the November 3 election."

In New Orleans, Goldwater District 1 and 2 campaign director, Wayne Fowler, predicted "a real surprise for the liberals, socialists, and fellow travelers."

Ned Borie, Sixth District Director, Baton Rouge, commented, "even the Democratic officeholders who are being coerced into voting for LBJ are displaying a disgruntled attitude. They aren't working from the heart and they know defeat is sure."

At Lake Charles, Roy Brock Jr., Seventh District Director, said, "despite misleading statements on television commercials by AFL - CIO boss Vic Bussi, the real working people are turning to Senator Goldwater to make their social security checks in the future safe from Johnson - type inflation."

C. M. McLean, Lafayette, Third District Director, predicted victory in his area. "Our sugar farmers aren't taking very kindly to the Johnson administration scheme to import workers to work in the cane fields, or the lack of real effort on the administration's part to clean up the havoc wrought by Hurricane Hilda."

"We can't find the Johnson voters in the Fourth District," said Art Sour Jr., Shreveport, Fourth District director.

Virtually the same sentiments were voiced by W. G. Haynes Jr., West Monroe, Fifth District. "It's Goldwater all the way in the Fifth District. The only vote Johnson will get are a few coerced officeholders and NAACP votes."

At Alexandria, Dr. Lamar Boese, Eighth District Director, predicted certain victory for Goldwater in the central Louisiana district. "There is a good chance that his Democrat congressional candidate will go down in defeat with Johnson, too," he commented.

BOOKS

Biography Of Christ Good

THE LORD JESUS. By Robert Payné. Abelard-Schuman. $4.95.

There have been many other fictional treatments of the life of Jesus, but few of them have been such an imaginative combination of graphic "presence" and a moving, lyrical style.

Payne's story begins when Jesus is gathering his disciples. It follows the traditional narrative in many respects, but there are some variations, omissions, free interpretations and ingenious inventions which heighten the effect.

To freshen the impact of an often - tole story, the author has used devices both large and small — but still artistically legitimate. Many of the names depart from traditional spellings — Meriam for Mary, Petros for Peter, Johanan for John the Baptist and Jona for John the disciple, for example.

There are psychological devices as well. Such as an incident in which Jesus, abetted by his embattled disciples, is deeply moved by gaining possession of the severed head of John the Baptist; an interesting episode casting unusual light on the mental processes of Pontinus, and an unconventional treatment of the final words from the Cross.

The challenge of the story material would confound many an author, but Payne has managed to convey the deep contrasts between Jesus' love and compassion and his despair and mortal suffering.

The novel is written on a level above the style of terse simplicity, for there are many passages which demand a stronger effect. The culminating chapters on the trial, the scourging, the crucifixion and the resurrection have an electrically strong potential.

Payne is the author of many fictional, biographical and general works of merit, so his craftsmanship qualifies him to undertake this difficult subject.

A writer who possesses feeling, intelligence and an eloquence of expression has given us herewith a striking, modern renewal of a hallowed story.

More About Southern Violence

WITH SHUDDERING FALL. By Joyce Carol Oates. Vanguard. $4.95.

The girl is Karen, at 17 emotionally unstable and apt to do absurdly unpredictable things.

The man is Shar — an odd name for a male — who had run away from home at 16, and has turned into a harshly crude, insensitive driver of small-time racing cars — a sort of illiterate, carnival cowboy of the leather jacket, gasoline set.

They meet when Shar returns home for the death of his father, an old junk-shop hermit. There is a misunderstanding, followed by a fight between Shar and Karen's father, and the father cries out for revenge.

Karen runs off with Shar. The motivation is a bit misty, but presumably it is an odd mixture of erractic, erotic fascination and a desire for vengeance.

Such an alliance, of course, doesn't last very long. Disaster is just around the bed.

Miss Oates, who has gained attention for her short stories, has undertaken her first novel in this book.

Her writing shows descriptive powers when she is dealing with the back country people of Karen's family; but her emotionally feminine viewpoint seems a bit strange when she moves among the ratty male characters of the cheap racing characters.

The sex - and - violence themes of the plot remind you of the overworked Southern gothic school. There is talent here in the use of words, but it grows too arty at times, and no doubt the author is pushing too hard. This would have been an easier book to read, if it had been more relaxed. Maturity may come yet to its creator.

Mystery Of Time Examined

MAN AND TIME. By J. B. Priestley. Doubleday. $14.95.

For many years Priestley has been fascinated by the mystery of the abstract concept of Time. As a literary man, he has used this riddle in some of his books and plays.

Now, as a layman — calling himself a Time-haunted man he has summed up many of the facets of this subject in a strangely hybrid, but lively book. He calls it a personal essay.

He begins with a pleasant, diverting history of all the ways which man has devised for measuring time.

Then suddenly he plunged the reader into the deepest scientific puzzles of the age, from Newton to Einstein and beyond, in which theories of space and time are used by both astronomers and microphysicists to interpret the meanings of reality. Maintaining a layman's tone, he examines some of the philosophy of science.

He also reviews the attitudes of early civilizations to the concept of Time, and discusses how it affected their thinking. He even has a brief look at literary approaches to the subject.

Finally — and this is where he exerts himself to the fullest — he explores the esoteric field of time lapses, which result in precognition (an experience, in the present of some future event), and some rare phenomena which seem to involve an "influence" which a future event may have on the present.

The book's format is unusual. Heavily illustrated in color as well as black and white, it makes use of everything from paintings, sculptures and documents to diagrams and reconstructions.

Priestley makes no claims to being either a scientist or a metaphysician, and readily admits he is not objective, but he is so saturated with his subject that he gives it an interesting personal flavor.

Bosses Still Are Among All Of Us

THE BOSSES. By Ralph G. Martin. Putman. $5.95.

The reader who thinks political bossism died when such figures as Mark Hanna of Ohio, James Curley of Boston and Frank Hague of Jersey City were laid to rest is in for some surprises from this lively book.

Without a political boss being at work, Martin suggests, Connecticut would not have changed from a bastion or rock - ribbed Republicanism to a state which elects Democrats with clock - like regularity. He cites similar stiuations in other areas.

Martin, a former Newsweek editor and member of Adlai E. Stevenson's presidential campaign staffs, begins by tracing the development of the political bosses in America and advances some convincing arguments as to why they were for many years unique to U.S. politics.

He winds up with an interesting look at the current Democratic national chairman, John Bailey of Connecticut, and some comments on how and why the political boss has changed down through the years — but has remained very much a part of American political life.

In between, Martin devotes the major part of the 340-page, indexed book to a series of profiles of some of the best - known political bosses.

Students of history and political science will find familiar the portraits of such figures as:

— Mark Hanna, the kingmaker who put politics on a national basis and whose influence still is felt — and argued — more than 60 years after the day he sat in the train bearing the body of the assassinated President William McKinley back to Ohio and said of President Theodore Roosevelt, "Now look, that damned cowboy is President of the United States."

— William Marcy Tweed, whose infamous Tweed Ring accumulated loot estimated as high as $200 million during its despotic reign in New York.

— James Curley, whose decades of politicking in Boston made him nationally known and an apt candidate for the title of the nation's most controversial and colorful politician.

— Frank Hague, who said confidently "I am the law in Jersey City," and denied to his dying day that he and his city were incredibly corrupt.

Revealing Picture Of Degas

MY FRIEND DEGAS. By Daniel Halevy. Translated, Edited and Annotated by Mina Curtiss. Wesleyan U. Press. $6.

There are remarkably intimate memories of the later years of Edgar Degas in this book.

The French historian and writer Halevy, 40 years the artists's junior, came from a family that had been very close to Degas all his life — almost like relatives. The young Halevy had admired the painter from childhood, and for years was on familiar, dinner - table terms with him.

"Hence my unique recollection of his character," says the author in his introduction, and the word "unique" probably is justified. As Halevy points out, the art world knew the later Degas as a recluse with a sharp tongue, which the author calls nonsense — "Even as a child I knew that Degas was a man who suffered."

The substance ofthis memoir is taken from Halevy's journal, beginning with an entry of 1888, when the author was 16.

Most of the quotations and anecdotes are private remarks, and therefore doubly revealing. They deal not only with Degas' feelings about contemporary artists and writers, but also his attitudes toward life. Halevy's own observations constitute a character sketch of the artist, against the background of his own circle.

Mrs. Curtis has provided copious notes which help clarify the text for American readers, and identify many of the individuals named in it. Her contribution is important.

Voters Key To Legislative Progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The next president's chances of seeing his legislative program enacted — to say nothing of scores of political careers, new and seasoned — ride with the voters' choice Tuesday of a new Congress.

All 435 seats in the House and 35 of the Senate's 100 are to be filled. Mathematically, the odds are against the Republicans taking over the majority in either chamber. Both parties are predicting increase in their present strength.

For personalities, result-watchers will have their eyes mainly on the Senate, traditional incubator of presidential and vice presidential possibilities.

But in terms of legislation, the shift of a relative handful of seats in the House could be vital. It is in this chamber, where the Democratic majority is not as effective in practice as it looks in numbers, that Presidents John F. Kennedy and Johnson had most trouble putting their programs across. A modest pickup of votes by Democrats could break the dam for a number of key measures which Johnson, if elected, is sure to push. A similar gain by Republicans would strengthen the braking power effectively used by a GOP-Southern conservative coalition.

For extra drama in the Senate races this year, there is the effort by two close associates of the late President Kennedy — his brother Robert F. and his press secretary, Pierre Salinger — to win Senate seats in states where they have not recently resided, and thus to keep functioning something of the national Kennedy political organization.

Former Attorney General Kennedy is challenging white-maned, witty Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York, one of the incumbent Republicans who has been keeping his campaign pointedly apart from that of the party's presidential nominee, Sen. Barry Goldwater. The senatorial race is rated close.

Salinger already is, by appointment, a Democratic senator from California. His Republican opponent is the entertainer turned Hollywood business executive, George Murphy. The outcome is uncertain. Murphy is credited with cutting into what was regarded as a big early lead for Salinger.

A great Republican name borne by Rep. Robert A. Taft Jr. sparks his Ohio campaign against the incumbent Democrat, Stephen M. Young, and raises GOP hopes of a Senate gain.

A different kind of renown encourages Oklahoma Republicans, who nominated former football coach Bud Wilkinson. The Democratic candidate, Fred R. Harris, knocked out J. Howard Edmondson, the incumbent, in the primary.

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania is among the Republicans who have shown coolness to Goldwater's candidacy, without bolting the party. He is hard pressed by Democrat Genevieve Blatt.

In Johnson's own Texas, incumbent Democratic Sen. Ralph Yarborough faces a real threat from Republican George Bush, who is helped by a deep split in the Lone Star state Democratic organization.

The seat Goldwater vacated in Arizona is being contested hotly by Republican Gov. Paul J. Fannin and Democrat Roy L. Elson, administrative assistant to Sen. Carl Hayden, the dean of the Senate.

The two parties' more sober predictions of Senate gains just about offset each other, so, short of a furious swing in the political seesaw, prospects are for the Senate still to be firmly controlled by the Democrats. The division at present is 66 Democrats, 34 Republicans.

As for the House, it would appear that only a political earthquake could shake loose the 41 seats the Republicans would have to pick up in order to gain control. Republican spokesmen have talked privately of winning 10 to 15 more seats. Democrats talks of gains in the same range, but say a Johnson landslide could bring many more.

A gain of about 15 seats could be highly important to the Democrats, if they retain the presidency. Although the outgoing Congress was divided 257 to 178 in favor of the Democrats, the Republican-Southern Democratic coalition, when it held firm, produced some cliffhanger close votes, and some decisions not to bring up legislation because the Democratic leadership lacked the votes for approval.

Generally the Republicans are looking to the South, where they think Goldwater is encouraging defections from traditional Democratic voting habits. Democrats are hoping to capitalize on disaffection among Republican voters in the Midwestern farm states and also counting on a Johnson sweep of the Northeast to topple some GOP congressional strongholds.

Vote "YES" to Amendments 1 through 5 and 33

Louisiana has the natural resources, the transportation facilities, the labor force, that could make it one of the nation's leading industrial states. POPULAR RECORDS

The library of jazz has been enriched by a new three-LP set in Columbia's Jazz Odyssey series.

This is volume three and is entitled "The Sound of Harlem," the first two being devoted to traditional and Chicago jazz.

The Harlem set (Columbia C3L 33) is collector's gem because it includes some early sides cut by Eubie Blake, James P. Johnson, Fats Waller, Bessie Smith, Ethel Waters, Chick Webb, Billie Holiday, Teddy Wilson and many other great jazz musicians and singers who made their indelible mark.

In another outstanding offering, Al Hirt goes before Arthur Fielder's Boston Pops Orchestra on "Pop Goes the Trumpet" (RCA Victor LSC-2729). Most of the numbers are typical of a Boston Pops concert but this gives Hirt an opportunity to demonstrate his versatility. Also there is a special arrangement of Hirt's big hit, "Java," that alone is worth the price of the LP.

"Al-Di-Laz and Other Extra Special Songs for Young Lovers" by the Ray Charles Singers (Command RS870-SD) is exciting yet relaxing selection of recently popular hit songs, including "Call Me Irresponsible" and "The Girl from Ipanema." Ray's singers would sound fine on an old time phonograph but here they have the advantage of brilliant sound reproduction techniques.

Record of the Week — Remember the "Davy Crockett" record of about a dozen years ago and the vast popularity it enjoyed? Now Bob Luman has come up with something similar in "Old George Dickel" (Hickory 45-1277). This rollicking record from Nashville retells in song the legend about a mountaineer distiller whose Tennessee whisky was the best serum against snakebite.

Selected Singles — "So Long Dearie" by Louis Armstrong (Mercury 72338), "Just a Little Girl" by Donna Loren (Capitol 5250), "Shake a Lady" by Ray Bryant (Sue 45-108), "I See You" by Cathy and Joe (Smash S-1929).

LP's of the Week—Mono: "Ella Fitzgerald Sings The Jerome Kern Song Book" (Verve V-4060). By all means one of the best records of the year. Great singer, great composer and fine arrangements by Nelson Riddle. Stereo: "Bravo Serrano!" (Elektra EKS-7275). Juan Serrano's virtuosity as a flamenco guitarist can't be challenged after hearing this recording.

Louisiana Tech Student Conduct At Fair Lauded

RUSTON (Special) — Conduct of the Louisiana Tech students in Shreveport during State Fair activities is the subject of commendation by Mayor Clyde E. Fant in a letter to President F. Jay Taylor.

"Captain McDowell of the Shreveport police department, who has handled hundreds of parades, gave me a report Saturday evening on the Tech - Northwestern parade," Mayor Fant wrote.

"He reports that it was one of the most orderly and well organized parades that he had ever handled. In addition, he said the pep rallies were well attended and, while there was much enthusiasm from both schools, all participating were perfect ladies and gentlemen.

"Will you please convey to your student body our sincere appreciation for the excellent manner in which they conducted these activities."

Airman Scores High In Course

Air Force Technical Sergeant Hugh R. King Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. King Sr. of Harrisonburg, has completed the aircraft maintenance technician's course with an "outstanding" grade of 96.

Sgt. King received special recognition from his commanding officer. He is a member of the 497th Organizational Maintenance Squadron at Plattsburg, N. Y.

Sgt. King's wife is the former Betty Ann Davis of Sterlington. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Davis of Sterlington.

Area Pastors To Meet Here

Pastors of churches in the Richland Baptist Association will have their Tuesday, November 3 conference in the Daddy Flowers Chapel at the Louisiana Baptist Children's Home in Monroe.

The pastors will leave the First Baptist Church of Rayville at 10 a.m. for the Home, according to Rev. Paul E. Brooks of Mangham.

Strange Campaign In Home Stretch

The course of the current presidential campaign has taken many unusual turns. Here is a review of some of the things that have marked the drive for the highest office in the land.

Monroe Morning World

By J. W. DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millions of Americans — perhaps over 70 million — will write an end Tuesday to 1964's strange and bitter presidential campaign.

Their votes may set America's course for years to come, at home and in a world where troubles never seem to end.

They will decide whether they want to:

1. Go along with Big Government programs backed by President Johnson as vital to welfare and progress, or

2. Take up Barry Goldwater's call for a cutdown on Washington's direction and control of the affairs of individuals and businesses.

The civil rights issue could be a big factor. Here the question is whether Negroes are getting what they deserve, more than they deserve, or less than they deserve, in the field of civil rights.

Much of the campaign has been given over to arguments on whether Republican Goldwater is trigger happy in a dangerous world, as the Democrats charge, or whether Democrat Johnson is the reckless one, and soft on communism, as the Republicans say.

ENDLESS FIGHTING

Voters will carry into the balloting places concern about the endless fighting in Viet Nam, the leadership overturn in the Soviet Union, and the fact that tough talking Red China now has the A bomb.

Standing out among the domestic issues are Republican charges that scandal and immorality stain the government under Johnson, and Democratic statements that "Goldwaterism" would spread spiritual blight, physical suffering across the country.

Since the campaign began, the odds have favored Johnson and his Democrats. They have prosperity going for them, for one big thing. Negro leaders and organized labor, plus some big businessmen, are in their corner. The pollsters have shown a constant, wide margin for Johnson.

In fact, the polls have been showing Johnson with a bigger lead than any presidential candidate since Thomas E. Dewey in 1948. This can be a chilling thought for frontrunners, when they remember that Dewey was beaten by Harry S. Truman.

NOT MANY PEAKS

It has been a strange campaign in various ways. There haven't been many peaks — there remains the only one that matters, next Tuesday on Election Day.

One early peak was the storm about what critics called Goldwater's extremism on the far right, an issue whipped up by fellow Republicans at the national party convention, and carried along by Democrats.

A later peak was the disclosure on Oct. 14 that one of President Johnson's closest associates, Walter Jenkins, had twice been arrested on morals charges. Jenkins was forced to resign his high White House post after the arrests became known. He had been Johnson's confidante and devoted aide for 25 years.

The Jenkins case probably hurt Johnson politically, but how much no one could tell. Its edge was blunted by sensational foreign developments which followed quickly — the dumping of Premier Khrushchev in the Soviet Union and Communist China's first nuclear explosion.

Politicians usually figure that foreign crises help the man in office, since there is a reluctance to change in time of trouble.

Goldwater didn't comment on the Jenkins case when it broke. However, he had already been hammering on scandals he said had darkened the White House.

At one point he said the Bobby Baker case was hurting Johnson more than anything else.

Baker used to be close to Johnson. He was secretary to the Democratic majority in the Senate when Johnson was majority leader, and he resigned under fire during inquiries into his money making side deals. The Senate investigation of his actions has been put off until after the election, despite Republican cries of "White House coverup."

SUGGESTION

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, talking of Baker and Jenkins, suggested that Johnson ought to tell the nation why it was that "the two men closest to him in the past 10 years were both bad apples."

Goldwater observed that the polls and pundits have missed something he saw as troubling the people.

"Now we know what it is," he continued. "The people have looked at the White House and found it dark with scandal. The people have looked at the man who occupies the White House and found him shadowed by suspicions which no amount of handshaking and hurrahs can chase away."

Johnson, condemning Goldwater as "the new and frightening voice of the Republican party," always referring to him as a sort of temporary element in politics, avoided mentioning him by name.

The Johnson theme has been responsibility, prosperity, peace and justice.

Of his opponents, he said: "There are people who want to arrest our progress and turn back the gains of four years.

This campaign, he declared in mid October, has become a crusade "for the ideals and values which inspired John Fitzgerald Kennedy."

REPORTED GOALS

Johnson was reported months ago to be shooting for a better showing than Franklin D. Roosevelt made in 1936, when FDR won, 46 states to 2. One Democrat close to Johnson has said, only half jokingly, that what the President wants is to win by acclamation.

The LBJ strategy is to sweep the East, hold a possible Southern revolt in check, and pick up strength in the Midwest and West.

Goldwater has been saying he can win if he can carry California, Texas, Illinois, Ohio and Indiana plus Southern and Western states he has counted on from the start.

The importance of the vice presidency has been upgraded in 1964, mainly because of the public's shocked realization last November that a president's life can be ended in an instant, any instant.

Both vice presidential candidates — Rep. William E. Miller of New York for the Republicans and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota for the Democrats — were handpicked by the presidential nominees.

Never before had anything happened like President Johnson's in person "nomination" of Humphrey last August at the Democratic convention in Atlantic City.

Goldwater's choice of Miller, though less dramatic, was just as firm handed. The Republican convention delegates at San Francisco simply went along.

The big Democratic charge against Goldwater is that he is too impulsive, trigger-happy, and might get the United States into a nuclear war. Goldwater, while calling it a lie, recognized it as "the most damaging thing I have run into."

In an effort to get this burden off Goldwater's back, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower came out with a statement saying Goldwater has changed over the years.

IKE CAMPAIGNS

Eisenhower said: "For a long time he was a freewheeling senator and could not be held accountable for everything he said.

"Today there is nothing flip, no impulsiveness about him."

Eisenhower; it will be remembered, made a great hit in 1952 with the statement: "I shall go to Korea."

Along those lines, Goldwater has said that if he is elected, he'll ask Eisenhower to go to Viet Nam and see what can be done to end the fighting there. The war holds potentially great damage to the Johnson administration politically, aside from its broader effects.

Johnson at one time set up the possibility of a conference with Soviet Premier Khrushchev, if he won. With Khrushchev now sidelined, new steps were in order.

There is the great, but hard to measure, issue of "the white backlash" — the question being whether whites in large numbers might vote against Johnson because of his backing of the new federal civil rights law, and because of resentment against Negro demonstrations.

Johnson has taken the stand that for every Democratic voter who turns against him on the civil rights issue, three Republicans will turn against Goldwater because of fear of what he might do with nuclear weapons if he is given the presidency.

VIEWED AS BOOST

When Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama withdrew in July as an independent candidate for president, it was taken as a boost for Goldwater, who voted against the civil rights law.

The reasoning was that if Wallace stayed in, he would pull states rights votes from Goldwater, who has said states rather than the federal government should supervise the question of civil rights.

Wallace ran strongly in this year's presidential primaries in Indiana, Wisconsin and Maryland. As a result, he said he had achieved his goal; to stir up interest in states rights.

Sen. Humphrey, who has provided most of what humor there has been in this campaign, brought up another form of lash — the "midlash."

He spoke out after Goldwater kept referring to him sarcastically as Hubert Horatio Humphrey. Humphrey said this might prove a boomerang for Goldwater, since there are many Americans who sympathize with all others who have a funny sounding middle name.

All four top candidates have pulled enthusiastic crowds, some of them huge.

Johnson got so carried away on a trip to Tennessee that he tossed his hat into a roaring crowd. Humphrey, less willingly, gave up three wrist watches to hand shakers and arm tuggers. "A lot of people get a firm grip on your arm and something gives," he explained.

Once, when the crowd at an airport was small, Humphrey shook hands all around with musicians in the welcoming band.

MIXED APPROACH

Johnson mixed a practical attitude with his fervent calls for support. As he explained once, "You can't be a statesman if you don't get elected."

He made full use of his unique advantages as president, too. He had more to tell the people than they ought to vote Democratic. He was able to bulwark his talks with sensational announcements of satellite killing rockets, and radar that can see around the curve of the earth.

A Goldwater campaign feature was the obvious dedication of a solid core — men and women who cheered him even when they couldn't hear what he was saying. They clearly looked upon him as the country's savior.

Goldwater also demonstrated a facility for saying sharp things about the opposition without sounding nearly as harsh as his words would look in print.

Those who traveled with Goldwater often remarked on his casual, almost carefree air. He didn't get ruffled often; as the 'teen agers would say, he played it cool.

In the final weeks of the campaign Goldwater's strategists turned more and more to television. They figured he had just the personality for it — they said they wished they could afford to put him on more often.

This was an unusual campaign in a number of ways, none more striking than the way the candidates' families got into the act. The wife and daughters of President Johnson, Lady Bird, Lynda and Luci, set the pace.

There never has been anything like the 1,682 mile Washington to New Orleans whistlestop trip made on the train called "The Lady Bird Special."

Mrs. Johnson traveled along, to much cheering and some heckling, with this message for her fellow Southerners:

"Maybe we can win without the South. But we have too much respect for it to take it for granted, and too much love for it to ignore it."

ANOTHER TOUR

Mrs. Goldwater, admittedly not a speaker, tried a little touring of her own, around her home state of Indiana and in Ohio and New York.

The Goldwater sons, Mike and Barry Jr., teamed on occasion with the Miller girls, Libby and Mary Karen, to stir up enthusiasm for the Republican ticket.

At GOP jamborees, the fare was often "Barry burgers" and Polish potato salad made from Mrs. Miller's recipe. The Johnson girls, being Texans, went in heavily coast to coast for barbecues, notably spareribs.

A soft drink called Gold Water gave Sen. Humphrey a chance to poke fun. He would pull out a newspaper clipping and read in mock horror: "Gold Water banned in Grand Rapids!"

Then Humphrey would explain that the drink was found to contain nothing but artificial ingredients, and was grossly misbranded.

"I just read you the Republican platform," he would say.

Miller, more of a serious turn, time and again attacked Humphrey's longtime association with the organization Americans for Democratic Action.

Miller said the ADA, which describes itself as a liberal, independent political organization, is trying to "transform our government into a foreign, socialistic totalitarianism."

To this, and similar thrusts, Humphrey replied:

"This puts Miller in strange company. I hope he'll take a good look at the enemies of ADA, such as Communists and Birchites. If Miller wants to associate with those groups, he may. I don't care to."

The role of the John Birch Society, and its right wing views, came up importantly in the "extremism" fight at the Republican National Convention.

Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, opposing Goldwater for the nomination, tried to get the convention to denounce the society by name, but the platform committee refused to do so.

INFILTRATION

One unusual event in this campaign was the infiltration of a Goldwater campaign train by a pretty girl "enemy agent", 23 year old Moira O'Conner of New York.

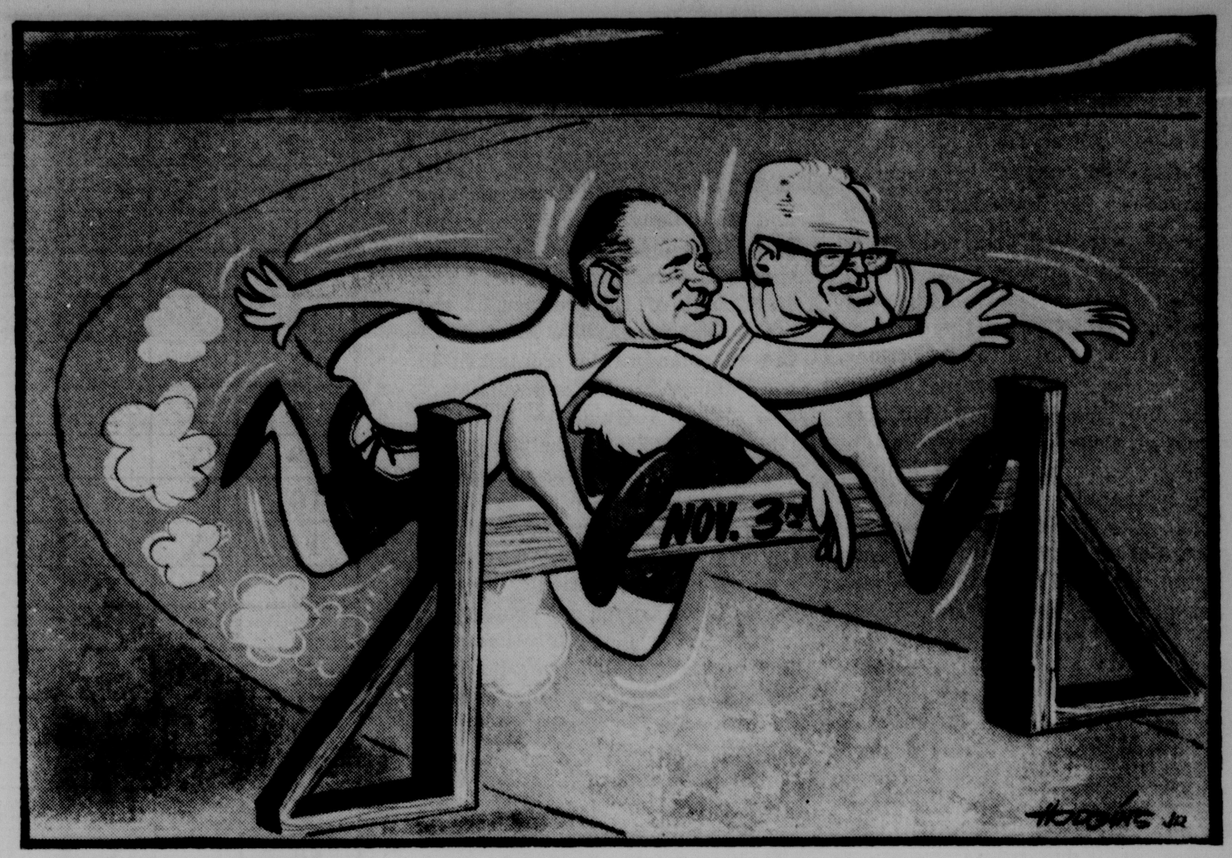

Bearing a reporter's credentials, she got on at Washington and went up and down the train secretly distributing anti Goldwater literature. She was caught up with and bounced at Parkersburg, W. Va.

A few weeks later, the Democrats reported they had uncovered a Republican scheme involving the payment of $1,000 for supposedly confidential information from within Democratic headquarters at Washington. Republicans said it wasn't their doing.

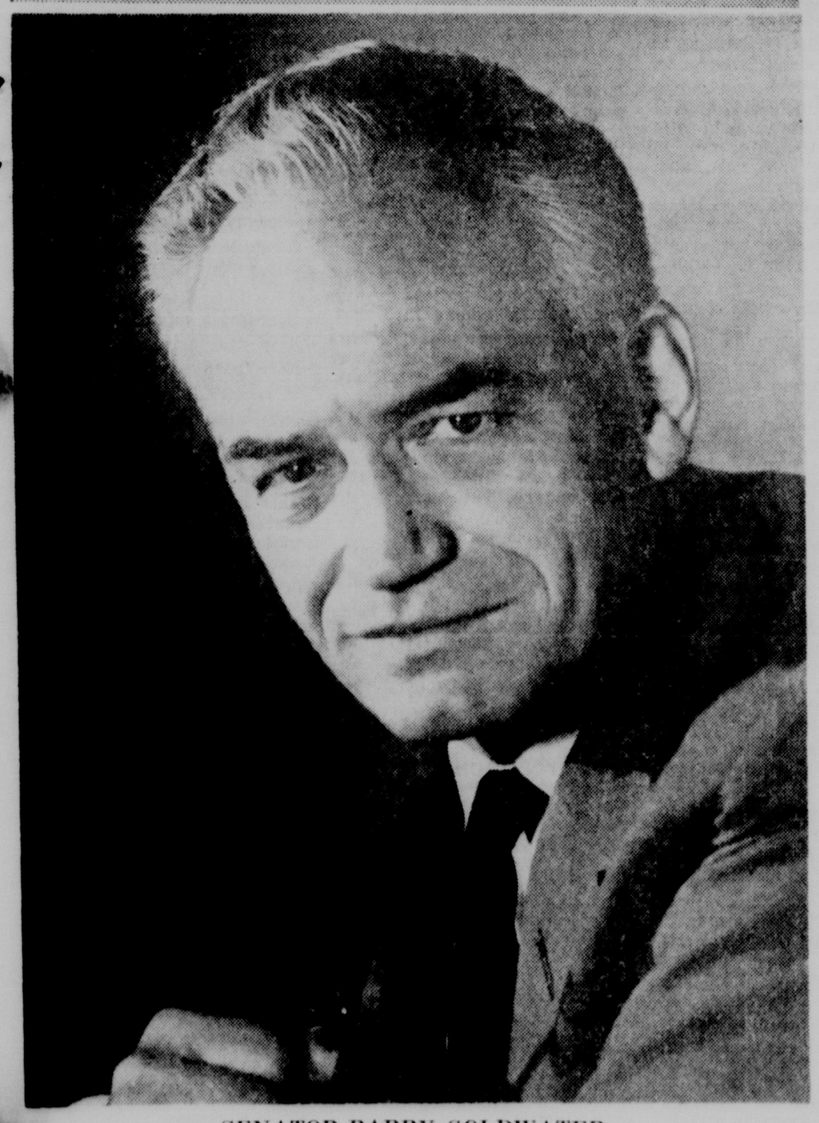

One big difference between this campaign and the 1960 Kennedy - Nixon contest is that four years ago there were four television debates between the presidential candidates, watched by millions.

"I wouldn't have won the election without the debates," Kennedy said flatly.

This year Goldwater kept calling on Johnson to meet him in debate, but Johnson wasn't having any. His attitude seemed to be: I'm doing all right; why try anything else?

THE POLITICAL TRUISM that no matter what the polls say, it's the one on election day that counts, is illustrated in the cartoon of President Lyndon B. Johnson and Senator Barry Goldwater taking the final hurdle in their presidential campaign. Tuesday, the voters, perhaps as many as 70 million, will decide whether the polls showing Johnson ahead are correct, and will set the country's course. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

The 41 Amendments

In addition to the presidential election, Tuesday's ballot will include Republican and Democratic candidates for the Ouachita Parish School Board, and 41 proposed amendments to the State Constitution. It is especially important for voters to express their desires at the polls in all of these elections.

The constitutional amendments not only are important, but passage of some of them is vital to the economic welfare not only of the local area but all of North Louisiana. The World publishes—on the opposite page today — its own summaries and recommendations on all of the amendments, plus a "box score" published on both this page and the opposite page. This can be torn out by voters and taken to the polls, thus shortening the time used by each voter. On most of the amendments there is general agreement as to whether they should be passed or rejected. The viewpoint of The World is marked on the "box score." However, voters who disagree with the opinion of The World may change the "box score" as they see fit, and still find it a handy memorandum to take to the polls.

These recommendations by The World have resulted from extensive and meticulous study of each proposed amendment, not only from the legal standpoint but from the standpoint of the welfare of the state as a whole. The analysis of the 41 amendments contained in the Public Affairs Research Council's "Voter's Guide to the 1964 Amendments," was helpful as an informative reference in making our own study. Our studies have been made by persons qualified and experienced for many years in evaluating constitutional amendments, which often are confusing in their phraseology for the average voter. We offer our evaluations solely as recommendations for consideration of the voters and with no thought of trying to dictate any person's decision.

Regardless of how you vote, The World urges every eligible voter to go to the polls Tuesday and register his decision not only in the presidential contest, but in the School Board races and on each of the 41 amendments.

TAKE IT TO THE POLLS

The Protestant Attack On Goldwater

When the election is over, Senator Goldwater probably will find that the scars caused by sometimes false and often misleading inferences in the attacks on him by President Johnson and Senator Humphrey will not last too long. What may hurt right down in his own heart for a long time is the avalanche of unfair and falsely built castigation by various Protestant church publications, particularly from within his own denomination.

The charges in these publications cumulatively are to the effect that Senator Goldwater is a Fascist, would destroy the teachings of Christian Protestantism, and lacks the moral understanding to be President.

In some instances everyone who believes in him is given somewhat the same designation.

Almost invariably, the editorials are built on political allegations which have been proven false but which the church editors apparently chose to assume were true in order to use them for their own political and extremist purposes.

In the words of one of these publications—echoed by others — ". . . it is unprecedented that a church magazine should oppose a candidate of one of the major political parties for the presidency of the United States. . ."

That is true, and by stepping into the present campaign to tell church people who shall or shall not be President and how and what a President must think and believe, these publications have—perhaps unwittingly—again stirred up the issue of separation of Church and State. This time, however, instead of Protestants charging the Roman Catholic Church with seeking to place Church above State, it is Protestants who are seeking to guide political action by the nation, and to do so not on the basis of a candidate's religion but on his political beliefs and those of his followers.

Protestant church publications which are carrying on vigorous — perhaps at times even vicious — attacks which are founded in many instances on pure falsity, and which have come to our attention, are:

The Witness, and The Churchman, both published from within Senator Goldwater's own Episcopal denomination.

The Christian Century, non-denominational and largest in circulation of all Protestant publications. It is distributed overseas through American libraries, including those at military bases, by the Information Service of the U. S. Department of State.

Christianity and Crisis, a Christian Journal of Opinion, non-denominational.

Motive, the magazine of the Methodist Student Movement.

The United Church Herald, semi-monthly publication of the United Church of Christ.

Register, publication of the Chicago Theological Seminary.

The Messenger, a Methodist publication.

In addition, the Race and Religion Commission of the National Council of Churches, which embraces Protestant denominations with 39,000,000, members, is fighting Senator Goldwater.

None of these publications has circulation of importance. But their editorials and articles against Senator Goldwater sometimes are reproduced by the hundreds of thousands for anti-Goldwater political use.

Collectively, these churches especially charge that Senator Goldwater seeks to destroy the United Nations, which is false; plans to destroy social security, which is false; slanders recipients of public relief, which is false; opposes medical care for the aged, which is false; plans to scatter authority all around among military commanders to use nuclear weapons at their own will, which is false; lacks understanding of the moral issues involved in war and peace and government — where Senator Goldwater's whole campaign has been based fundamentally on such morality; and that he, in the words of The Witness, is "openly contemptuous of all the Church has been saying and teaching in the last 30 years or so."

It is noticeable that all of these church attacks on Goldwater refer to "church teaching in the last 30 years or so," or similar words. There is no reference to teaching of Christianity during the previous 1934 years since the birth of Christ, or the religious and political tenets of the nation for 16 decades prior to this last 30 years.

The reason for this frequent reference to the last 30 years or so is this: Like the millions of other American conservatives, Senator Goldwater is opposed to the downhill slide in federal government toward the Socialist State and Welfare Socialism, with accompanying decay of morality both in government and among the people. That slide began to get its first real impetus 31 years ago as the New Deal began.

In other words, these Protestant attacks on the GOP nominee come from publications whose editors or directors often are well known as liberals or as extremists of the left who do not want this nation's flight into the abyss of Welfare Socialism even delayed.

Because of the familiarity of their names in connection with leftist movements over the years The World asked the House Committee on Un-American Activities for its record on John C. Bennett, President of the Union Theological Seminary, co-editor of Christianity and Crisis, and one of the most active church writers and speakers against Mr. Goldwater, and on William B. Spofford Sr., Managing Editor of The Witness, which has been especially vehement and unfair as to its fellow Episcopalian.

The House Committee's files contain more than 50 citations about Mr. Spofford for activity, association with, or some kind of support for some 35 organizations which some congressional investigating committee has designated as "Communist fronts" over the years from 1934 to the present.

Mr. Bennett was listed as having some half dozen such citations, from 1941 into 1964.

This does not mean that either is a Communist or a pro-Communist; but that their names appeared as supporters of some action of front organizations, such as through signing a petition or an advertisement, or issuing a statement in support of a cause, or being on the letterhead of some such group, or publicized in Communist publications, and so on. Each such instance is a citation.

This church attack — especially the attack by two Episcopal publications — become especially disheartening when one reads a letter on Senator Goldwater and Christianity which has been sent to every daily newspaper in the nation by the Vestry or Trinity Cathedral, Phoenix, Arizona, Senator Goldwater's own Episcopal Church, where he was baptized into the Episcopal faith by the Bishop of Arizona.

Signed by the Senior and Juniors Wardens of Trinity Cathedral, the letter says in part:

"The soul and conscience of a man are God's arena, and cannot be usurped by any mortal setting himself up as a judge of another human being. Senator Goldwater has, far better than most of us, shown the people of this country a Christian stature beyond challenge.

"Those men within our Church who have maligned him, and attempted to sit in judgment of him, have breeched one of the basic precepts of our Christian teaching."

BASCOM TIMMONS

Who Tells First In Vote Returns

These are some things about Tuesday night presidential election returns giving the hour state results can be expected to be known. Past history and allowing for some leaway between actual election returns and pre-election voter surveys.

FIRST STATES IN — First state to complete its count Tuesday night is expected to be Connecticut, followed by Massachusetts and Rhode Island. All three are for Johnson by all advance reckoning. Other New England States, rated more or less doubtful — Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire — are customarily slower - count States.

NEW YORK AND NEW JERSEY — New York should be the first big State to announce its totals, and the Empire State outcome may be known long before midnight. Its 42 electoral votes are a big prize. It is a State apart, with so many special situations not present in other States, that it has never figured as a barometer. It will be big for Johnson unless all signs fail. New Jersey is the State most similar to New York and the two usually go the same way.

PENNSYLVANIA — The Keystone State went for Kennedy by 116,326 out of a total vote of in excess of 5,000,000 in 1960. His victory came through a 336,000 majority in Philadelphia, for he had a deficit in the State outside of this metropolis. Goldwater has been saying for the last week that he could win Pennsylvania if he could hold Johnson's Philadelphia margin to below 250,000 mark. Democrats think Johnson may run about as well as Kennedy did in Philadelphia, and will do far better in other portions of the State.

JOHNSON STATES FIRST — It should be kept in mind that all the States reporting anything like complete returns early are those of greatest Johnson strength.

Views Of Our Readers

After The Election

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Well, the bushes have been beaten, and they are coming down to the home stretch, and still no word on some of the issues. It looks as if Billy Sol Estes will go on riding in his Cadillac and living in a $50,000 home - Bobby Baker may locate in California, and no telling what will happen to Jenkins. Between the White House and the State Department, here is much to be revealed that could set the record straight. Otto Otepka was not fired for misconduct, rather, he was accused of leaking a few strange happenings to a congressional committee. After my reading "The Untouchable State Department" by Bryton Barron, I am not surprised at any thing going on there. Yet the man in the White House persists in his "Evangelical style" of campaign, still allowing his henchman, Humphrey to get in the things, while he, Johnson gives the impression that all is well, and that he has everything under control.

An article in tonight's News Star relates what a fine man, Major Gen. John B. Medaris, U. S. Army (Ret.) says about the man Johnson. This was tied in with the rumor by Hale Boggs that much of the personnel might be moved to New Orleans. Of course, this is to attract Louisiana votes, as was the raise in wages of Congress.

If the allegations hurled at him about all this dirty work is not true, why does he not state his side on the matter; why does he use that saintly approach, and why was the deal on Bobby Baker postponed until AFTER the election? His attitude seems to be one of, 'I am above corruption, and need not answer to such things.' but his lack of honesty may backfire.

Why does he arm the gangster in Harlem, why does he want not a majority but an ultimatum? Is the man so in love with himself that he cannot see any other course for this country? Why does he keep harping on poverty, while at the same time, he is pressing for more and more immigrants to enter America. Why does he harp on "Care for the aged, through Social Secuity?"

Four years ago he ran for the Senate at the same time he was running for Vice President — In his Senate speeches he was strong for segregation in all it's forms, while in his hunt for the other office he was just the opposite. Is the man to be trusted? I don't believe so, for various reasons.

As for Senator Goldwater, I have been in touch with him since 1959. I was for him in 1960, I am for him now, and, I will be waiting to cast my ballot for him next time. He is the greatest fighter since Teddy.

The Missile Gap

Rayville, La.

To the Editor:

I have just seen a T.V. example of a new low in the Johnson presidential campaign. This was a movie trying to govern us by fear and cudgel us into voting for Johnson-Humphreys because of fear of the nuclear bombs. All the movies of bomb tests (or substitute pictures) with long count downs were shown, J. Kennedy's speech after surrendering to Russia at the Moscow test ban treaty signing was sounded. Democratic candidate Johnson with a face as long as a painful hangover told how he would save the world from atomic fallout and ensure peace and intimated that Senator Goldwater would not.

Will this kind of campaigning govern the American people by fear? Are the American people so gullible as to believe this?

The record of the Kennedy-Johnson administration is one of maintaining peace by surrender. Surrender to Cuba by helping Castro slaughter the Cubans who would have tried to regain their country at Bay of Pigs invasion. Again surrender to Cuba by guaranteeing that the United States of America would prevent any force attacking the Castro regime. Surrender to Russia on the same occasion by removing our deterrent air bases from Turkey, Italy, Spain and Morocco for an agreement that the Russian missiles and planes would be removed from Cuba — and we still do not know that one of them was removed. Surrender to the Viet Cong (or Red China) by discontinuing the Tonkin Bay Navy patrol, after making the big chested show of the strong commander in chief. Surrender to Russia on the Moscow test ban treaty, against the advise of our best nuclear scientists and military authorities after stating we would never accept such agreement inspection. And after. Russia had completed test of their large size multimegaton devices to put them far ahead of us in this field and after they had on a previous occasion broken a test ban agreement. Now Red China has detonated a nuclear device. How soon will we surrender to Red China and let them into U.N., recognize their government, maybe move out of the Pacific and abandon Korea, Japan, the Philippines as well as Viet Nam. And our disarmament people are just waiting until after election to turn our military forces over to the United Nations which may well be the final step in turning our country over to international socialism and communism.

Do you know that the missile gap, non-existent in 1960 has now become most significant to the advantage of Russia; that our strategic air force has been allowed to go without development of new planes and with retirement of much of their deterrent power; that many of our really powerful intercontinental missiles have been replaced by those of much less power and range? And now I have heard that all tactical nuclear weapons have been ordered back from Europe to this country.

No, voters, the real danger to this country is the continuation of this administration, worsened by the addition of the ADA founder and former vice president. The hope for this country is the election of Senator Goldwater and the placing of our security into a position of strength — the one thing which the communist does recognize and is deterred by.

Labor For Barry

Downsville, La.

To the Editor:

I know it has been reported that organized labor is backing President Johnson for president. Well, I know that not all labor is backing him. As a member and former president and vice - chairman of Magnolia Lodge 243 Brotherhood Railway Car men of America AFL-CIO representing members in El Dorado, Arkansas and Monroe, Louisiana with headquarters in Monroe, I am in a position to know.

I predict Mr. Goldwater will get a majority of the labor vote in Louisiana. We are fed up with the things that have been crammed down our throats the past 4 years. It's time for the people to wake up and shake the shackles off their feet while they can.

The trouble with us here in the south is that too many of our Senators and Congressmen go up to Washington and sell the people out for a little political power or a Senate Whip post like Senator Russell Long is bidding for.

Well, what would he do with it - Use it against us down here in the south like Hubert Humphrey did? I'm like District Attorney Albin Lassiter - that's a terrible price to pay for seniority or a Senate Whip post. We have been whipped with that post enough, but we may get it used on us again if Mr. Johnson gets back in.

If Mr. Johnson gets back in things will start popping again.

If you're tired of the rioting, demonstrating and violence caused by outside agitators then vote for Mr. Goldwater.

If you want more of it then vote for Mr. Johnson.

Our Freedoms

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Have we looked at what our clubs stand for lately? It might be wise if we did. I give to you the statement Mayor Jack Howard asked of a member of the Democratic Central Committee — maybe not the exact words, but the text is the same — "When all our freedoms are gone and your children look at you and say "Daddy (or Mother) where were you?"

What are you going to tell your children?

Mrs. G. C. Bedenbender

A True Choice

Jonesboro, La.

To the Editor:

On November 3rd, the people of the United States will elect a president. For the first time, they have a true choice between Conservatism and Liberalism, between Americanism and Socialism, between freedom and future slavery!

If Lyndon Baines Johnson, is elected president of this nation, our republic will have been handed over to Martin Luther King. The Democratic team of Johnson and Humprey, must be defeated. Johnson and Humphrey, must be defeated. Johnson and Humphrey would destroy libertly and individualism throughout the country.

Senator Barry Goldwater would make the greatest American president since Thomas Jefferson. Senator Goldwater is the best type of American for he is personally honest, he is a supporter of state's rights, and he is strongly anti-Communist. Let us remember that Johnson backed the "civil rights" bill while Sen. Goldwater voted against it, Johnson supported the Supreme Court when it took prayer out of schools while Sen. Goldwater has promised to return prayer to American life. We must elect Barry Goldwater president! Please vote Goldwater-Miller.

Teachers Pay Raise

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

There have been many arguments, pro and con, concerning an increase in pay for our teachers. A promise has been made and it is a promise that should be kept.

I would state first that I am not a teacher. My only interest in this matter concerns the welfare of our children. It amazes me that so - called educated people think nothing of spending billions of dollars for highway expansion, huge public buildings (such as the mansion in Baton Rouge) etc; yet close their minds when talk of funds for any school project arises.

We are losing many dedicated teachers yearly to higher paying professions. I know, because members of my own family have left teaching to go into other jobs that pay enough to support their families. There are many of these who would return to teaching if offered a salary decent enough to live on.

The thing that frightens me is what is going to become of our children if we don't have enough qualified teachers to lead them. And how can we expect young people to enter the teaching profession if they can earn more money elsewhere. It is time we in Louisiana, in fact, the whole of America, wake up to the fact that without an education our children face a future with little hope. It is also time we face the fact that our teachers have long been underpaid servants of our community. Let us do the right thing toward those that work daily to help our children.

I know other state employees are also underpaid. My father was a state employee and earned only enough to make ends meet. It is high time that they stand up and demand what should rightly be theirs. It seems a pity that they should have to demand when they have been promised and ought to receive. If our governor and legislators don't like the feeling of being pressured, they should not have made promises they did not intend to keep. This is a corner of their own making, and if it is uncomfortable they can relieve the situation by doing what has been promised.

I say again, let us be aware that only through educating our youth do we as citizens have a future. Next to Christian experiences, the most important goal in my life is to see that my two youngsters are educated to their fullest abilities. This can only be done through qualified, dedicated teachers. So let us see that they receive compensation for their toil.

World's Recommendations On The 41 Amendments

1 — FOR
Code of Ethics

This is the much publicized constitutional amendment designed to restore confidence in the integrity of the administration of our state government. The World has fought for this amendment over the years. We were disappointed at and editorially deplored the roadblocks placed in the way of its passage by the prior administration. There followed a popular demand for this Code of Ethics amendment. The sponsors of the enabling legislation in North Louisiana by both Senators and Representatives is so widespread as to prevent listing here. The present Governor gave his wholehearted support to the amendment. The people should support it en masse. It is well thought out and should accomplish its objectives, applying to both elected and also appointed officials of the state. Vote "FOR" this amendment.

2 — FOR
Tax Credits Industrial Gas Users

Louisiana has severance taxes on natural gas of about twice that of Texas. This has kept out of Louisiana large gas using manufacturers and industries. This amendment would grand such users a tax certificate credit to be applied to other State of Louisiana taxes. It will be accomplished gradually over a period of three years and is a part of the state's new industrial inducement program. We are aware of no significant opposition and we recommend voting "FOR" number 2.

3 — FOR
Assessment Equalization of Industrial Property

There is and has been for many years a ten year ad valorem tax exemption for new manufacturing establishments the same as is found in many states. This is a sound industrial inducement program. While honoring this exemption when legally obtained, many parish assessors have raised the assessment far above the average after the exemption period is over. This practice has been a blotch on our state in attracting outside industry. This amendment is designed to eliminate this practice by some assessors and is entitled to your support. Vote "FOR" 3.

4 — FOR
Constitutional Revision by Large Sections

The purpose of this amendment is to permit you, the voters, to vote for or against a revision of a whole section or Article of the Constitution without making you vote on it virtually sentence by sentence as our Supreme Court has held you must do. This is the only way the Louisiana Law Institute is going to be able to effect the badly needed revision of major sections of our Constitution. We recommend you support and therefore vote "FOR" number 4.

5 — FOR
Nonregulation of Gas Sales to Individual Industries

There is now a serious constitutional question as to whether or not the Louisiana Public Service Commission has power to regulate individually negotiated gas sales to a single industry. For two decades the Commission has not attempted to regulate such gas sales. Now there is an effort being made to upset this stability. This amendment will maintain that stability. It has distinguished unselfish legislative support. The commission should not enter into these private contract negotiations which do not affect the public. The passage of the amendment will improve Louisiana's image to outside industry considering this State for location. We commend it to you, suggesting a "FOR" vote.

6 — FOR
Local Voters Approving Amendments Affecting Them Only

Under the Constitution as it now stands a constitutional amendment affecting only Caddo and Bossier Parishes, for instance, could be turned down by the voters of those parishes; yet passed by the State as a whole, and still be forced on Caddo and Bossier. This proposal would continue the statewide feature but also require approval by a majority in the locality affected for the amendment to pass. The World supported a similar amendment in March 1964 as relates to local taxes that passed. We recommend that the provision be extended to cover any matter of a local nature and we therefore recommend voting "FOR" this amendment.

7 — FOR
Law Enforcement Officer Death Benefits

This would cover all sheriffs, their deputies, state police and full time municipal officers. It would provide for the state to pay to the surviving spouse $10,000 and to each surviving minor child $5,000 when a police officer is KILLED WHILE ATTEMPTING TO ARREST AN ALLEGED CRIMINAL.

We have heard no sound arguments against the amendment. We feel that this hazardous work requires this protection which will tend to attract better officers. PAR's investigation shows an average of two families of officers per year becoming entitled to this payment if it had been in effect in recent years. Vote "FOR" 7.

8 — FOR
Red River Waterway District

This amendment would authorize the Legislature to create the Red River Waterway District comprised of Avoyelles, Rapides, Natchitoches, Red River, Grant, Bossier and Caddo Parishes. This district is necessary in cooperating with the Federal Government in making the Red navigable and in doing bank stabilization work on it. We have supported this proposal in the past when it carried overwhelmingly in our circulation area, but when it was defeated by a selfish negative vote in South Louisiana. We urge a "FOR" vote on it this time hoping it will also carry throughout the State where it has the support of the New Orleans newspapers.

9 — FOR
Vacancies In Local Offices Filled by Election

Under this proposal the unexpired portion of a term of office of parish court judges, municipal court judges, police jurors, school board members, city councilmen and mayors would be filled by the Governor if the unexpired term is for less than a year (which is the present arrangement for all such appointments regardless of length) and by the Governor if more than a year but effective only until the next general election or special election for the area affected. This limits the Governor's appointing powers in local offices — tends toward home rule — and is good sound local government. Vote "FOR" 9.

10 — AGAINST
Parish Royalty Road Fund

By constitutional provision 10 per cent of royalties from minerals produced on state-owned lands is credited to the parishes from which this production is obtained, dedicated for roads, highways and bridges. This amendment would broaden the things for which the funds could be used to such an extent that would invite graft and there is no necessity whatever for the amendment. It has many hidden dangers.

Vote "AGAINST" proposed amendment 10.

11 — FOR
Wild Life and Fisheries Commission Reorganization

This will increase this Commission from seven to nine and provide that one member shall be from each congressional district with one from the state at large. As it is now North Louisiana is not adequately represented on the Commission — it is dominated by the South Louisiana coastal parishes where a majority of the appointments came from. We strongly urge a "FOR" vote on 11.

12 — AGAINST
Commission Reappointment

This proposal if passed would remove the constitutional provision which makes a member of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission ineligible for reappointment after he has served six years. No one has given a reason for this amendment — we know of no valid reason. As a matter of fact if a change is to be made the six years should be changed to four years as is the case of many other boards and commissions in Louisiana. We urge our readers, in the interest of good government, to vote "AGAINST" proposal 12.

13 — FOR
State Market Commission Loans for Forestry Plants

This amendment will authorize the State Market Commission to lend or underwrite loans up to 75 per cent of the cost of agricultural plants (instead of the present 25 per cent). It also adds "forestry plants" to the program. The revolving fund for this purpose is now in existence. This change is sound. It has the backing of the substantial and responsible agricultural and forestry groups of North Louisiana. It is entitled to a "FOR" vote.

14 — FOR
Veterans' Exemptions

This amendment will extend through 1969, the time for veterans of World War II and the Korean War to apply for the veterans' homestead exemptions. It will also make the exemptions available to veterans of World War I. (They should have been included from the beginning.)

This newspaper has always supported this exemption and it urges you to support this amendment by voting "FOR" it.

15 — AGAINST
St. Bernard-Plaquemines Judicial District

It is proposed to divide the 25th judicial district, composed of St. Bernard and Plaquemines Parishes into two judicial districts.

The case loads of the present district are not high — populations are small — there is no real reason for the amendment.

Vote "AGAINST" 15.

Justice of the Peace Courts

This will increase the jurisdictional amount of the Justice of the Peace Courts so that they can handle civil matters up to $300 rather than the present $100 limitation. The $100 limitation was first established in 1845. If $100 was correct then certainly $300 is correct now. These Justice of the Peace Courts are very convenient to some litigants of small amounts, removed from the parish seat. We recommend voting "FOR" 16.

17 — AGAINST
Additional Judge for 21st Judicial District

This district is composed of Livingston, St. Helena and Tangipahoa Parishes. There are now two judges there. The case load does not warrant the addition of another judge. Vote "AGAINST" proposal 17.

18 — AGAINST
Visitation Rights in Neglect of Family Cases

The amendment is designed supposedly to authorize courts to fix visitation rights in criminal neglect of family cases. Insofar as is known Juvenile Courts now have that right in most cases and a law in this case is all that appears to be necessary. The amendment is not shown to have any well conceived purpose and we should therefore vote "AGAINST" 18.

19 — FOR
Restrictions on Candidates

This is a good government amendment well thought-out to (as PAR says) "prevent an obvious circumvention of the spirit of the law which dictates that a candidate for election should not participate in the electoral process other than to cast his ballot." He shouldn't be an election commissioner, for instance. Vote "FOR" 19.

20 — AGAINST
Voting by Patients in State Tuberculosis Hospitals

This is an unnecessary amendment serving no good purpose and should not clutter the Constitution. Tubercular patients are now and have been voting in the parishes of their domicile. That's all the amendment purports to do — authorize such voting. Vote "AGAINST" 20.

21 — AGAINST
Orleans Parish Tax Shift

This amendment together with 26, 27 and 28 constitute a package by which one-half mill of the Orleans Levee Board tax would be transferred to the schools and another half to the City of New Orleans. These amendments affect only Orleans Parish. Responsible leadership there opposes these amendments. We therefore recommend voting "AGAINST" proposal 21 as well as "AGAINST" 26, 27 and 28, the companion amendments.

22 — FOR
New Orleans Canal Crossing

This amendment will permit New Orleans to construct a bridge or tunnel crossing the Inner - Harbor Navigation Canal. Some question has been raised as to whether the authority does not exist at this time — nevertheless the amendment has responsible widespread backing in Orleans Parish. We recommend that the balance of the state support it by voting "FOR" 22.

23 — FOR
New Orleans Traffic Court

This proposal applies only to New Orleans and would authorize the city council there to increase the number of the traffic court's judges from two to four. There is demonstrated need for the increase and the balance of the state should support the amendment by voting "FOR" 23.

24 and 25 — FOR
New Orleans Sewerage and Water Board

These two amendments would allow the New Orleans Sewerage and Water Board to get more revenues for its services. They have widespread local support and the balance of the state should vote "FOR" both 24 and 25. They must be passed in Orleans to become effective.

26, 27 and 28 — AGAINST Orleans Parish Tax Shifts

See number 21 above where these are discussed. Vote "AGAINST" 26, 27, and 28.

29 — AGAINST
Increase Debt Limit of Baton Rouge Port

This amendment would permit increasing the bonded debt limit of the Greater Baton Rouge Port Commission from $50 Million to $80 Million. In addition to the revenues and properties of the Commission and the credit of the parishes involved being behind the bonds — the full faith and credit of the State of Louisiana is behind the bonds. Until this latter feature is removed, the voters of the state should approve no more such bonds of this Commission. Vote "AGAINST" 29.

30 — AGAINST
Home Rule for St. Bernard

This is a proposal for one parish that should be for all parishes — that is permitting the parish to modernize its form of government. It applies only to St. Bernard. Until it is on a statewide basis, it should not be supported. We recommend voting "AGAINST" 30.

31 — FOR
Public Improvement District in Jefferson Parish

This is one of those clarifying amendments that appears to be necessary. We know of no opposition but general local support. It applies only to Jefferson Parish. Vote "FOR" 31.

32 — FOR
Legislative Mail Balloting

This is a good government amendment setting up standards for polling the Legislature when not in session on appropriations and borrowings. It should be passed. Vote "FOR" 32.

33 — FOR
Industrial Areas

This is one of the industrial inducement amendments designed to make Louisiana a more attractive state for industry and for all of the people. It has outstanding sponsorship and support and should be approved by the people overwhelmingly in their own interests.

It authorizes the Legislature to permit parishes to create industrial areas under procedures and regulations fixed by the Legislature. East Baton Rouge Parish can now establish and has established an industrial area. This would permit the other parishes to do the same thing.

Vote "FOR" 33.

34 — FOR
Five-Mill Tax for Municipal Services

This amendment will authorize any municipality to levy up to five mills for municipal services and equipment. The tax would be limited to 10 years AND WOULD HAVE TO BE APPROVED BY LOCAL VOTERS.

This amendment has widespread support among mayors all over North Louisiana, we know, and we are told throughout the state. Our readers should give it overwhelming support by voting "FOR" 34.

35 — AGAINST
Municipal Service Districts

This amendment, if passed, would grant all municipalities except New Orleans broad authority to create service districts which could levy taxes and render any of the services now being rendered by a city. The proposal is a monstrosity from the standpoint of good government. We know of no reason for it. We know of no defense of it. We opposed this amendment in 1962 when it was defeated overwhelmingly in our circulation area and defeated two to one in the state as a whole. We are opposed to it now.

Vote "AGAINST" 35.

36 — AGAINST
State Board of Health

This proposal is designed to increase the size of the State Board of Health from 9 to 12 members. Under the present constitutional provisions five of the nine members must be registered physicians with the qualifications of the other four to be set by the Legislature. Under this proposal the additional members will not be physicians. Thus the control of this most important of Boards protecting the health of ourselves and our children in areas where they must have protection would pass out of the hands of doctors and into the hands of the groups who are being subjected to this health inspection and control.

We opposed this identical constitutional amendment in 1956 as being a "dangerous proposal in the health field." It was overwhelmingly defeated in our circulation area then and in the state then. IT SHOULD BE DEFEATED AGAIN.

Vote "AGAINST" 36.

37 — FOR
Municipal School Bond Taxes

This amendment provides that a city which has established its own public schools system should not be required to levy a tax upon newly annexed territory to retire school bonds issued before the annexation.

At the present time the only city it affects is Monroe (which has its own public school system). This is a logical, well thought-out amendment leading toward good home-rule government. It does not require the city to do anything. It permits the city to decide based on the facts of each annexation case.

Vote "FOR" 37.

38 — AGAINST
Tax for Police Pensions

This proposal would authorize cities of between 10,000 and 70,000 population to levy a special one mill tax to help finance a policemen's pension and relief fund.

We are supporting number 34 above which is sound. There is no need for this which would or could and should where necessary, be included in the additional millage to be provided by 34. Vote "AGAINST" 38.

39 — AGAINST
Baton Rouge Municipal Service Districts

This would do for Baton Rouge what Number 35 would do for all cities including Baton Rouge. It is even more ineptly drawn than 35. We don't think 35 is sound and we certainly don't think this is sound. Vote "AGAINST" 39.

40 — AGAINST
Special Tax for Cities of Under 5,000

This proposes that a city of less than 5,000 population be authorized to levy a special tax of three mills annually for fire and police protection and for general public safety WITHOUT A VOTE OF THE TAXPAYERS. This is unsound but also unnecessary in view of number 34 above which we support which gives authority of five mills to ALL cities but WITH TAXPAYER APPROVAL.

Vote "AGAINST" 40.

41 — AGAINST
Increase Tax Authorization for Kenner

This unnecessary and unsound proposal would allow Kenner to impose a tax of seven mills for garbage collection and disposal. This is stupid. It has disapproval of outstanding leadership in the area and we should vote "AGAINST" 41.

TEAR THIS OUT TAKE IT TO THE POLLS

Campaign Issues Changed Trends

By GEORGE J. MARDER
United Press International

This was the campaign that had been billed as one which offered voters a clear choice between liberalism and conservatism. The main issues did not quite turn out that way.

When there were ten days to go before election day, pollster Louis Harris put the situation in these words:

"It is now clear that morality in government is the major issue for Sen. Goldwater in the final days of the campaign, while peace and nuclear responsibility are the major popular concerns working for President Johnson."

This was hardly states' rights conservatism versus federal liberalism. It was, however, an honest reflection on a bitter campaign fought largely around the personalities of Lyndon Baines Johnson and Barry Morris Goldwater.

THE POINT

The point, as the Republicans made it, was whether Americans wanted to put up with four years of a wheeler-dealer such as Lyndon Johnson, who didn't understand and was therefore soft on communism, who befriended Bobby Baker, who knew Billie Sol Estes.

The Democrats, on the other hand, branded Goldwater as an impulsive hip shooter whose finger could not be trusted on the nuclear trigger.

Both issues received boosts in the later days of the campaign. The Republican theme of "moral laxity in high places" was given unexpected assistance with the resignation of presidential aide Walter Jenkins because of two arrests on morals charges.

The Democrats took advantage of their belief that Johnson was the man needed at the helm in a time of international crisis when the Kremlin leadership shakeup suddenly erupted, followed by Red China's nuclear explosion.

In spite of the battle of personalities, however, the campaign did turn up substantive issues, of which these were the main ones:

Goldwater promised more effective action to curb street crimes and acts of violence which have brought fear to the hearts of many city dwellers. He said he would do this primarily by setting a good example at the top, and also by making the police departments more respected, as well as making the federal judiciary more effective.

Johnson also voiced concern over rising crime rates, but said the federal government must not usurp the police powers which the Constitution vests in states and local governments. The federal government, he said, can and does stand ready to back up local action to cope with outbreaks of crime or rioting.

Johnson said the control of the use of nuclear weapons must remain in the hands of the president, and the president alone.

Goldwater said the NATO commander in Europe should be delegated some independent authority over tactical nuclear weapons.

FOREIGN POLICY

Goldwater called for a crusade against communism. He said he had won his party's nomination "because I do, frankly, take a tough line when it comes to keeping communism from gobbling up our world or threatening the peace." He said America should seek victory instead of settling for a cold war stalemate.

Johnson said the nation should continue to display the patient firmness in dealing with communism which has been the keynote of U.S. foreign policy under both Democratic and Republican presidents since the end of World War II. His goal is to find a way of living on the same globe wih Communist powers — without appeasement and without war.

SOCIAL SECURITY

Johnson claimed that Goldwater would make the Social Security system voluntary and thus bankrupt it. The President called for enactment of a medical care for the aged plan financed by Social Security.

Goldwater said he was for Social Security, and wanted to see it strengthened, but that he also was in favor of private programs. He attacked the medicare proposal on the grounds it would so burden the Social Security system that it would lead to its destruction.

CIVIL RIGHTS

Johnson pushed the 1964 Civil Rights Act through Congress, which was the strongest federal enactment on racial rights since reconstruction. He has promised vigorous enforcement.

Goldwater voted against the Civil Rights Act, and attacked its provision on public accommodations as unconstitutional. He urged also that "forced integration is as wrong as forced segregation."

EXTREMISM

Johnson and his supporters charged that Goldwater was receiving support from extreme right wing groups such as the John Birch Society. They accused Goldwater of encouraging extremism by saying in his acceptance speech that it is not necessarily a vice if it's in defense of liberty.

Goldwater and his supporters accused Johnson's runningmate, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, of being under the influence of Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), which they called a "radical" organization.

VIET NAM

Goldwater called for "decisive" action to defeat the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas. As a minimum, he said, action must be taken to cut the Communist supply lines from North Viet Nam.

Johnson said the United States faces a long, hard fight in Viet Nam, with no quick or easy solutions in sight. He said this country would not expand the war but would meet firmly any Communist attempt to do so.

CUBA

Johnson would try to further isolate Cuba by negotiation with Latin American countries and free world allies.

Goldwater would aid Cuban exiles to overthrow Fidel Castro, and recognize a Cuban government in exile.

TRADE

Goldwater opposed any trade with Communist countries unless there was a clear-cut advantage for the free world. He would barter wheat for the destruction of the Berlin Wall.

Johnson favored limited trade with Soviet bloc countries on grounds it is beneficial to both sides and may lead to a relaxation of tension.

ROLE OF GOVERNMENT

Johnson would launch new government programs to help conquer poverty, unemployment and raise educational and health standards to achieve what he calls "the great society."

Goldwater would cut back on federal programs to let individuals and localities solve more of their own problems.

SPENDING

Goldwater offered a definite promise of reduced federal expenditures.

Johnson promised only to see that the taxpayer's money is spent prudently and without wastefulness.

EDUCATION

Goldwater opposed federal aid to education, but said that if it was voted he would include parochial schools. He favored federal tax credits for individuals to help pay education costs.

Johnson called for federal aid to public schools, and said the constitutional tradition of church-state separation must be upheld.

TAXES

Johnson attributed the nation's prosperity to the $11 billion tax cut sponsored by his administration. He promised further reduction in income taxes when warranted, and called for cutting the federal excise taxes left over from the war years.

Goldwater proposed a 25 per cent cut in income taxes over a five-year period. The cut would take effect at a rate of 5 per cent a year, and would apply evenly to all income brackets.

THE DRAFT

Goldwater promised to end the draft as soon as possible.

Johnson authorized a study to see whether the armed forces can get along with volunteers after the present draft act expires in 1967.

IN TUESDAY'S VOTING

California Holds Key In Presidential Race

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—California, rich in electoral votes and flexible in its political loyalty, has become a Republican necessity and a Democratic prestige factor in the 1964 presidential election.

GOP candidate Barry Goldwater has tagged California as one of four states he must carry in November to win the presidency. The others are Ohio, Illinois and Texas.

President Johnson wants California, the most populous state in the nation, removed from the Republican column where it has rested since 1952.

Most Democrats say privately they believe Johnson can win the election without California.

But the President has called for a Democratic landslide, far above the minimum 270 electoral votes needed for victory.

Democrats believe the addition of California's 40 votes—second only to New York's 43—would insure that landslide and, simultaneously, injure the Goldwater image by stripping the GOP candidate of a vital state in his native West.

Goldwater has appeared frequently in California, campaigning, fund-raising and vacationing. Johnson visited the state this week for the third time.

But while the President has been in Washington or other sections of the nation, others singing his praises have been heard throughout California, including Gov. Edmund G. Brown; Democratic Sen. Pierre Salinger, seeking a full six-year term; and Cabinet officials.

Most Democratic congressional candidates have sewed their campaigns to the Johnson coattails.

Goldwater depends primarily on himself and a volunteer organization that is working relentlessly ringing doorbells, making personal contacts and mailing campaign material.

GOP senatorial candidate George Murphy admits he is running a "pro-Murphy campaign" without embracing the Republican presidential nominee.

Republican Sen. Thomas Kuchel has avoided a public endorsement of Goldwater.

Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon recently campaigned in California — his former home — for Goldwater.

Goldwater has saved his best shots for Southern California, while Johnson, who earlier made his major campaign speeches in the Northern area, invaded the southland this week. Goldwater must build a large lead in Southern California to offset the traditional Democratic counties of the north.

In California, a military and space industry center, Johnson took off the wraps on two major defense secrets — radar to give instant warning of approaching missiles and systems to destroy nuclear-armed satellites.

The President was replying to claims by his Republican rival that the administration has failed to provide any new strategic systems for meeting a possible Communist attack.

In California, Goldwater has criticized state Democratic leaders for supporting the closure of the program under which Mexican laborers are brought into the United States to harvest vegetable, fruit and cotton crops.

A state senate fact-finding committee reported that the death of the program would trigger a major labor problem in California.

Democrats who expect a Johnson victory point to the polls and recently released registration figures.

The California Field Poll, considered a reliable political gauge shows the President leading Goldwater 58 to 32 per cent with 10 per cent undecided.

This October poll, however, reflected a decline of 4 per cent for Johnson. Goldwater dropped 1 per cent, with the undecided column the only gainer.

Democrats also boast their heaviest registration in 14 years, claiming 57.9 per cent of the state's record 8,184,151 eligible voters.

The Republicans have 38.9 per cent with the remainder distributed between miscellaneous and those who decline to list party preference.

Not since 1950, when the percentages were 58.4 and 37.1, have the Democrats had such a margin.

Roger Kent, state Democratic chairman, said the registration "reflects a repudiation of Goldwater."

John P. Vukasin Jr., an official of the Volunteer Citizens for Goldwater organization, said Californians traditionally have crossed party lines and "have and will continue to vote their convictions, not party labels."

In 28 elections since statehood, Californians have supported 18 Republican presidential candidates and 10 Democrats.

They have voted with the loser only four times since 1912. And close elections in California are the rule, not the exception.

MY DAILY CREED

Let me be a little kinder,
Let me be a little blinder
To the faults of those about me;
Let me praise a little more;
Let me be, when I am weary,
Just a little bit more cheery;
Let me serve a little better
Those that I am striving for.
Let me be a little braver
When temptation bids me waver,
Let me strive a litte harder
To be all that I should be;
Let me be a little meeker
With the brother that is weaker;
Let me think more of my neighbor
And a little less of me.

MEMO TO WIVES

Only a very brave man or a foolish one would attempt to give advice to wives — and I'm not a brave one. But here are some items about wifely remarks that make a husband wish he was a bachelor again that maybe wives should know about — not that they will accept them. But anyway, here goes and if I show up with a black eye this week, everyone will know the reason:

Some of the remarks:

"I don't see why you need more than $1 for lunch. . ."

"Jean's husband makes $25 more a week than you do, and he's no smarter than you are — or not that much more, anyway."

"We're just having scraps or leftovers for dinner tonight, dear, I don't feel very hungry."

"Other husbands I know love to discuss the office with their wives. Why don't you? What goes on there that you don't want me to know about?"

"Is that a blonde hair on your coat? I thought you told me your secretary was a brunette? Not that I'm jealous. Me Jealous? Ha, Ha."

"Other husbands I know love to take their wives out. So why do you have to be so different."

"Guess what day this is."

"You never heard a single word I said. For that matter, you never do."

"I hate to call you at the office, dear, but on the way home I'd like for you to stop off at the supermarket and get an item or two for me I forgot. Wait a minute until I can read you the list."

We could go on, but maybe that will give wives a slight idea?

POVERTY-STRICKEN?

In case you didn't know it, if you receive $3,000 income a year you are poverty-stricken according to President Johnson, who wants to be elected president in the worst way.

But the Federal Reserve Board has come up with a study that shows some interesting facts such as:

1. 44 per cent of all families earning less than $3,000 a year own their own homes.

2. 31 per cent earning less than $3,000 a year have some form of life insurance, annuities or retirement plans.

3. 39 per cent earning less than $3,000 a year have cars.

Nevertheless, the President says these people are poverty - stricken and money must be taken from other taxpayers and given to those "disadvantaged" people so they can live on a par with their neighbors, who earn more — but often don't own their own homes, have automobiles, life insurance, annuities or retirement plans.

FAIR TREATMENT? — Out in San Antonio, Baptists are complaining to the school board about alleged discrimination in religious holidays. A group of Baptist students were refused approved leave from school to attend a church-sponsored youth conference. Their parents noted that absences are approved by the school board for certain other religious groups.

CAPSULES OF WISDOM

A WEATHER forecaster is someone with whom the weather doesn't always agree.

A HYPOCRITE is one who pretends to be burying the hatchet when he's only digging up dirt.

ONE OF the biggest troubles with success is that its recipe is often the same as that for nervous breakdown.

OVERHEARD at a party: Wife: "What's the idea? You yawned four times while I was talking to you."

Husband: "I wasn't yawning. I was just trying to say something."

NEWS NOTES

Every wonder why so many Soviet planes carrying important Russian military leaders crash? NATO intelligence sources in Europe, thinking along this line, are dubious that the crash of a Soviet plane carrying two leaders was accidental recently. These sources point out that 20 senior marshals and generals have died in supposed accidents during the past four years and in most instances the precise details were never revealed. Most fatalities involve officers in sensitive staff positions. "If they really were accidents," one NATO source said, "Soviet generals are about the unluckiest people in the world."

SORE AT THE BOSS? Well, if you are but keep it bottled up instead of blowing your top, you're a candidate for status medicamentosa, one of the commonest and hardest psychosomatic disorders to diagnose. It results from taking too many different kinds of pills and suffering their conflicting effects, so says Dr. C. W. Wahl, chief of the Psychosomatic Medicine Division of UCLA's Nueropsychiatric Institute. Subtle signs of office hostility are muscle spasms which causes backaches, tingling fingertips and dizziness caused by too-rapid breathing, and faintness caused by too-quick burning of body sugar. . .

SIGN in the Pentagon: "If the boss calls, get his name."

IN ITALY, the Senate has refused to abolish penalties for adulterous wives so adulterous husbands will continue to go free. Two million couples now live together, married, but not to each other . . .

HEALTH NOTE — Dr. P. Fabry says the man who nibbles several times a day rather than getting three full meals has the best chance of staying in shape. The Prague doctor said he studied the eating habits of 379 men, age 60 to 64, and found that the men who ate three big meals were more often overweight, had less tolerance to sugar and a higher cholesterol reading than men who nibbled five times or more. He explained this by saying that a large meal stretches the mechanism of metabolism and creates an excess of lipides in the blood. Such an excess repeated constantly can damage the mechanism which controls the amount of fatty material that goes into the blood. . .

MEMO TO POLICE

Both sexes agree that women drivers are different from men drivers, but when it comes to the relative merit of the driving habits of each, the battle then breaks out in earnest.

But according to a news story in the Tampa Tribune, a woman up in Northport, Long Island is, so far as we can recollect, the first to propose that official notice be taken of the difference — and what a proposal.

At a Northport board meeting called to consider elimination of diagnoal parking on the town's streets, she came up with the novel plan of having "his" and "hers" parking space. Parallel parking, requiring backing into the space, holds no fear for men, she reasoned, but women dread the maneuver. Therefore, why not retain diagonal parking on one side of each street — for women only — and let the men park parallel on the other side?

Why not go a step further. Since we already have set up many major streets for one-way traffic, why not establish alternating streets in each direction exclusively for drivers of one sex — streets for men and streets for women?

There's only one possible catch. If somebody can just come up with a plan to keep men drivers from having to share the same intersection with women drivers, the problem of drivers' tension might be corrected.

NOTE TO voters: Adolf Hilter once said "If you wish the sympathy of broad masses, then you must tell them the crudest and most stupid things.

TWIN CITIES WEEK IN REVIEW

Council Appeals For All To Pray

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Standing out in last week's news, amid the closing rush of campaign events, was a simple, basic appeal that Monroyans pray for their country.

Meeting Tuesday, city government officials proclaimed today, Sunday, a day of prayer in Monroe, urging that each private heart seek sincerely to make the wiser choice Nov. 3.

Non-partisan in nature, the appeal invoked merely an ultimate decision in the nation's best interest.

As the pronouncement implied, issues seem clear and positions more sharply divided perhaps than at any time in over a quarter of a century. The point of need for a prayerful weighing of the factors involved was felt by many to have been well and tastefully taken.

TYLER

In all, a rare, upbeat story and immensely becoming to the American system.

Still on the upbeat side:

Aussies have been "Waltzing Matilda" for approximately umpteen years, but Monroyans last Wednesday were "Waltzing Musetta" during "A Night at the Opera."

The Goldovsky Opera company, as the second feature of the season's Northeast State Concerts series, spotlighted Puccini's tuneful tragedy, "La Boheme" at Neville High School.

A culture pearl, it was sung in English, except for an occasional "Pizza, Pizzan?," and reportedly was a real treat. The World's own "Phantom of the Opera," staff critic John Cale, noted the performance well-received and well worthy of the large number of patrons who turned out for it.

Comment on the proposed teacher pay raise continued to claim attention last week and began to remind this poor man's pundit somewhat of a rocket. Already hurtling through time and space toward Baton Rouge and a mid-November session of the legislature, propelled locally by a misunderstanding of positions (our opinion) between the governor and Rep. Lawrence Gibbs, the issue's second stage fired early in the week.

Sen. Jamar Adcock said, in effect, Mr. McKeithen is doing whatever's possible and the representative shouldn't be so critical. Then fired Stage 2½ or 3, depending on how your number stages, and the issue became the senator's holdings in a local bank which has a fiscal agency agreement with the state.

Answering, the senator described the agreement as a matter of course for most banks, and added there are no state funds in the bank with which he is connected.

So again, as last week, we write off the discussion as at an end, while secretly awaiting a fourth stage.

Saturday night was Homecoming Night at Northeast Louisiana State College, as you've probably already noted on today's sports page (assuming you don't turn eagerly straight to this spot each week — a safe assumption).

Queen Linda Jones of Oak Grove reigned in fetching majesty, we're sure, marvelously complemented by Maid of Honor Shirley Nelson, Bastrop.

How the team, shooting for Victory No. 1, fared against Tampa University on that enchanted night (Halloween) is moot, since Homecoming, win or lose, seems always a success at Teepee Town.

By the by, speaking of Indians, Miss Chacahoula was named Saturday a week ago on our crazy-quilt calendar (Saturday through Friday for column purposes). Due to head up the beauties section in the school yearbook, she's lovely-to-look-at Miss Sara Lewis, a long - limbed West Monroe blonde and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Armond L. Lewis.

Northeast is a lively subject for still another reason, a $250,000 one. That's the size of the land deal okayed by the State Board of Education last week to open up the area for expansion. The property is both across Bayou DeSiard from the main campus and along DeSiard Road, with the purchase of the latter hopefully to end some measure of confusion over zoning.

Residents there, apparently baffled by their land's being left out of immediate plans for expansion, originally had gone to the Monroe council, asking that it be zoned commercial. The request was suspended while education officials, aware of the spurt in prices which would follow rezoning, reviewed the master plan.

Zoning itself was far from the least interesting item in last week's news.

West Monroe aldermen, for example, took up, then laid down, at least for the time being, a Chamber of Commerce request that they reopen zoning studies for the city, after an approximately two year hiatus.

The consensus, in an atmosphere which appeared generally unfavorable toward the idea, was that the necessary funds weren't available. A suggested zoning map produced by the city's now virtually defunct planning commission was branded unworkable and at least one voice was heard offering to "throw the whole thing out of the window."

But if it was going out the window in West Monroe, Monroe's planning director George Parsons managed to smash a pane inwards across the river. His idea, expressed Thursday, was for more, not less, planning, which would take in not one city, not two, but the entire parish.

Basis for this, he said, is a tremendously increased and not likely to be abated urbanization in the parish that is creating in it many of the same problems and deficiencies which made planning a boon to Monroe.

He called coordinated planning vital to worthwhile progress.

In related matters, the Police Jury seemed more receptive at a meeting Tuesday to the previously-advanced notion of a "metropolitan area" transportation survey.

Suspected in the first crack off the bat by some jurors of being a federal power grab or an attempt to bring off parish zoning (Does that sound familiar?), merits were conceded Tuesday. Formal action, yea or nay, was set for a session Nov. 10.

What it boils down to is that Uncle Sammy says, after July 1, 1965, his cash won't be found in state road projects in areas not cooperating in a continuous planning program for long-range development, where highways are concerned. Fears were allayed at the meeting by a Louisiana Highway Department official who stressed local government autonomy in determining projected land uses.

Federal officialdom also was represented last week in Monroe when U.S. Sen. Russell B. Long came to plump for LBJ at a meeting of the Ouachita Parish Central Trades and Labor Council. It was a closed session, but talking to the World's political editor, the senator noted what he called silence in the South by BMG (Barry M. Goldwater) on his intentions toward enforcement of the civil rights act. His point apparently was that Goldwater as president would enforce the nation's laws, while implying by his silence that he wouldn't in this case.

Mayor W. L. Howard, a Goldwater man from way back, who predicts a Republican victory in the state with perhaps 65 per cent of the vote, rose in printed rebuttal the following day. He found some significance, he said, in Goldwater's senate vote against the rights measure. 'Nuff said, he said.

Curiously, there was another voice in the disagreement later in the week, emanating from afar. An unintentional commentator on the merits of the argument, it was former Florida Gov. Leroy Collins, now head of the president's Community Relations Council, official way-smoother for the law.

He told listeners in other parts he just doesn't feel Candidate Goldwater would enforce civil rights as vigorously as you know who.

Long has said a Johnson victory might result in his (Long's) appointment as Senate majority whip. Current whip is Johnson's running mate, the ADA's own initimable Hubert Horatio Humphrey.

Here're some other events of note on the week's news scene:

A United Givers Fund report meeting Friday tallied collections at $222,159, amounting to 82.2 per cent of announced needs for the organization's 13 agencies. The drive was extended for two weeks in an effort to reach the $270,262 goal.

Monroe police were probing a $5,000 safe burglary at Gibson's Wholesale, which they surmise occurred sometime Sunday or early Monday.

West Monroe Kiwanis Clubbers elected Ed Koserog their new president, succeeding Eugene Smith, along with Henry Malone, first vice president, and George Daniels, second vice president.

The same city's Chamber of Commerce set its annual membership drive for Nov. 17, while the Monroe Chamber closed an approximately four-day membership push by announcing the acquisition of 103 new faces in its ranks.

The Louisiana-Mississippi Division of Monument Dealers of North America wound up a two-day convention in Monroe Tuesday, naming E. L. Herring of Mendenhall, Miss., as president. Outgoing top officer was Miss Nona Martin of Monroe.

Thursday was annual meeting day for the Silver Waters Girl Scout Council, Mrs. D. V. Loflin president, presiding.

The World In Focus

Realm Of Supernatural

By John Cale

Realms Of Supernatural

PERHAPS IT'S in the realm of the supernatural, but then so are theories about government, even sketches for a dream house, also the figures from the election pollsters. We're talking about Halloween, which occurred during the last hours of the past week.

Along with the witches, spooks, goblins and assorted trick-or-treaters, there has arisen a new image based on an old tradition, the pumpkin. This is no ordinary jack-o-lantern pumpkin, but "The Great Pumpkin," a fabrication from the mind of the character Linus in the comic strip, "Peanuts," that runs daily in the Morning World.

Somewhow, we get the idea that Linus wants to update Santa Claus and bring the presents in early by way of the pumpkin. Christmas can wait, but let's have the presents now. Thus far, his efforts have led only to frustration, still every year he keeps writing to "The Great Pumpkin" with all the hope of an adult hooked on playing the horses or the slot machines.

High Hopes

AS THE political campaigning worked its way into the final days, Democratic and Republican teams also held high hopes that a majority of Americans would go into the voting booths this coming Tuesday and vote "their" way. Many millions of dollars have been spent to influence the voters' thinking, but in the final analysis government by the people is an operation of the people's opinions and actions.

If we occasionally wonder as to why this degree of participation is necessary (41 state constitutional amendments do call for some advance study), the answer lies in the longevity of our system. In 1864, we were considered a new nation in western civilization. Now a hundred years later, our system of government is a seasoned veteran. The freedom to change things at the ballot box has assured this vitality. It's worth some thought and a trip to the polls Tuesday.

IN RUSSIA, where elections are somewhat less than free and where even the top officials are unseated without referendum, personnel changes cause a crisis.

Such a crisis took place when Khrushchev was "rotated" out of power not long ago, and whether the Communist Party wishes to acknowledge it or not, the weakness was glaring.

Some may say that the ranks will now close behind Brezhnev and Kosygin, but this did not occur in the case of Khrushchev and Bulganin back in the middle 1950's.

British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker, who was in the United States last week to confer with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, told a news conference that he thought the present Soviet leadership arrangement that divides the power between two men "is not likely to last very long."

WALKER

And that's an opinion from a man whose own government went into office by a razor-thin lead from the British voters. But the preference was expressed by the people.

Campaign Issues

SINCE THE final week of campaigning should cover most of the issues in the election as the candidates themselves see it, here are excerpts from the top contenders on the march:

Senator Barry Goldwater charged in New York's Madison Square Garden that President Johnson was seeking election through political "daddyism" by expanding the federal government's power to bestow benefits on voters.

GOLDWATER

The Republican presidential nominee urged Americans to reject a "bread and circus" approach to government that he said threatened freedom. He indirectly accused Johnson of "silly political double talk" and "transparent vote-grabbing demagoguery."

IN REPLY, President Johnson, accusing Senator Goldwater of "gambling with human destiny," urged enthusiastic crowds to "crush this threat to American life."

The President, happy with his reception in the Southeast, said in a speech at Columbia, South Carolina, that Goldwater wants to practice nuclear "brinkmanship."

JOHNSON

Speaking to a mixed crowd of about 15,000 Negroes and whites in Jacksonville, Florida, Johnson said that "for the first time since the Civil War there is some hate in our land.

REPUBLICAN vice presidential candidate William E. Miller said early in the week that the survival of the United States and the peace of the world is dependent on the election of Barry Goldwater.

Miller told an enthusiastic crowd of 1,500 gathered on the steps of the Florida Capitol at Tallahassee that partisan politics has no place in this election.

"It is a question of the survival of our country, the preservation of the system that made us great and the peace of the world," Miller said. "This supersedes the importance of a political victory for any one man or party."

Miller flew to Tallahassee from Marietta, Georgia, shortly after President Johnson left Florida and headed into Georgia for stops at Macon and Augusta.

Their paths did not cross but Miller, in advance of Johnson's arrival in the military-oriented city of Macon, accused the President of "hypocrisy" and "political deceit" on military issues.

IN KENTUCKY, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey today called for a huge vote November 3 to give Senator Barry Goldwater "the worst trouncing ever." Humphrey arrived shortly after midnight and was greeted by 2,000 supporters.

The crowd was composed mostly of students from the University of Kentucky and other nearby colleges. Many carried placards, some with flashlights attached.

British Brass

CONFERENCES last week between British Foreign Secretary Patrick Gordon Walker and top U. S. officials in Washington are expected to lay the groundwork for a visit to this country next month by Britian's new Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

Gordon Walker, who told newsmen on his arrival that he came with an open mind and no new proposals, met with Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon and President Johnson.

The meetings are the first between Washington officials and a leading spokesman for the Labor government which won the British elections October 15.

A NEWSMAN asked Gordon Walker about the British position on admitting Red China to the United Nations, and he replied tersely that the position is unchanged. The Labor government is on record as favoring Peking's admittance to the world organization.

Would the U. S. Proposed multilateral force be an answer to the current troubles of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization alliance?

"Some say so," replied the foreign secretary. "We have our own views about that."

THE NEW London government is known to be cool to Washington's idea of establishing a surface fleet of 25 ships equipped with Polaris nuclear missiles and manned by mixed crews from the various NATO nations.

American officials said the United States would continue to push for widest possible Allied agreement on the charter for the proposed fleet by the end of the year, despite British reluctance.

The United States has agreed, however, to consider any amended version which the new Labor government may wish to propose. This gives London less than two months to come up with some concrete ideas sufficiently attractive to woo Allied support away from the American plan.

The two countries found themselves fairly close together in many respects and the historic alliance intact.

More Ballots

IN WEST Germany, Socialists surged ahead in balloting in three West German states which provided the last major test of strength before parliamentary elections next fall.

Results showed West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt's Social Democrats took the lead in the Sarland, strengthened its dominant position in Hesse and nearly defeated Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's Christian Democrats in the Rhineland Palatinate.

Four weeks ago the Socialists replaced Erhard's party as the strongest party in North Rhine-West phalia, West Germany's most populous states.

Bolivian Riots

FOLLOWING A series of riots and skirmishes, the South American republic of Bolivia broke relations with Czechoslovakia Thursday. The Bolivian government accused the Red Czech Embassy of slipping arms to student, and tin miner rebels who have staged uprisings in widely separated areas of the country. Fighting in La Paz, the capital, wounded 23 persons and killed three.

Quiet was restored in La Paz Friday and government troops were in firm control of Oruro, a city proclaimed the capital of rebellion my miners and students opposed to President Paz Estenssoro. Oruro is 143 miles south of La Paz.

But students and miners last were reported fighting troops 18 miles from Oruro.

REBEL MINERS were still in control of most of the tin mines in that area. Rebel outbreaks also were reported at Cochabama, 310 miles southwest of La Paz.

Paz in a radio speech Thursday blamed Communists for the uprising in the tin mining centers and declared he would resist demands of his foes that he resign.

Possibly 50 persons have been killed in the various clashes throughout the country in the past few days.

Southeast Asia

U.S. AMBASSADOR Maxwell D. Taylor said there has been "deterioration and a loss of momentum in recent weeks and months" in South Vietnam.

But despite lack of progress in various programs here during the last year, "in the field, the operations against the Viet Cong have gone surprisingly well," he added.

Because of the political instability over the past year, Taylor said, "There has been no opportunity in this period to carry forward methodically and systematically the programs which we had laid out at this time last year."

Taylor said he had high hopes that the new civilian government would be able to produce a strong, stable regime. But he said only time would tell.

ASKED WHETHER he thought the tide in fighting could be turned without taking the war outside Vietnam, Taylor said much would depend on the stability of the future government in carrying out existing plans before anything new is tried.

"I think we can go a lot farther with what we are doing before we consider any drastic changes. If this is not enough, plainly we must consider other ways of winning the victory."

Africa

SOUTH AMERICA and Southeast Asia were not the only spots on the globe last week where tensions went past the boiling point. Rhodesia, and Sudan in Africa came in for worldwide attention in pressures for independence and governmental shakeups, respectively.

Britain warned that any attempt by Rhodesia to declare itself independent would be "treason and rebellion" against the crown. Rhodesia retaliated by accusing the British of "blackmail and intimidation."

THE BRITISH also warned that this white-ruled African territory would be inviting economic disaster if it decided on a unilateral declaration of independence.

Such a declaration would be the first in British colonial history since 1776 when the American colonies revolted and declared their independence.

SUDAN GOT a new civilian government Friday but President Ibrahim Abboud remained chief of state and his power appeared only slightly diminished.

A communique broadcast by Omdurman Radio said Abboud would exercise "all the constitutional powers" but with the "approval of the Cabinet."

It said he also was entrusted with "handling affairs related to the armed forces." Abboud commanded the army before leading the coup six years ago that installed a military government in the big country south of Egypt.

Elkhatem Khalifa was named premier and head of a 15-man Cabinet. In a broadcast he announced the abolition of martial law and the post of military governor.

THE BROADCAST said the Cabinet would be transitional government that would hold free elections not later than next March. It said the new Parliament would draw up a constitution and a government would be elected.

Back Home

NOW THAT their appeal to the federal court has failed, Republicans are appealing to what they call a "sense of equality and fairness" in their fight to get equal time on television to answer a speech of President Johnson.

Their legal battle faltered when the U. S. Court of Appeals, by splitting 3 to 3, allowed a ruling by the Federal Communications Commission to stand.

IN THIS ruling, the FCC said that Johnson's speech on October 18 was a presidential report and a news event. For that reason, the FCC said, Barry Goldwater, the Republican presidential nominee, was not entitled to equal time on the three television networks.

The National Broadcasting Company, however, gave time for Republican national chairman Dean Burch to reply to Johnson.

After the federal court split was announced, Burch addressed a statement to the networks: "We now appeal to your sense of equality and fairness and ask for equal time."

GENERAL MARK W. Clark, said last week he is "inclined to agree" with Pope Paul VI that the Benedictine Abbey at Monte Cassino "should not have been bombed."

The Pope, speaking at the consecration of the rebuilt abbey said the bombing was a "grave outrage."

Clark, now president of The Citadel, commanded the Fifth Army during the Italian campaign of World War II. He said he would have had no compunction about destroying a work of art if it were being used by an enemy.

"But, I feel this was not true in the case of Monte Cassino," he said. "This was proved after the war."

Fifth District - - Elections, Past And Present

By JIMMY HATTEN
State Editor

In presidential elections dating back to 1948, the national Democratic Party has not fared well in the Fifth District and the Republican Party has made increasingly sharp inroads into the electorate.

But whenever a States Rights slate was mixed in, both parties have had trouble.

If the Goldwater-Miller Republican ticket sweeps the district, as has been widely predicted, there won't be a precedent set, because the only time in the past four presidential elections the Democrats came out on top was in 1952.

That year Adlai Stevenson carried every parish except Lincoln, Madison and Tensas. These parishes went for Eisenhower and could be judged pacesetters for the Republican victory in the district in 1956 when the GOP standard-bearer came out on top of Stevenson, the Democratic candidate, and the States Rights Party.

That year, the Democrats finished third.

A check of the voting record shows that Tensas, Madison and Lincoln are the only parishes in the New-Star—World circulation area that have refused the national Democratic Party in four consecutive elections.

They went along with the area in the Dixiecrat sweep of 1948; rebelled at Stevenson in 1952 and voted for Eisenhower; and in 1956, Lincoln and Tensas went Republican while Madison voted States Rights; then in 1960 Lincoln and Tensas again went Republican, but Madison clung stubbornly to the States Rights symbol — the unpledged electors.

Here is how the Fifth District has voted for President since 1948:

1948 — States Rights, 21,694; Democrat, 13,570; Republican, 3821; Progressive, 90.

1952 — Democrat, 33,085; Republican, 23,316.

1956 — Republican, 20,916; States Rights, 16,480; Democrat, 15,032.

1960—Republican, 27,397; Unpledged Electors, 16,279; Democrat, 15,632.

LaSalle and Winn Parishes have only gone Democrat once since 1948 — that in the 1952 Stevenson-Eisenhower battle.

Madison, which if given a choice between a Republican and a Democrat, will pick a States Righter every time, is rivaled in political maverick status in the district only by West Carroll Parish.

The Republican ticket has not carried West Carroll in elections dating back to 1948, and that string might go back to the Civil War if records were available.

The only time the Republican Party has not finished dead last in West Carroll Parish was in 1948 — and that year it beat out Progressive Henry Wallace, but nevertheless finished third.

But, the records show, a West Carroll voter would pick a States Rights ticket over a national Democratic ticket. However, the signs of the times are upon the parish. Although the Republican Party finished third in 1960 there, it was a very good third.

The Democrats carried the parish in 1960 — the only parish they did carry in the News-Star—World circulation area. The vote was 784 for the Democrats, 780 for the Unpledged Electors and 742 for the Republicans.

In 1960, the Unpledged Elector slate dug deeply into Republican strength. But there is no third party ticket this year. It will be the first time since 1952 that a Democratic slate and a Republican slate will meet face to face with no States Rights spoiler to interfere.

A look at the 1960 returns is revealing. The Republican, Richard Nixon, carried seven parishes, but the Unpledged Electors took six, with one going to the Democrats. Counting Winn and LaSalle, the Republican victory would be nine to six over the Democrats.

Ouachita, the largest parish in numbers of voters in the Fifth District, seems to set a norm for the entire area. In a way, it looks like as Ouachita goes, so goes the Fifth District. It has consistently gone with the winner (in the district at least).

In 1948, it went for the Strom Thurmond Dixiecrat ticket with 4,848 votes. It gave Truman and the Democrats 4,213, Republican Thomas Dewey 1,729 and Progressive Henry Wallace 12.

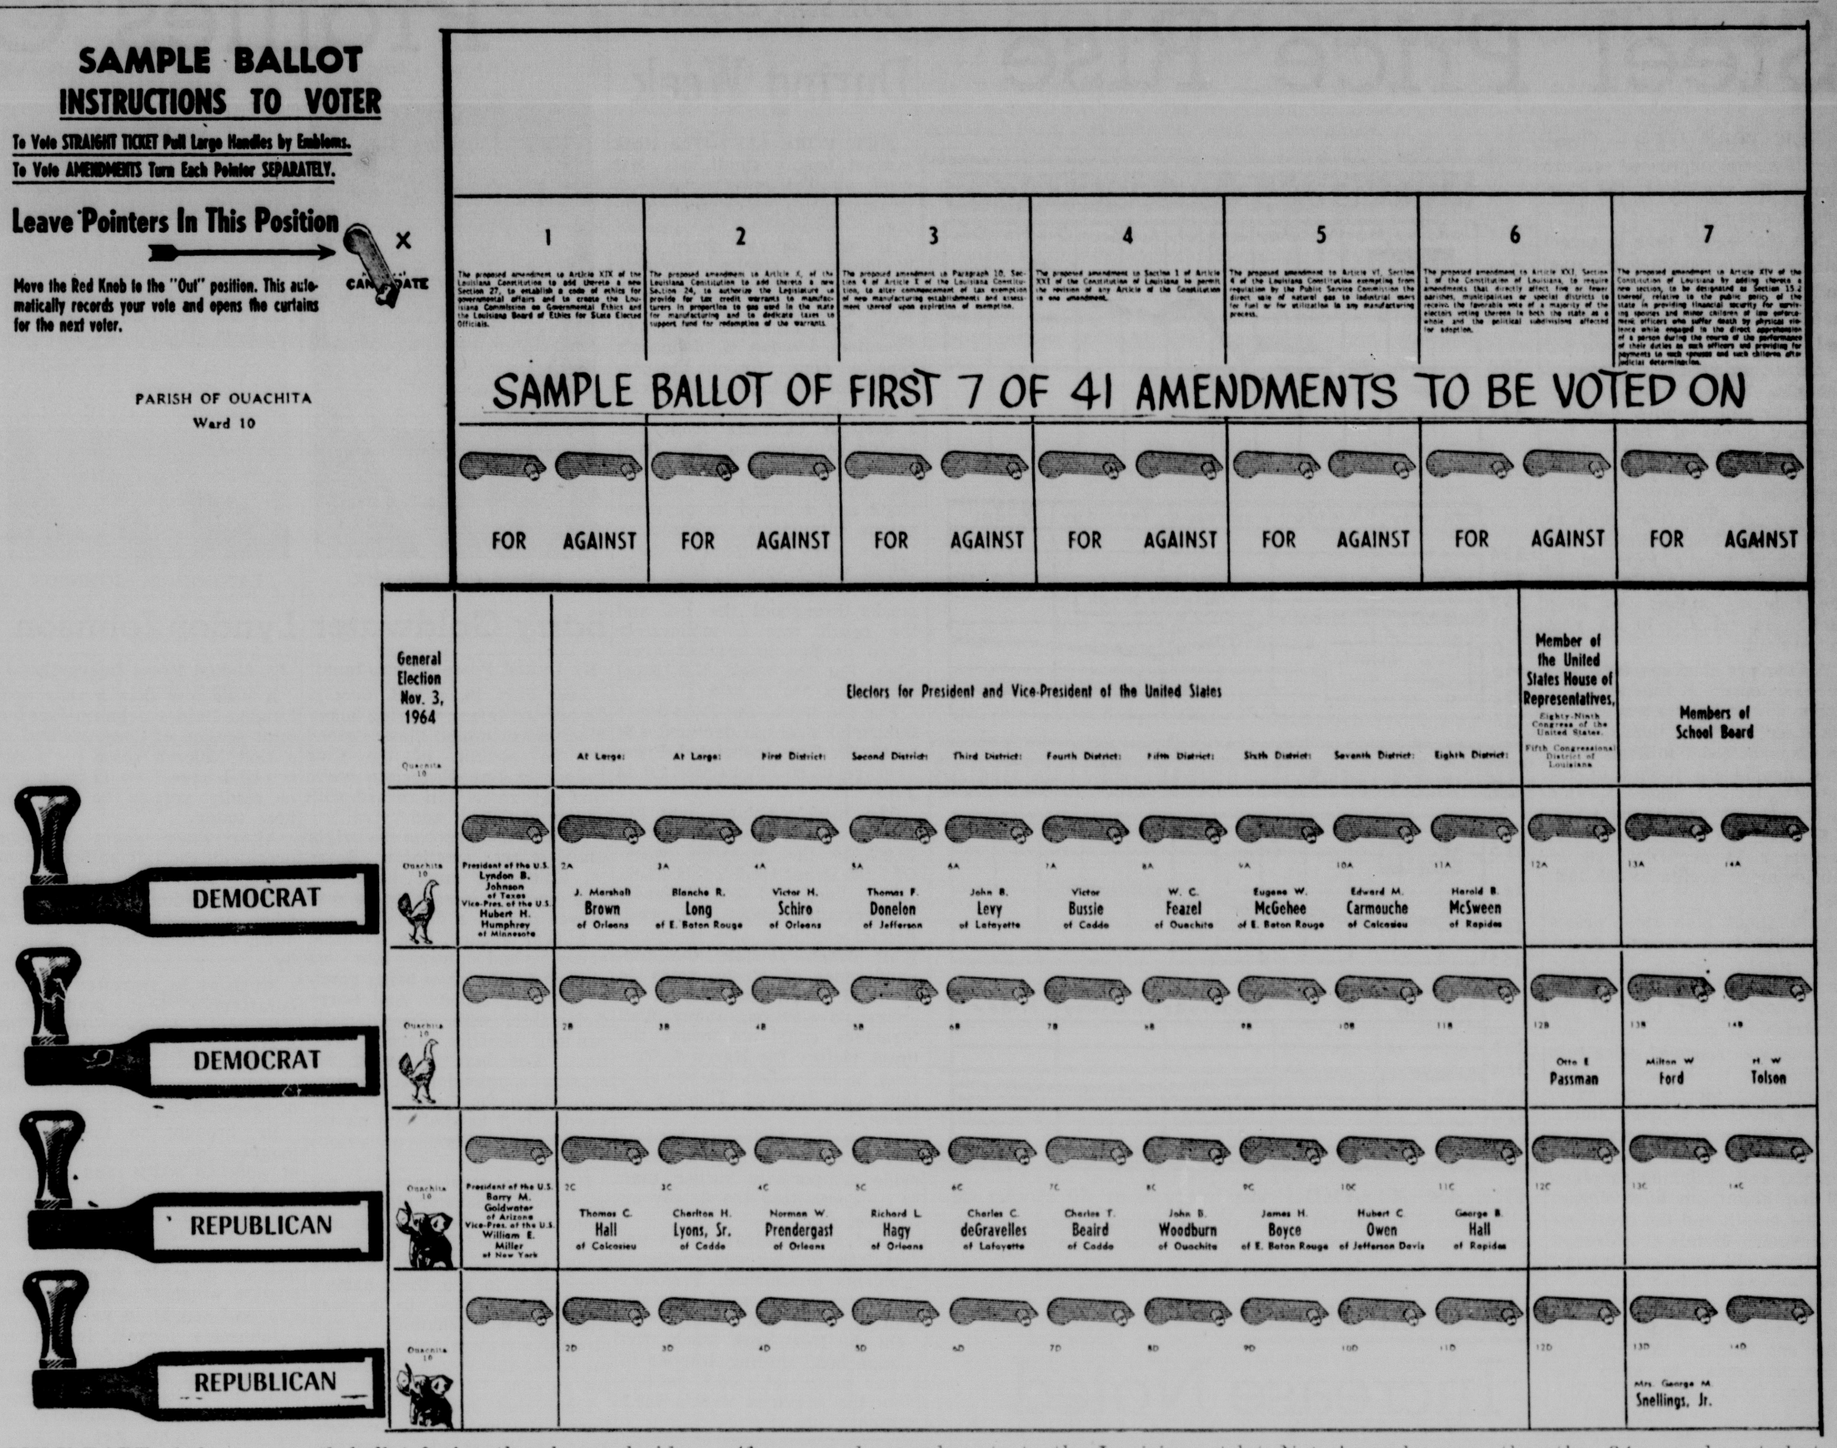

In 1952, the parish was "Madly for Adlai," but liked Ike also. It was close. The final vote was Stevenson 9,775 and Eisenhower 8,842.

By 1956, the direction seemed set. Republican Eisenhower, with the Korean War halted, chalked up 7,094 votes, Stevenson got 4,372 and the States Rights party gathered in 3,692.

Then, in 1960, it was practically no contest. The voters had forgotten granddaddy." They gave Nixon a resounding vote of 10,525. He was trailed badly by Kennedy who got 5,202. Then came the Unpledged Electors with 3,241.

If granddaddy would indeed turn over in his grave, 1960 must have been one of the most restless graveyard years ever in the Fifth District. Out of 59,848 votes cast, the Democratic Party captured only 15,632 — and finished third.

Voting Republican in 1960 were Catahoula, Jackson, Lincoln, Morehouse, Ouachita, Tensas and Union in the Fifth District, plus LaSalle and Winn. Going Unpledged Electors were Caldwell, Concordia, East Carroll, Franklin, Madison, and Richland. And, West Carroll went Democratic.

ONLY PART of the mammoth ballot facing the electorate Nov. 3 is pictured here. In addition to the election of a President and Vice President, voters must decide on 41 proposed amendments to the Louisiana constitution. This partial ballot is for Ward 10 of Ouachita Parish and each ward will have its own ballot. Not shown here are the other 34 amendments but in other respects, this is what the general election ballot will look like.

Captured by the Republican ticket 1956 were Catahoula, Concordia, Jackson, Lincoln, Morehouse, Ouachita, Tensas. The States Rights Party got Caldwell, Madison, Union and West Carroll. Voting Democratic were East Carroll, Franklin, and Richland. LaSalle went States Rights and Winn voted Republican.

Stevenson won all the parishes in 1952 except Tensas, Madison and Lincoln.

The Dixiecrats carried every parish in 1948.

Statewide, the Fifth District drifted away from the mainstream of Louisiana voting practices in 1960.

The state and the district were together in 1948 for the Dixiecrats, as Thurmond carried both. They were together again in 1952 as both were carried by Stevenson, and again in 1956 when Eisenhower was the popular choice in the Fifth District as well as the state.

But the breach came with the 1960 returns. The state voted big for Kennedy. It gave him 407,339 votes to 230,980 for Nixon and 169,972 for the fading States Rights hope of unpledged electors.

And there's the rub. Political prognosticators might note that historically, a candidate, whether he be national or state, could run top-heavy in north Louisiana and pick up enough in more populous south Louisiana to win. Not so in '60. Nixon won big in the Fifth District, dropped the state by a wide margin.

Even given the whole of the Unpledged Elector vote in 1960, Nixon still could not have carried the state. He would have lost 407,339 to 400,552.

The effects of that 1960 campaign could have marked a turning point as it were, in north-south Louisiana voting trends. But this can only be measured when the tabulations are completed Tuesday night.

Based on the last four presidential elections the Fifth District and the state have swung apart in their national political thinking.

Is this the year the pendelum swings back — or has the trend been set?

Whatever the results are on the national scope, a political statistician could go crazy trying to figure out the Louisiana returns.

It figures.

LBJ Advises No Steel Price Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — President Johnson expressed concern during the week over the prospect of rising prices.

For the second time in recent months, he indicated to the steel industry that he would not be happy if steel prices were boosted.

Aides said the President thought that sharply higher steel company profits, plus the growing threat of cheaper foreign steel, would make it hard for the industry to justify price increases.

Top steel executives such as U.S. Steel's Roger Blough and Bethlehem Steel's Edmund F. Martin have complained that the industry makes too little money in relation to its vast investment.

As the pre-election controversy developed, Bethlehem, the nation's second-largest steel producer, reported third-quarter earnings of $36.2 million, more than double its profits in the July-August-September period last year. Earlier in the week, U.S. Steel, the biggest producer, reports a 14 per cent rise in third-quarter profits to $55 million.

Talk about high steel prices has bubbled up strongly in recent weeks. Some increases have followed but these affect only about 5 per cent of the market.

There was renewed price talk during the week, too, in the nonferrous metals industry, where prices of copper, aluminum, lead, zinc and tin have gone up in response to brisk demand and shrinking supplies. All but aluminum have moved up this month and the president of Reynolds Metals Co., Joseph N. McConnell, predicted aluminum increases before long.

Johnson twice during the week called for moderation by labor and industry in wage and price demands, to keep the economy from overheating. The nation's business expansion is now heading into its 45th straight month.

Inflationary concern was also voiced by the nation's bankers, meeting in Miami. It is too easy today, said the American Bankers Association, for the average man to borrow money and obtain other credit. The ample money supply may start buyers outbidding each other for goods and services, thereby raising prices. The bankers urged a tightening of credit through the federal reserve system.

The automobile industry, meanwhile, inched ahead toward full production as General Motors workers voted to accept a three-year contract. Still idle were about 15 of GM's 23 car assembly plants where plant-level agreements remained to be worked out.

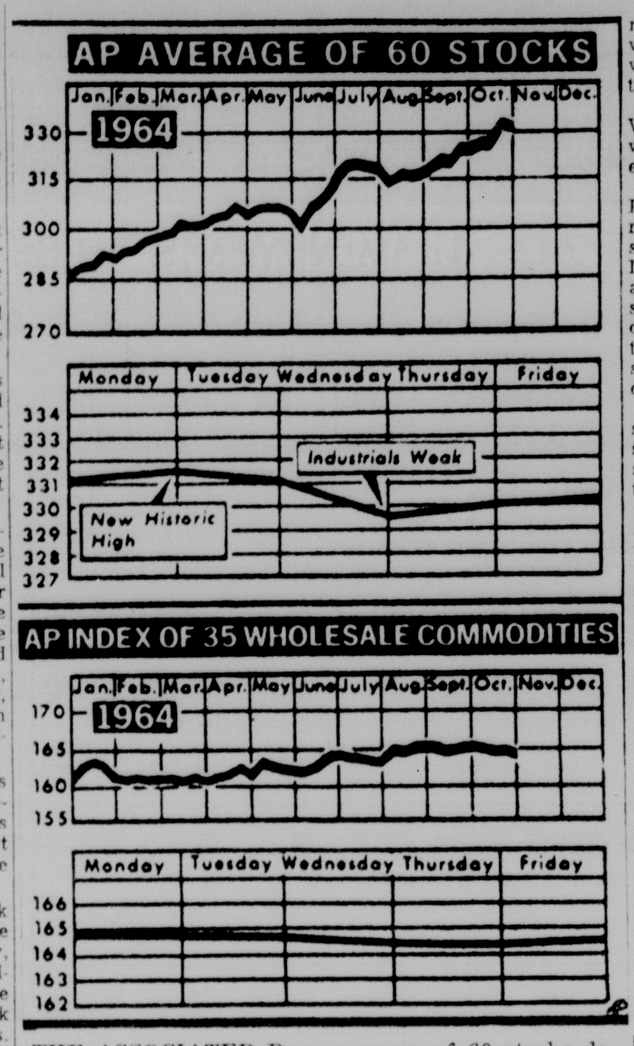

GM's return to limited production boosted the nation's automobile output to 113,603 units during the week, compared with 89,402 this week before. Last year the strike-free auto industry turned out 175,560 units in the comparable week.

Labor problems also remained to be worked out at Ford, the No. 2 automaker, which was handed a Nov. 6 deadline by the United Auto Workers Union for settlement of issues at more than 20 key plants. Ford and the UAW reached a national contract agreement last month without a strike, but plant-level talks have dragged on since.

Ford was among more than a score of major companies that checked in during the week with sharply higher earnings. The automobile company's profits picked up 14 per cent in the third quarter over the same period last year. The nation's largest petroleum company, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, reported record profits for the first nine months of this year of $799 million.

Third-quarter earnings of the Pennsylvania Railroad soared to $18.6 million from $500,000 in the July - August - September period last year. Other profit gains for the quarter were reported by National Steel Corp., 50 per cent; General Telephone & Electronics Corp., 27 per cent, and Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing Co., 11 per cent.

Steel production climbed during the week to its highest level since May 1963 as the industry roared toward a record production year. Steel mills poured 2,621,000 tons in that week, up .9 per cent from the previous week.

THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks declined to 330.2 from 331.2 of a week ago. Led by livestock the commodity index moved lower the past week to 164.6 from 164.9. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

Stock Market Losses Small During Week

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market took a small loss last week as Wall Street was enwrapped in pre-election caution.

If not for a sharp loss Wednesday, stocks probably would have established a moderate gain on average.

The most important item was President Lyndon B. Johnson's reported concern about the possibility of a price rise for steel. In addition, U.S. Steel reported a drop in earnings from the second quarter to the third quarter. Wheeling Steel omitted its dividend on common stock and deferred its payment on the cumulative preferred.

This news prompted a sharp selloff which spread from the steels to many other leading stocks throughout the list and the result was a moderately steep decline in market averages. For the week, U.S. Steel was down 3⅜ at 58¼.

For the week, the Dow Jones industrial average declined 4.54 to 873.08. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell 1.0 to 330.2.

The week's volume was 23,154,970 shares compared with 23,905,310 the previous week. Of 1,530 issues traded this week, 739 declined and 639 advanced.

Uncertainty about the presidential elections also overhung Wall Street. Despite the preponderance of straw votes in favor of President Lyndon B. Johnson's election, many Wall Streeters could not forget the upset victory for Harry S. Truman in 1948 when the pre-election polls favored Thomas E. Dewey.

It seemed to many traders and investors better to stand aside temporarily rather than to be committed too deeply on election day.

Bond prices advanced as uncertainty over international problems diminished. Treasury bond prices pressed upward sharply, then held steady.

On the New York Stock Exchange bond trading dropped to a par value of $46.8 million from the previous week's $49.3 million.

DRY CONDITIONS

Increase Noted In Oil Activity

Drying conditions caused a considerable upswing in activity of the Monroe Oil and Gas District during the past week.

There were 34 new locations, according to the weekly report issued by District Manager Duncan S. Cook. This compared with only 14 for the previous week.

One of these was located in the Cheniere Field of Ouachita Parish.

Concordia led the way, with 11 new locations listed; followed closely by Catahoula with ten. LaSalle Parish had five, Rapides three, and one each for Franklin, Tensas, Winn and Avoyelles.

The weekly field report of oil and gas activity is compiled by the Monroe District office of the Louisiana State Department of Conservation.

Ten wells were completed and-or gauged in the 15 Northeast Louisiana Parishes. Two completions were listed for Ouachita Parish — Primos O and G Company's Oaklawn Realty No. F-1 and Stubbs No. C-3.

Thirty-nine wells were reported active.

One recompletion was noted in Rapides Parish at the North Big Island Field. McGold and Watson's Paul No. 1 was recompleted at a depth of 5350 feet.

Twelve wells were abandoned, while 56 were reported inactive.

Cotton Futures Market Closes On Steady Note

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures traded on the New York Cotton Exchange were mostly steady to higher this week despite a $1 a bale dip in the July delivery of domestic futures.

At the close on Friday, domestic futures were down $1 to up 15 cents a bale from a week earlier, and world futures were unchanged to $1.50 a bale higher. Prices had been irregular in the preceding week.

Commission house buying and selling continued to dominate in light trading. There was some spot house switching in world futures. There was little evidence of outside interests in the market.

During the week, the Census Bureau reported gaining of 6,232,000 bales through Oct. 18, of 1,673,000 bales less than in the like period a year ago. Entries into the loan also were running behind a year ago, apparently reflecting a lag in the harvesting rate.

The Cotton Exchange Service Bureau estimated exports in the week ended Tuesday at 78,000 bales in the comparable week of 1963. Through Oct. 27, exports totaled 429,000 bales as against 924,000 bales in the corresponding period of last season.

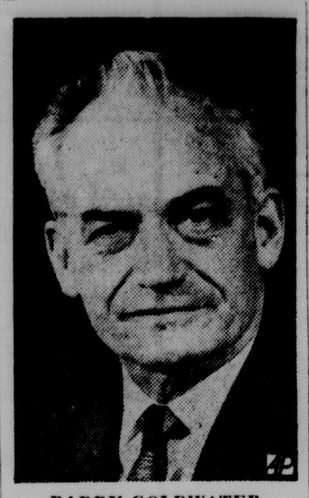

Engineer Sets Talk At Tech

Harold E. McMichael, a specialist engineer with Leeds & Northrup Company, Philadelphia, will discuss a new technique for controlling steam boilers at the 13th Annual Instrument Conference conducted by the School of Engineering of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston, at 4 p.m. on Wednesday, November 4.

McMichael, an expert in the application of electronic control systems for regulating steam power plants, has entitled his talk "A Direct-Energy-Balance Control System for High Pressure Steam Generators."

BARRY GOLDWATER

Barry Goldwater

By United Press International

Last July 16, a tall, deeply-tanned westerner wearing heavy black hornrimmed glasses stood at the podium of the Cow Palace in San Francisco while that cavernous hall rocked with shouts of "ole' " and "viva."

As he stood erect in the bright glare of the spotlights, Barry M. Goldwater must have felt like pinching himself to be sure it was not all a dream.

A year earlier, the political experts had given him no chance whatever of being nominated for president. And Barry Goldwater, with characteristic candor, heartily agreed with them. Yet here he was, accepting a presidential nomination which the Republican convention had handed him on the first ballot, without a serious contest.

It was a great moment, not only for the 55-year-old senator from Arizona, but also for millions of Republican conservatives who had been waiting since 1936 to see their party's standard entrusted to a man who was not ashamed to call himself a right-winger, and who promised the voters "a choice, not an echo."

Since that hot July evening, Barry Goldwater has crossed and crisscrossed America, keeping his pledge to his GOP supporters to conduct a fighting campaign. Despite public opinion polls which showed him trailing Lyndon B. Johnson by a huge margin, he never once flagged in his determination to represent to the American people a "bona fide conservative option."

As spelled out in his campaign speeches, this means government doing less for (and to) the people, leaving them free to make more of their own decisions and bear more of their own burdens. He cited the new civil rights law — which he voted against — as an example of excessive federal intervention in matters which, he said, are best left to state or private initiative.

Goldwater also called for a tougher line against international Communism, with less talk about a peaceful accommodation between the two power blocs and more emphasis on a free world "victory."

Goldwater was born on New Year's Day, 1909, in Phoenix, Ariz. His grandfather was a Jewish merchant who immigrated to the United States from Poland, and founded a prosperous business in the raw Arizona territory. His mother was a devout Episcopalian and his father had joined the Episcopal Church at the time of their marriage.

Goldwater was a star athlete in high school but not much of a student, flunking a couple of courses and in general displaying little interest in books. After one year of college, he abandoned the quest for formal education and went to work in his family's department store.

His very first race (if you discount a term on the non-partisan Phoenix City Council) was for the U. S. Senate in 1952. He ran against Sen. Ernest McFarland, then Democratic leader of the Senate, and defeated him handily.

From the day he arrived in Washington, he aligned himself with the most conservative wing of the Republican party.

In his campaign for the 1964 nomination, Goldwater was helped by divorce and remarriage which eliminated his chief rival, New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, and by the inability of other opponents to get together in any kind of "stop Goldwater" movement until it was much too late.

Goldwater has been married since 1934 to the former Peggy Johnson of Muncie, Ind. They have four children and four grandchildren, and live in a hilltop home outside Phoenix.

CHIANG'S BIRTHDAY

TAIPEI (UPI) — Nationalist Chinese President Chiang Kai-shek celebrated his 77th birthday Saturday at a quiet family gathering at a resort in southern Formosa.

Despite Chiang's order against formal observance of the anniversary, there were meetings, parties and pledges of loyalty to him.

In Taipei, thousands of people called at the presidential office to express good wishes. Others showed up at government offices to sign books wishing the long-time leader a happy birthday.

LYNDON B. JOHNSON

Lyndon Johnson

By United Press International

A little less than a year ago, Lyndon Baines Johnson faced a joint session of Congress and in a taut, solemn voice declared: "All I have I would have given gladly not to be standing here today."

After three years as vice president, the tall, self-confident Texan had been catapulted into the nation's highest office when an assassin's bullets cut down President John F. Kennedy.

Much as he regretted the circumstances that made him President, Johnson from his first hour displayed an affinity for the office, and a readiness to take on its crushing burdens of responsibility.

He brought to the world's toughest job a formidable array of political skills and insights developed over three decades as a congressional leader. These were quickly put to use in pushing through Congress a number of major items of legislation which President Kennedy had sought in vain.

Johnson's biggest legislative victory — a paradoxical one for the first southerner to occupy the White House in a century — was the enactment of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, most sweeping charter of Negro rights since Reconstruction.

He also won from Congress an $11 billion tax cut, a far-reaching "war on poverty" program, and bills to aid education and conservation.

His first major crisis on the international front arose when Communist torpedo boats from North Viet Nam attacked U.S. destroyers in the Gulf of Tonkin. Johnson ordered U.S. Navy planes to retaliate with a bombing raid on the North Vietnamese bases.

Johnson was born on Aug. 27, 1907, on the family ranch near Johnson City, Tex. His forebears on both sides had been active in politics, and it came naturally to "LBJ" to enter a political career after graduation from Southwest Texas State Teachers College.

He began as administrative assistant to a Texas congressman. By 1937, he had his own seat in the House of Representatives. He served with the Navy in the Pacific during World War II, and then returned to Congress. In 1948, he was elected to the Senate.

He quickly won admission to the Senate's inner circle and by 1950 had been named Democratic whip. Two years later, he became Democratic leader—a post in which he wielded vast power over legislation.

By 1960, Johnson was one of the best-known and most influential Democrats in the land. He sought the presidential nomination, but lost out to Kennedy who then asked him to become his running mate.

He has been married since 1934 to the former Claudia Alta Taylor of Marshall, Tex., better known to millions as "Lady Bird." They have two daughters, Lynda and Luci.

Student Bodies Leaders To Meet At Area College

RUSTON (Special) — Deans and presidents of the student bodies of colleges and universities in Louisiana will meet at Louisiana Tech today and Monday, E. S. Foster, dean of men, announced.

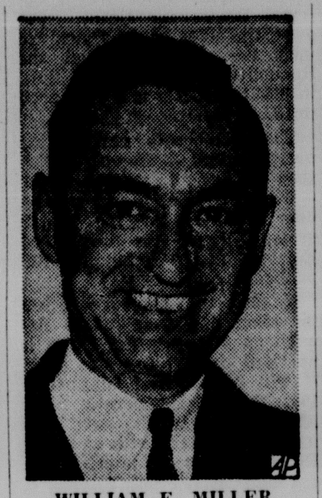

The Tech Student Senate will be host for the presidents of the student bodies of colleges.

The sessions will be informal in order to create an atmosphere more conducive to the discussion of problems. It will also serve as a meeting to discuss state activities for the Southern Universities Student Government Assn. in Louisiana. Tech's Senate president, John David Stewart of Shreveport, holds the office of vice chairman for the state.

The conference will open with a banquet and meeting at the Holiday Inn Sunday. A meeting will be held Monday morning and the closing session with the deans will be Monday afternoon.

The personnel deans meet every year. Dean Foster is acting chairman for this session.

"The organization is unique in that it has no officers," said Foster. The deans' meetings will be held in the formal lounge of Hutcheson Hall.

WILLIAM E. MILLER

William Miller

By United Press International

"This administration goes from crisis to crisis and remedy to remedy, each crisis producing a new remedy and each remedy producing a new crisis."

"Today, government has one hand in everybody's business and the other hand in everybody's pocket."

These are the words of William E. Miller, Republican candidate for vice president and disbeliever in the theory that there is no place for wit in politics.

The dapper, 50-year-old New York congressman has a highly-developed taste for the political punchline with plenty of pepper. In fact, his reputation as a stump speaker who could "drive Lyndon Johnson nuts," reportedly was a factor in his choice for the second spot on the GOP ticket.

Whatever effect Miller's speeches have had on the President, they have produced campaign crowds for the barnstorming vice presidential candidate, who went into the field as the least known of the four top aspirants.

The seven-term congressman from upstate New York has handsomely filled several needs in the Arizona senator's campaign.

With Goldwater representing the wide open spaces of the west, Miller, a Lockport, N. Y., lawyer, gave the ticket geographical balance. At the same time he was free of the "me-too" label applied to many big city Eastern Republicans by Goldwater enthusiasts.

In addition, Miller was a bridge between the professionals of the Republican party in its pre-Goldwater period and the new organization. As outgoing chairman of the Republican National Committee, Miller had invaluable experience in the often ignored but vitally important organizational details of the party apparatus.

Finally, Miller supplied two "stoppers" for the Goldwater campaign. A Roman Catholic, his selection was seen as a guard against the possibility that President Johnson would choose a vice presidential candidate of that faith. Also, as the son of a working-class family that never saw luxury, Miller provided a counter-point to Goldwater's inherited wealth and affluent upbringing.

Miller's personal story has some elements of Horatio Alger. The son of a factory janitor, he worked his way through Notre Dame University and Albany Law School. His law career was helped along by appointment as a U. S. commissioner for the Western District of New York in 1938, and he practiced at Lockport until he was drafted into the Army in 1942.

Miller served through 1945, first in the Military Intelligence branch and then as an officer in the Judge Advocate General's office.

Back in New York, Miller got his start in politics from Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, who appointed him district attorney of Niagara County. That fall, Dewey was upset in his second try for the presidency, but his protege won the first in a series of election victories. Miller was elected district attorney twice and in 1950 stepped up to the congressional seat he won seven times.

Early in 1960, after an intramural party battle, Miller was named chairman of the House Republican campaign committee, and was credited with helping bring 44 new GOP congressmen to Washington for the 87th Congress despite the victory of the Democratic presidential slate.

With that bright spot in an otherwise gray Republican outlook on his record, Miller was quickly promoted to the chairmanship of the National Committee to succeed Sen. Thruston B. Morton, R-Ky.

During the Kennedy administration and the short Johnson tenure since the assassination, Miller found plenty of targets for his political needle. He once called Kennedy "the foundering father of the new frontier."

As for Johnson, he found it possible to combine both the President's driving and the Bobby Baker case in his comment about the economy under the Democratic administration: "Only two businesses have benefited. . .the seat belt business in Texas and the sale of paint in Washington for white-washing investigations."

HUBERT H. HUMPHREY

H. Humphrey

By United Press International

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey once was introduced to a delegation of Minnesota businessmen with the admonition: "Now remember, if you speak for more than five minutes, you'll lose every vote in the room."

Humphrey, then a newly-minted senator with a reputation for long-winded liberalism, took the podium, looked over the audience of Chamber of Commerce delegates and began: "I haven't got a vote in this room anyway." And as the story goes, he proceeded to give the businessmen the full benefit of his views, which took a good deal longer than five minutes.

It is unlikely that the Hubert Humphrey who carries the Democratic vice presidential standard this year would come on that strong before any audience. The new Humphrey tries to find an identification with his audiences instead of differences. And the reports are that he has had some success, even in the hostile reaches of the race-conscious South and oil-rich Southwest.

But there is no question of a change in Humphrey's basic views of the problems that face the United States and the world. He is a proud, aggressive liberal, eager to enlist converts and ready to debate critics. He entered politics in the late days of Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal, came to leadership during John F. Kennedy's shortened New Frontier and now hopes to be a principal architect of Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society.

Humphrey first gained national attention in 1948, when as mayor of Minneapolis he forced a showdown on civil rights in the Democratic National Convention.

His successful battle for a stronger rights plank won him the affection of liberals and the enmity of southerners, who bolted the convention and the party that year.

The same issue, this time propelling the strongest civil rights legislation in a century, put Humphrey in a position this year that had much to do with his choice for the second spot on the ticket by Johnson.

The 53-year-old pharmacist-college professor turned politician literally learned his liberal politics at his late father's knee. The senior Hubert Horatio Humphrey was a pharmacist whose concerns ranged far beyond the South Dakota grain crops in a day of midwestern isolation.

The son became a prize-winning debater in the Doland, S.D., schools he attended after the family moved from his birthplace of Wallace, S.D. He went on to the University of Minnesota in 1931, but after two years had to return to Huron, S.D., where the family had moved, to help in the store. When he returned to college, it was to the Denver (Colo.) College of Pharmacy to prepare himself to follow in his father's profession.

But he had caught the political bug in 1935 and returned in 1937 to the University of Minnesota to major in political science and graduate with honors. Now married to his Huron fiancee, Muriel Buck, he went on to Louisiana State University for graduate work and teaching. He continued to teach in the early years of World War II at Minnesota and a small St. Paul College, Macalester. He worked for several government agencies during World War II, but was turned down by the armed forces. In 1943, he ran for mayor of Minneapolis, and lost. Two years later, he won the office and began making a reform record that made him the Minnesota Democratic-Farmer Labor Party's 1948 candidate for the Senate.

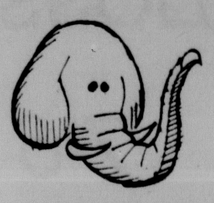

He won that election against the respected Joseph W. Ball by 270,000 votes. He has had little difficulty winning re-election twice since.

ANTIQUE CAR TOUR

LONDON (UPI)—More than 300 Americans were arriving from Paris Saturday to attend the Royal Automobile Club's commemoration run for antique cars.

The Americans, members of the Antique Automobile Club of America and their families, have been on a two-week tour of Europe.

For the first time in several years, however, there will be no U.S. entries in the run which starts from Hyde Park Sunday.

Democrats Seem Assured Of Holding Senate Control

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrats seem certain of retaining control of the Senate even though they will have just about three times as many seats at stake in the Nov. 3 election as the Republicans.

Campaign strategists of both parties are in agreement on this, although they foresee some extremely close races that could be tipped either way by the Johnson-Goldwater battle for the presidency.

The present lineup in the Senate is 66 Democrats and 34 Republicans, counting the recent switch of South Carolina's Strom Thurmond from Democratic to Republican ranks.

Of the 35 Senate seats at stake in the election, 26 now are held by Democrats and only nine by Republicans.

This would appear to give the Republicans an advantage. But for them to capture control of the 100-member Senate, they would have to pick up 17 seats. This just doesn't seem to be in the cards.

Democrats are talking about adding from two to six seats to their already heavy majority. GOP spokesmen, however, contend the outcome could be just the reverse.

The Senate contests that have attracted the most attention are in the big states such as New York, Ohio, and California. And with all the cross-currents at work in the campaign, no one professes to be sure how they will turn out.

Democrats contend their best bet for picking up a Senate seat is in Maryland, where the incumbent Republican, 70-year-old J. Glenn Beall, is opposed by Joseph D. Tydings, 36, stepson of the late Sen. Millard Tydings.

In addition, the Democrats claim their candidate in Hawaii, Thomas P. Gill, has a good chance of unseating GOP Sen. Hiram Fong, the first member of the Senate of Asian ancestry.

On the other hand, Republicans are banking on snatching seats from the Democrats in Ohio and Oklahoma.

In Ohio, Robert Taft Jr., son of the late Senate GOP leader, is running against Sen. Stephen M. Young, 75, a veteran Democratic campaigner.

GOP hopes in Oklahoma are pinned on Bud Wilkinson, who for 17 years was the University of Oklahoma football coach. His Democratic opponent is Fred R. Harris, 33, a state senator.

Wilkinson and Harris are battling for the remaining two years of the term of the late Democratic Sen. Robert S. Kerr, who died Jan. 1, 1963. Former Oklahoma Gov. J. Howard Edmondson, appointed to Kerr's seat, was defeated by Harris in the Democratic primary last spring.

Of all the Senate races, the one that probably has stirred the most interest nationally is in New York where Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating is being challenged by former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Keating's refusal to endorse GOP presidential candidate Barry Goldwater, the carpetbagger charge against Kennedy — these are just two among the many factors that have bystanders puzzled about the outcome of this race.

In Massachusetts, another brother of the late President John F. Kennedy, Sen. Edward M. (Ted) Kennedy, is regarded as a sure winner even though he has been hospitalized since being injured in a plane crash last June.

Pierre Salinger, President Kennedy's former press secretary, is reported by Republicans to be slipping after taking the lead in his race against Republican George Murphy, onetime Hollywood song and dance man, for a Senate seat from California.

Salinger was appointed to the Senate last July after the death of Democratic Clair Engle. He already had won the nomination.

Pennsylvania's Republican senator, Hugh Scott, is generally given the edge over Genevieve Blatt, who captured the Democratic senatorial nomination over opposition of the state party organization.

But Democrats contend Miss Blatt, Pennsylvania's secretary of internal affairs, could win if President Johnson runs strong in the state. Scott has endorsed Goldwater but conducted a campaign independently of the national GOP ticket.

A Democratic senatorial campaign aide said that next to Ohio and Oklahoma, their "most sensitive spot" is Wyoming, where Sen. Gale McGee is running for re-election against John S. Wold, a geologist and Goldwater man.

However, a GOP strategist seemed less hopeful of unseating McGee than he did Democratic Senator Frank Moss of Utah and possibly Howard W. Cannon of Nevada and Ralph Yarborough of Texas.

In Texas, Johnson's home state, Yarborough is locked in what is regarded as an increasingly tight race with George Bush, son of former Republican Sen. Prescott Bush of Connecticut.

The feeling seems to be that in the Rocky Mountain and Southwest area much will depend on the outcome of the Johnson-Goldwater battle. The Democrats contend they have a good chance of beating GOP. Sen. Edwin L. Mechem of New Mexico, but Republican campaign aides dispute this.

Tennessee is the only state in which two senators are to be elected Nov. 3. Democrat Albert Gore is running for re-election to a full six-year term, with Dan H. Kuykendall, a Memphis businessman, as his Republican opponent.

The other race is for the remaining two years of the term to which the late Sen. Estes Kefauver was elected. Pitted against each other in this race are Democratic Rep. Ross Bass and Howard Baker, Jr., son-in-law of Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois.

Republicans maintain they may capture both of these seats if Goldwater runs strong in Tennessee, but Democratic spokesmen assert they are confident of victories for both Gore and Bass.

The only senator who can be positive of re-election is Mississippi Democrat John Stennis. He has no opponent.

REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

South Generally Seems To Lean Toward Goldwater

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS
World Washington Staff

WASHINGTON — Where will the 128 electoral votes of the eleven former Confederate States land on Tuesday?

This is the old Gibraltar of the Democratic party. No one sat up to await the always slow Presidential election returns of States so reliably regular in party allegiance. Today there is not a Gibraltar State in the 11. That either Presidential candidate will get them all is no longer expected, if it ever was, any time since the two major parties nominated their tickets at San Francisco and Atlantic City.

The biggest claim of Senator Barry Goldwater to the Republican Presidential nomination at San Francisco was his Dixie prospects. No nominee except Goldwater could expect to do well in the South, and Southern States were necessary if a Republican victory was to be fashioned in the nation, they said. Goldwater management claimed and still maintain they will get at least 100 of the 128 Southern electoral votes, a highly dubious optimism which Goldwater himself does not share. Democrats claim half of the 128 as a minimum.

Greatest interest, of course, is in Texas with its 25 electoral votes. It is the home State of President Johnson. It is also the Southern State which a year ago looked like the most solid Goldwater State. It probably still would be but for the fact that Texas never before has had one who was a native son and still a citizen at the head of a national ticket. President Eisenhower was born in Texas but his parents took him to Kansas in his infancy.

Texas was one of the close States in 1960, Kennedy taking it over Nixon by only 46,233 votes. Democrats claim it this time, some with confidence and some with uneasiness. Those who are uneasy say they fear apathy and overconfidence will keep many Johnson votes away from the voting places. Polls and surveys say Johnson will take it handily. The Goldwater forces seem better organized than those of Johnson. G.O.P. just might win a Senate seat, giving Texas two Republicans in the United States Senate.

Georgia, with 12 electoral votes, may furnish the real squeaker. It was the real Southern beauty State for the Democrats in 1960, Kennedy carrying it over Nixon by 184,166. It is the only Southern State which has never gone Republican in its history, voting Democratic in all the 25 national elections since 1856. It looks close this time and both parties think they have the edge. Some observers say an objective view of it is that the margin will not be more than 25,000 either way, may be decided by a majority as 15,000.

Georgia vote may be around 950,000, with whites casting 700,000 presidential ballots and Negroes 250,000. The Negro vote is expected to go solidly for President. Johnson.

Florida, which this year has 14 electoral votes, has gone Republican more often than any other Southern State, 7 times in 25 national elections. In modern days it went for Hoover in 1928, for Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956 and for Nixon in 1960. Nixon's majority was 46,776. Both sides say it is close, probably with a slight Goldwater edge.

"Abnormally confused" is a term which has been applied to the outlook in North Carolina, which except that it voted for Herbert Hoover in 1928, has been reliably Democratic in every Presidential election this century. Kennedy's majority over Nixon was 57,716.

There is inner Democratic conflict, a lingering effect of the North Carolina Democratic gubernatorial primary. Schism appears to divide the Democrats into three groups: those who back the national ticket, those who oppose it and those who do not choose to commit themselves. There are 100 counties in North Carolina. The populous Piedmont and the western mountain counties are two areas where the Republicans have made a good showing in the last three national elections. But it is an increased vote in the coastal plains of eastern North Carolina that the Republicans hope will put the State in the Goldwater column. Democrats and Republicans both predict victory.

Tennessee, which strayed from its Democratic tradition to vote for Harding in 1920, Hoover in 1928, Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956 and Nixon in 1960, could be another close one. Nixon's majority over Kennedy was a sizeable 75,124, the largest Nixon had in any Dixie State. Somebody is going to be very badly fooled in Tennessee, for both Republicans and Democrats lay confident claims to it. Contests for both Tennessee seats in the United States Senate are drawing a big share of the interest in the election.

Virginia, which has gone Republican in the last three Presidential elections, is another in which doubt has built on the outcome. Nixon led Kennedy there by 42,194. There has been a big rush by Negroes to register, and there is no Virginia poll tax in a national election for the first time.

South Carolina, which Kennedy carried over Nixon by only 9,571 majority in 1960, appears close again. In the Goldwater camp are United States Senator Strom Thurmond, Representative Albert W. Watson, and James F. Byrnes, who has been a United Representative, United States Senator, member of the United States Supreme Court, "assistant" President under Franklin D. Roosevelt, Secretary of State and Governor.

CLAIMS

United States Senator Olin D. Johnston is leading the fight for the Johnson-Humphrey ticket. Johnston's strategy has been to attempt to blunt the civil rights issue and attack Goldwater on economic issues. Goldwater has been rated in the lead, but Senator Johnston claims its 8 electoral votes for President Johnson.

Arkansas, with 6 electoral votes, smallest of any Southern State went for Kennedy over Nixon by 30,541 majority. It may be even closer this year, no matter who carries it. Goldwater backers say he is moving up. Johnson supporters say that they will hold it.

Most prognosticators have been putting Louisiana's 10 electoral votes in the Goldwater column. Kennedy carried it by a majority of 6,827 over the combined Nixon and unpledged electors slates in 1960. Democrats have been working hard to reverse the Goldwater trend.

The 10 electoral votes of Alabama and the 7 of Mississippi seem safely Goldwater.

Louisiana Victory For GOP In View

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — Although Republican hopes for a Goldwater landslide in Louisiana have diminished since last Summer, signs still point to a victory in this state for the GOP hopeful on Nov. 3.

Johnson must win big in South Louisiana to pick up the state's 10 electoral votes. The northern tier of the state is almost solidly against him—and the southern tier is not too happy with him.

Goldwater's popularity reached a peak in Louisiana in July when President Johnson signed into law the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

Civil rights is the prime issue in the presidential campaign. Johnson's stand on it has made him unacceptable to conservative - minded Louisianians.

And a bitter, prolonged fight within the Democratic ranks—split into loyalist and conservative factions—has left its mark on the party.

Only the strong hand of Gov. John J. McKeithen kept conservatives from succeeding in a move to deprive Johnson of the rooster emblem on the Nov. 3 general election ballot.

The rooster, traditional emblem of the Louisiana Democratic party, is said to be worth at least 200,000 votes to any office seeker.

But McKeithen himself has yet to endorse either Goldwater or Johnson.

Aside from segregation, there is another issue that runs through the presidential campaign in Louisiana. This is the state's long feud with the federal government over ownership of the mineral rich waterbottoms off the coast.

In recent appearances in the state, Johnson talked about civil rights but ignored the waterbottom issue. Goldwater ignored the civil rights issue and didn't mention the offshore argument —but he did send a telegram to top Louisiana Republicans saying he believed the state was entitled to a three-mile limit off the coast and if elected would work for such an agreement.

The tidelands question, at least in the minds of Louisiana politicians, is second only to civil rights as a bread and butter issue.

Louisiana has 1,190,000 registered voters including about 160,000 Negroes. Many Negroes turned out to see Johnson when he made a campaign appearance here.

In a broad sense, the campaign is severed across the middle of the state. North Louisiana is predominantly protestant, rural and a segregationist stronghold. South Louisiana is more populated, heavily Roman Catholic and generally more liberal in its political thinking.

But two of Goldwater's strongest campaigners are from South Louisiana. They are conservative Democrats who have endorsed Goldwater. Lt. Gov. C. C. (Taddy) Aycock and Secretary of State Wade O. Martin have been working overtime forming the "Democrats for Goldwater" movement in the state. Both are tough campaigners and proven vote-getters.

Four of Louisiana's eight Democratic Congressmen are opposed by Republicans.

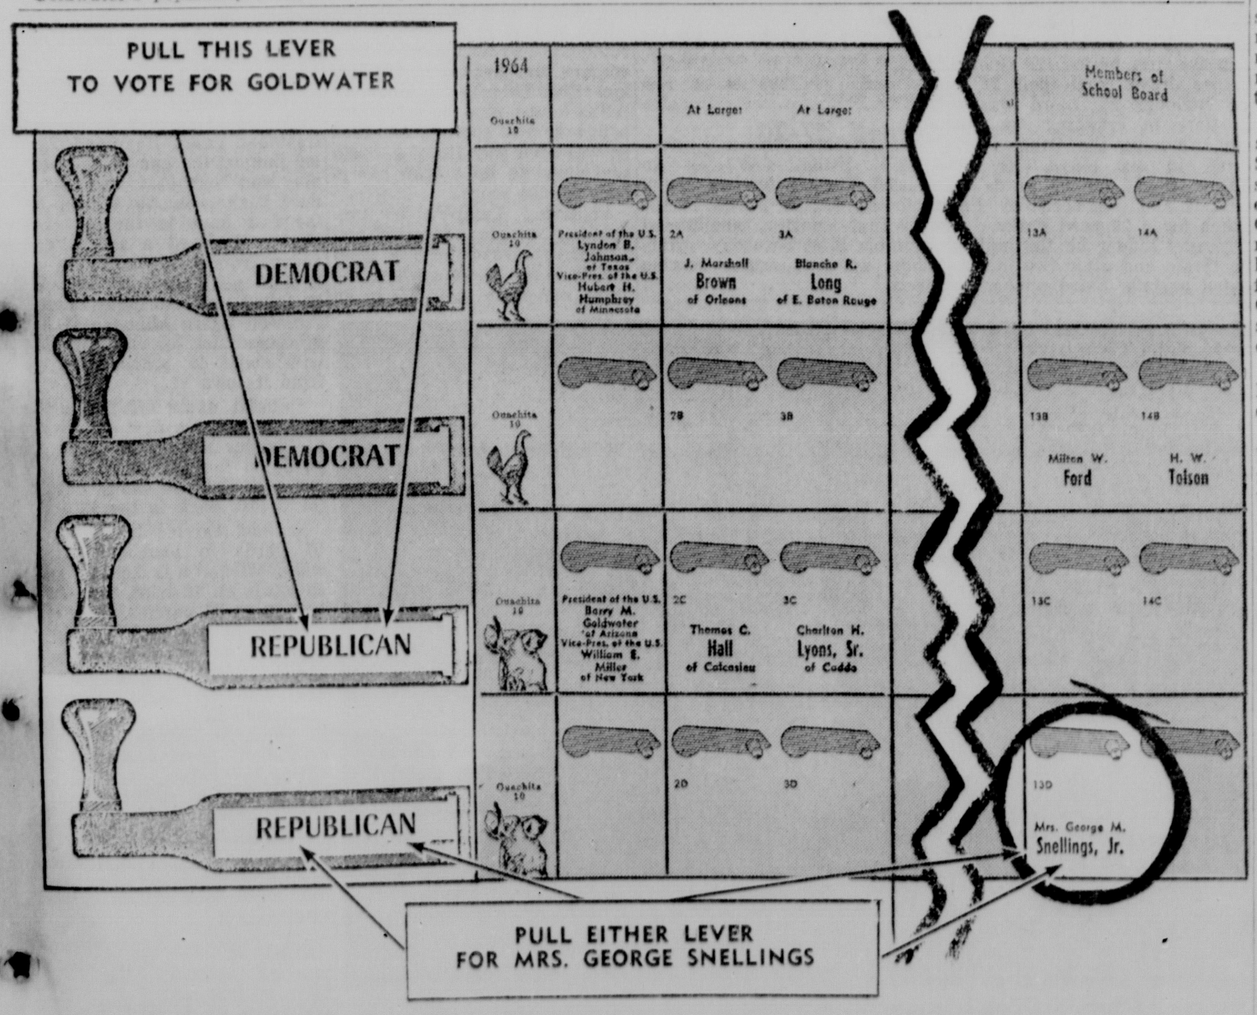

The 4th and 5th Congressional Districts, which blanket the northern part of the state, are the homes of incumbent Congressmen Joe D. Waggonner and Otto Passman. Neither man is opposed and neither has endorsed Johnson. Both districts are expected to go big for Goldwater.

One top state official, a shrewd political observer, predicts Johnson will collect only 40 per cent of the total vote. Loyalist Democrats, trying desperately to minimize the civil rights issue, stress the state's economic advantages under a friendly national administration.

FORMAL CELEBRATION

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI)—The state of Nevada formally observed its 100th birthday Saturday—after 10 months of celebrating.

A huge parade and a variety of other events ranging from art exhibits to whisker contests drew an estimated 75,000 persons, considerable more than the population of Nevada when it became the 36th state on Oct. 31, 1864.

Tampa Trims Northeast In Homecoming Squeaker, 7-6

Ezell's Two-Point PAT Wins, 11-10

News-Star—World

BATON ROUGE — The spirit-of-Halloween, just as it did five years ago, rode with the battered but magnificent Tigers of Louisiana State this cool Saturday night.

This time the ghost, instead of Billy Cannon, was a never-say-die quarterback named Billy Ezell who came off the bench to give the Tigers a brilliant 11-10 photo finish victory over arch-rival Mississippi.

Although there were many heroes for LSU, it was the 180-pound Ezell from Greenville, Miss., who sparked the Tigers to eight points in the waning minutes of the game to give them the important victory.

It was almost a replay of the game five years ago when Cannon dashed 89 yards to give the Tigers a hard - earned victory over the Rebels, although the scoring was different.

With a 10 to 3 lead, it looked as if the Rebels still held control over Coach Charlie McClendon and his Tigers, and particularly so after Pat Screen, LSU's number one quarterback, had to leave the game in the second period after injuring his leg again.

It was particularly black for the Tigers when backed up on their own nine yard line they had to punt with about seven minutes left in the game.

LSU's Gerald Brown lifted a long, lazy punt to the Rebel 47. Doug Cunningham, back to receive, fumbled and the Tigers' big John Aaron of Natchitoches pounced on it. As if this was what was needed, Ezell came up with a potent brew.

On the first play, he hit end Doug Moreaux with a 15 yarder, then after throwing high, he dashed for 13 yards, moving the Tigers to the Rebel 19.

Two plays later, Ezell passed to end Billy Masters, a six-foot, five - inch end from Olla and just a sophomore, for the touchdown. Masters was wide open and standing in the heart of the end zone when the pass came to him.

The crowd, limp until now, lept to its feet and started calling for the two point conversion. And the Tigers, who never play it any way but to win, did just that.

Ezell rolled to his right, then hit Moreau in the end zone for the two pointer, which gave the Tigers the 11 - 10 win. But it was a magnificent catch for Moreau, probably his greatest so far. He juggled the ball twice after he had practically taken it out of the hands of Rebel defender Tommy Lue, but held onto it long enough before going out of bounds for it to count.

The Rebels, had their own ghost in the form of quarterback Jim Weatherly, a daring rock - and - roll band leader when he isn't studying or playing football.

After the kickoff, Weatherly, on a quarterback keep from the 20 yard line, fumbled and Ruffin Rodrigue, a thorn in the Rebel side all night recovered for the Tigers.

There were two minutes left on the clock when that happened.

The Tigers tried gamely for a first down, but on fourth down, Ezell lacked two inches making it.

The Rebels, who obviously came to Baton Rouge to play football, despite their worst record in many years, managed only two more plays, one an incomplete pass, before the clock ran out.

It was probably the Tigers' greatest victory, if any in this series can be tagged greater than any other.

The victory was double sweet for McClendon. The Rebels were the only bunch he hadn't beaten since he took over the head coaching job three years ago.

With the unexpected finish, no one in the crowd of 68,000 remained in their seat as the seconds ticked off the game. It was that kind of football.

In the opening series, it looked as if this was the Tigers night. With Screen guiding the attack, LSU moved to the Mississippi 16, despite a damaging 15 yard penalty called at the 30. But on the fourth down, Moreau booted a 33 - yard field goal, his eighth of the season, and the Tigers were off 3 - 0.

During the series Screen threw six passes.

But the fired - up Rebels, playing their best game of the season and who had been picked in pre - season balloting as the national champion of this season, surged back with Weatherly at the throttle.

Starting from their own 32, the Rebels, aided by a 40 - yard Weatherly - to - fullback Frank Kinard pass, moved to the Tiger five. Two plays later, Weatherly skirted right end from three yards out for the score. Billy Carl Irwin booted the extra point to put the Rebels ahead.

And that was the way it stayed until the brilliant LSU surge in the fading minutes of the game.

After the brutal contest that saw several Tigers limp on and off the field, McClendon said there was never any question about LSU not going for the two points.

"We always play to win," he added as an anticlimax.

The Tigers actually had several other opportunities to score but a rugged Rebel defense made the key plays.

One came midway of the second period. After Screen was injured and had to be taken to the dressing room, Ezell hit halfback Joe Labruzzo who was playing at full speed for the first time since the North Carolina game, with a 22 - yard pass that sparked the Tigers drive to the Rebel 12. On the next play, Ezell's pass was intercepted at the three by Rebel Jimmy Heidel, to end the threat.

In the third period, opportunity knocked again when halfback Mike Vincent intercepted a Weatherly pass at his own 40 and returned it to the Rebel 40. But on the next play, the Tigers gave it back to the Rebels when Mississippi's Bill Clay picked off another Ezell pass at the 15.

Opportunity knocked again for the Tigers a few minutes later when Cunningham fumbled at the Rebel 36 and White Graves pounced on it for the Tigers. But the drive stalled at the Rebel 20.

Late in the third period, the

'Guttiest Bunch I've Ever Seen' —McClendon

BATON ROUGE (Special) — "Try for two," Coach Charlie McClendon told halfback Ken Cormier and the Tigers gambled Saturday night and beat Mississippi 11 - 10.

Afterwards, McClendon, saying, "Boy what a headache I've got," and gulping down an asprin said, "I don't know how much talent we've got, but they are the guttiest bunch I've ever seen.

"Everyone forgets that these are student athletes, not professionals."

Did he hesitate about going for the two pointer?

"No. Not one bit." He said that assistant Coach Charlie Pevey suggested the pass play from the press box which Billy Ezell threw to Doug Moreau for the all - important tow - pointer.

The Bayou Bengals were trailing 10 - 3 at the start of the fourth quarter when Ezell threw a touchdown pass to Billy Masters and then the two pointer to Moreau.

"This was the most thrilling win we've ever scored," said McClendon gaining his first victory ever over Coach John Vaught's Rebels.

"We had many outstanding individual efforts, but it took 11 men on the field playing their hearts out to win."

A flabbergasted Vaught said, "We just can't seem to get a break . . . not one break."

Referring to the two point catch, Vaught said, "I've never seen anything like it. One of our boys tipped the pass, we knocked it up for him to catch.

"It's the same kind of luck we've been having all season."

McClendon, who had said before the game that Ole Miss was the most talented team he had met to date, said, "I don't want to back up on what I said . . . they had blood in their eye tonight and we beat a real good football team, I don't care what their record is."

His wife, Dorothy Fay came into the coaches office, kissed her husband and then told reporters, "I just shuttered when we went for the two points . . . I guess I'm just chicken myself."

Indians Miss Two Scoring Chances

By KEITH PRINCE

Northeast State, in contention for "most snake-bit" team in the country, once again dominate statistics but fell short on the scoreboard, 7-6, in a homecoming battle with Tampa University before a packed house at Brown Stadium Saturday night.

The Indians, controlling the ball much of the night, rammed for 228 yards on the ground and 28 more through the air plus getting 16 first downs to Tampa's eight but fell one point shy in a short scoring spree midway in the first half when all 13 points were tallied.

Tampa picked up its score on a 69 yard sprint off left tackle by fullback Jim Underhill with three minutes left in the first quarter then kicking specialist Kevin Hurt booted the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

Northeast took the ensuing kickoff and quickly marched down field for its touchdown on the third play of the second second quarter with freshman fullback Bobby Scafiedel plunging over from the one. Bookie Shillcutt's kick was short—and that was it.

The Indians had two other golden opportunities to score when they drove deep into Tampa territory but both times, facing fourth down and long yardage, tried field goals with Shillcutt kicking far enough, but wide on each try.

The first field goal attempt came with 46 seconds to play in the first half when the Tribe faced a fourth and goal situation from the seven. Johnny Garrison, holding for Shilcutt, placed the ball down at the 15 but his boot went off to the left.

Again in the fourth quarter, with 3:44 remaining to play, Shillcutt attempted a three-pointer from the 17 but it, too, went wide and the Tribe had to settle for another night of frustration.

FIRST HALF

Tampa started things off with a bang on this Halloween night which was to hold plenty of tricks for both clubs. After receiving the opening kickoff and setting up operations on their own 31, quarterback Val Johnson faked a dive play then stepped back and heaved a long pass downfield which was complete to halfback John Perry who made a diving catch at the Northeast 27.

Tribe end Don McCrary of Istrouma helped settle things down on the next play, dropping Mike Buss for a two yard loss on an end sweep.

Northeast quickly put a halt to any Spartan scoring thoughts on the following play when freshman Thomas Eddleman fell on a Johnson fumble to give the Indians possession at the 20.

From here Northeast pieced together a 56 yard drive, behind the brilliant running of R. F. Wilson, Scafidel and Neal Gunn, only to see it fizzle on the Tampa 24 when a Garrison to Alton Thomas pass went astray on fourth down, needing five for the first.

A couple of punts later, Tampa took over at its 31 and Underhill then reeled off his dandy, which started as a sweep to the right side and turned out to be a counter play back over left tackle. The 210-pound sophomore fullback was into the secondary before he was spotted, and then he was seen only from a backseat view as he outran everybody for the score.

Following Tampa's 7-0 production, Northeast received and Thomas returned the boot from his six to the 33 from where the Tribe moved to their TD in an eight-play drive covering 77 yards.

The drive appeared to be halted near midfield when Garrison was thrown for a three yard loss on a third and 11 situation, but a personal foul against Tampa gave Northeast new life and a first down at the 50.

Two plays later Lynn Mitchell sent the crowd to its feet with a spectacular 33-yard run on an inside reverse play around right end which gave Northeast a first at the 15.

Runs by Thomas, Mitchell and Gunn put the ball at the six yardline on fourth down but Garrison kept things going with his pet keeper play which carried to the three.

Then Scafidel, the rookie from Chalmette who was probably Northeast's most outstanding player the entire night, took over and carried twice in succession—the last time for the tally from one yard out.

On the extra point attempt, it seemed Shillcutt got a little too far under the ball and it failed to carry past the goal posts.

Both teams traded yardage around midfield during the second quarter until Northeast took over with three minutes remaining in the half when freshman linebacker Nick LaBarbera of Amite intercepted a Johnson pass at the Tribe 40 and returned it to the Tampa 36 before being run out of bounds.

Garrison picked up nine yards on first down, then Scafidel bull-dozed for 10 more to the 17, giving Northeast a first down.

Gunn took a pitch and went for six more to the 11, then Garrison kept for a first down at the seven. However, Tampa rose to the occassion here, three times stopping the Indians near the line of scrimmage and on fourth down Shillcutt attempted his field goal.

SECOND HALF

Neither team threatened in the third quarter with punts by Hurt and Thomas dominating play. The Tampa kicker finished with 39.0 average on six punts while Thomas, who just recently inherited punting chores for NLSC, continued to show marked improvement by collecting a 38.4 average on five tries.

In the last period Northeast again spent most of the time on offense, but to no avail.

The Tribe's last serious bid begin on the 50 yardline after Garrison was downed in his tracks after fielding a 38 yard punt by Hurt.

Garrison and Scafield picked up five yards each for a first down at the 40, then Gunn went for nine on a dive over right yard. Scafidel went for the first to the 29 and Wilson got loose again on the inside reverse which Mitchell ran so well before intermission and gave Northeast a first down at the 29.

It was Scafidel again, first picking up three for a first down, then going for four more to the 13.

Garrison kept to the 10 on the next play and it looked like the Tribe would move it on in. But freshman guard Raymond Taylor jumped the gun on the next play and Northeast was penalized back to the 15. Wilson got the five back to the 10, but Northeast faced a fourth and seven from the 10, setting up a field goal try from the 17. It failed and Northeast didn't threaten again although it did get possession for one last fling with about 40 seconds to go from its own 17.

Shillcutt came off the bench to complete one first down toss to Charles Rohner good for 23 yards to the 40, but time ran out with Shillcutt being caught for a loss back to the 35.

Scafidel carried 19 times for 67 yards to lead the Tribe while Wilson was second with 49 yards on 12 trips and Gunn had 39 on 11 carries.

Underhill led the Spartans, mostly on his TD scamper, with 81 yards and Wayne Bloung was next with 38 yards. Johnson completed five of 11 passes for 75 yards to provide the most consistant Spartan threat all during the game.

NEVER TOO OLD

DETROIT (UPI) — The oldest participant ever to win an American Bowling Congress championship was E. D. (Sarge) Easter of Detroit, who shared in the 1950 team title at the age of 67.

Syracuse leads in its football series with West Virginia, 8 to 3. The rivalry has been renewed yearly since 1955.

SEVENTH STRAIGHT

Bulldogs Coast To 25-6 Victory

RUSTON (Special) — Undefeated Louisiana Tech spurted to a 19-0 first half lead here Saturday night, primarly on the passing of Billy Laird, and coasted to a 25-6 victory over Tennessee Tech.

It was the Bulldogs' seventh straight win of the season and set the stage for Tech's homecoming contest here Saturday afternoon against Southeastern Louisiana.

Tennessee Tech lost its seventh consecutive game without a win.

The Eagles ground out yardage against the Canine line, which gave up its first TD of the season when alternate quarterback Tommy Van Tone sprinted 36 yards up the middle in the final minute of play.

It was a rather ragged contest with Laird having three aerials intercepted and the Eagles loosing fumbles twice and having two passes picked off by Tech defenders.

The Cannines got off three sustained drives, mounting scoring marches of 83, 63, and 79 yards. Another 52 yard drive did not go the distance and Speedy Campbell missed on a field goal try from the 23.

In the first period the Golden Eagles drove from their 21 to the Bulldogs 25. Laird wasted no time in cranking up his arm, moving the Canines 83 yards in six plays. He hit Wayne Davis for 39 yards to satrt it and switched to Pat Lynch for a 29 yard strike.

Tommy Linder hit the middle for three, and after two incompleted aerials, Laird pitched to Reeves in the right flat at the 12 and he trotted in untouched.

There was 5:13 left in the quarter when the snap went away as usual on the placement try and Tech led 6 - 0.

The Ruston outfit got a break for another TD in the second canto. The ball went far over the kickers head on a punt attempt and the Canines got the ball on the Eagles 10. A pass interference call placed it on the one yard line and Linder bucked over on the first try.

An interception by Golman got Tech another second period TD. He grabbed it off at the Louisiana Tech 15 and returned it to the 27. Laird hit David Lee for 11, Golman for eight on a screen then connected with Lee on a 48 yarder for the TD with Speedy Campbell throwin the key block that let Lee go all the way.

Campbell got a chance to kick the extra point and made it good.

The Golden Eagles first half chances were marred by an interception and the loss of two fumbles.

Although the Ruston team did not score in the third perod the Aillet Men did manage to control the ball for most of that half.

NEW YORK (AP) — An aroused Cornell football team, exploding for 28 points in the wild first quarter, annihilated Columbia 57-20 Saturday, establishing an Ivy League scoring record.

SPITBALLS

CHICAGO (UPI) — When baseball outlawed the "spitball" in 1920 only 17 pitchers registered as spitball throwers and were allowed to use the pitch as long as they remained in the game. Many others failed to register because they thought the rule wouldn't stick.

Neville Battered 14-0, By Jackets

By BUTCH MUIR
World Sports Writer

SHREVEPORT—Byrd's once-beaten Yellow Jackets took their third straight district victory with a convincing 14-0 win over the previously unbeaten and number two ranked Neville Tigers at State Fair Stadium here Saturday night and took over the driver's seat in the District 1-AAA race.

The Jackets' Jagger Johnson scored both touchdowns for the winners, one in each the second and third periods, but fullback Don Durham was the game's leading ground gainer and outstanding player.

YARDSTICK	Byrd	Neville

Punts-Avg.	5-30	5-37.5
Fumbles-Lost	1-0	4-2
Peanlties	5-55	6-57

Durham was called on by quarterback Gene Hunt 11 times for 62 total yards rushing, with yardage coming at badly needed times.

The Tigers' swift backs could not break through a stiff Byrd defense for long gains. The deepest penetration the visitors could make was to the Byrd 45, that coming in the closing moments of the first half.

Byrd led in first downs 11 to nine, in passing yards 74 to 20, but fell behind in yards rushing 129 to 128.

FIRST HALF

Neville's fumble led to the only touchdown in the first half by Byrd. Neither team could get a real drive going and the first period was an exchange of punts, with the Byrd Jackets getting better field position with each boot.

After forcing the host to punt Neville took over in its own 25 yard line but two plays later a hard charging line forced the ball out of Tiger halfback Bobby Robinson's hand with Jacket Danny Goldberg falling on the ball at the Neville 36.

Durham, who gained 38 yards in the first half rushing, took the first play 21 yards to the Neville 15. But the Tiger defense got tough at this point, taking the ball over at the six yard line.

Neville's Dale Young took the ball to the 20 on two attempts, but again the Byrd forward wall charged swiftly and for the second time Robinson fumbled with Jacket George Greer scooping up the ball on the Tiger 25.

This time the host were not to be denied.

Quarterback Gene Hunt went to the airways, hitting halfback Jon Johnson with a seven yard aerial and end Robert Tirtle on a six yarder sending the ball to the 12 for a first and 10.

Byrd went to the Neville three yard line on end sweeps by quarterback halfback Joe Walker and Durham. On a fourth down and one situation, Johnson took the ball to the one for a first down and goal to go. On the next play, Johnson again got the call and hit paydirt on a buck up the middle.

With Don Duran's extra point following the Jackets had a 7-0 lead with 4:30 to ylap in the half.

SECOND HALF

The second half began just as the first with both teams being forced to punt.

After taking the second Tiger boot at their own 44 the Jackets drove to their second score in 11 plays. Neville penalities helped the drive along, giving Byrd first downs three times.

With the ball on the four yard line, third down, Joe Walker passed to Johnson for the TD.

Durhan again added the PAT, which tuhned out to be the last of the game with 2:07 left in the third stanza.

The host had two other drives stopped inside the Tiger five later in the game.

Following Durham in the rushing department for Byrd came Walker with 34 for eight carries and Johnson with 14 on seven attempts.

Leading for Neville was Bobby Robinson with 47 on 10 carries, Young with 34 on nine tries, and Tommy Coats 17 on only two attempts.

Byrd ran its season record to 6-1-1 overall and a 3-0-1 district mark. Neville fell to a 6-1 and a 3-1 conference slate.

The Tigers travel to Shreveport again next week to meet the highly rated, once - defeated Woodlawn Knights, while Byrd meets Ouachita in Lions Staidum in Monroe.

PAT Wins, 11-10 Ezell's Two-Point

Rebels started a drive that looked as if it might go all the way. As the fourth opened, they were on their own 43 and drove to the Tiger nine where the drive stalled. On fourth down, Irwin booted a 23 yard field goal to give the Rebels a 10 - 3 lead. With approximately eight minutes left, that looked like a lead that wouldn't be overcome.

But minutes later, the never-say-die Tigers were back in the ball game and the momentum carried them to their brilliant victory.

Screen, who completed nine of 10 passes before he was injured for 98 yards, watched the brilliant Tiger surge in a wheel chair from the tunnel that leads from t he playing field to the LSU dressing room.

It was the first meeting of the two teams on a Halloween ngiht since 1959, the setting of Cannon's famous 89 yard gallop.

Veteran sports writers, who had covered many games at Tiger Stadium, called a Snake Pit by some opposing coaches, and Heart Break House by others, said they had never heard such roaring from a crowd as they did when LSU scored its touchdown and winning two-point conversion.

"This place is known for the noise, but I've never seen it like this," wrote one. "Call it what you will or want, the Tigers wanted to win and they did."

In total first downs, the Tigers picked up 14 to 12 for the Rebels, gained 119 yards rushing to 151 for the Rebs, but picked up 152 yards passing to 94 for Mssissippi.

The Rebels' Frank Lambert, a tremendous punter who booted one for 63 yards, edged LSU's Brown in that department 47.4 to 33.6.

After the game, McClendon, who was so happy he almost couldn't talk, said this "was the most thrilling win we've ever scored. It makes it more gratifying when you realize the tremendous pressure that these youngsters played under. We had many outstanding individual efforts for big plays, But it took 11 men on the field playing their hearts out to win. The big difference in this year and last year was we forced them into mistakes and took advantage of them. I know I won't sleep tonight."

In last years contest, the Rebels ran wild over the Tigers, beating them 37 to 3 and handing them one of their worst defeats in years.

Rebel coach Johnny Vaught was amazed also at the suddeness of the outcome.

"I've never seen anything like it," he said. "One of our boys tipped the two point pass. We knocked it up for him to catch. Its the same kind of luck we've been having all season. We just can't seem to get a break — not one break."

The Rebels came into the game with a 3 - 2 - 1.

In the statistical department, there were several heroes for the Tigers. Fullback Don Schwab was the leading ground-gainer with 45 yards in nine trips through the Rebel defense, followed by LaBruzzo with 21 and Screen with 15. Screen, who was hurt when he rolled out of bounds, picked up 15 on the ground.

Ezell, who was booed after he had thrown two high passes in critical places, probably won't be again. In all he completed only four of 14 passes and had two intercepted, but his completions came at critical periods.

Ironically, Masters caught only one pass, but it was the key one — the 19 yard touchdown.

In the Tiger defensive lineup, the heroes were numerous. But some were Prudhomme, Dave McCormick of Rayville, Mickey Cox of Monroe, Milton Trosclair, George Rice and Charles Simmons.

Jets Upend 2nd Placed Pats, 35-14

NEW YORK (AP) — Wahoo McDaniel lugged an interception 38 yards for a touchdown and Matt Snell kept a key drive going by grabbing a blocked pass as the New York Jets built a 21-0 halftime lead and upended the Boston Patriots 35-14 Saturday night.

The loss was a severe jolt to Boston's title hopes in the Eastern Division of the American Football League, leaving the second-place Pats with a 5-2-1 record. Buffalo, which meets Houston today, is out front with a 7-0 mark.

The Jets, who have not lost at home in their maiden season at new Shea Stadium, now are 4-2-1.

McDaniel, the Jets middle linebacker, triggered New York's first half offensive when he grabbed a Babe Parilli pass, stepped down the sidelines and dove over for a touchdown after a key block from Clyde Washington.

That came at the end of a sluggish first quarter. Then, with Parilli having considerable difficulty, Jets' quarterback Dick Wood started to rifle passes to Bake Turner and Don Maynard to get the Jets rolling on their own in the second period.

Wood, who completed 11 passes in a row during the second half, wound up passing for three touchdowns — 40 and five yards to Turner and 29 to Maynard.

But the first was aided by Snell. Wood had hit Turner with two passes for 45 yards and the Jets were on the Boston 26 when Wood's pass was blocked in the line by Jim Hunt and sailed high in the air.

Snell leaped up, grabbed it and turned the mishap into a two-yard gain. Wood then hit Maynard with a 21-yard pass and Bill Mathis capped the drive by plunging two yards for a touchdown.

Parilli, who tried 25 passes but completed only nine in the first half and had three intercepted, also was unable to clearly handle a snap from center on a field goal try later in the second quarter that led to the Jets' third touchdown.

Grambling Rolls To 25-8 Victory Over Southern

HOUSTON, Tex. (Special) — Grambling's defensive platoon provided a stubbon wall Saturday night and the offense unpacked four long scoring drives to outclass Texas Southern, 25-8, before 16,000 homecoming fans.

Glum Eddie Robinson's steller squad was superior in all departments except patience and hiked 80, 65, 64 and 82 yards for touchdowns.

Grambling rushed and passed for 400 yards and limited TSU to 261.

Texas Southern played a disappointing game for Old Grads, but the team deserved high praise for maintaining its poise in face of the mounting deficit on the scoreboard.

Grambling engineered a first half touchdown and turned on the steam after intermission.

Quarterback Mike Howell of Monroe, halfbacks Willie Williams and Leroy Carter, and fullback Henry Dyer, provided much of the ground gaining machinery.

Williams scored twice on passes of 40 and 33 yards from Howell.

Dyer plunged over from the four for the initial score and Harry Brown accounted for the final score on a 10 yard spurt.

Grambling missed at least three more scoring opportunities as the club obviously made an all out effort to move up in the national small college standings.

Texas Southern resigned itself to defeat after its taunted air game was able to make little headway against a tough Grambling line. The Tigers kept pressure on the TSU passers throughout the contest and held Herman Driver in check for the first time this season.

Driver is the leading scorer in the Southwestern Athletic Conference and came into the contest with 64 points from six games.

Grambling currently has a 6-1 mark and trails Praire View in the SWAC standings with a 4-1 mark. Prairie View is undefeated in five games.

Penalty Sets Up Army's 9-7 Win Over Iowa State

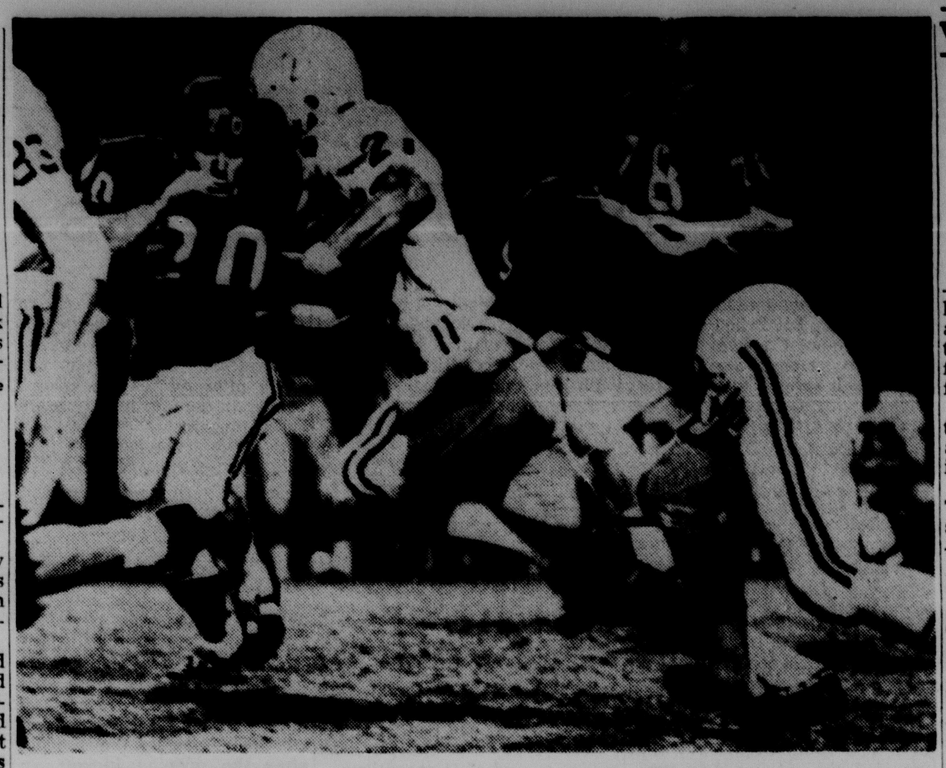

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Pass interference penalty in the closing minutes set up a last gasp touchdown for Army that defeated Iowa State 9-7 Saturday and ended a four-game West Point losing streak.

Tailback Mark Hamilton went over from the one after Eppie Barney of Iowa State had been charged with shoving Sam Champi of Army, leaping for a Carl Stichweh pass in the end zone.

This decided the rough, hard-played game although the Iowa States smashed back to Army's 13 in the last minute and Ronald Halda missed a field goal try from the 20 by inches.

Steve Sloan Paces 'Bama To 23-6 Win

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Quarterback Steve Sloan's fine passing and deadly effectiveness on the option play gave third-ranked Alabama a 23-6 victory over dogged Mississippi State Saturday night.

The 183-pound junior understudy to injured ace Joe Namath played a major role in the come-from-behind Southeastern conference victory as he sent junior fullback Steve Bowman cracking over for two touchdowns and set up three field goals by halfback David Ray.

The game was a close battle for a half and Alabama had to resort to Ray's three boots to build up a 9-6 intermission lead.

The turning point came midway in the second quarter, however, when fullback Hoyle Granger fumbled going into the Alabama end zone and cost State a touchdown.

The alert 'Bama defensive gave State no chance after that and State yielded yardage steadily, though grudgingly. The losers never got a drive going in the second half.

TCU Wins 17-14 Decision Over Baylor's Bears

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Texas Christian combined a small dose of aerial witchcraft with the running of Jim Fauver and Larry Bulaich for a 17-14 upset Saturday over Baylor.

The triumph extended TCU's winning streak to three and buried the Southwest Conference title aspirations of Baylor.

The Frogs took the opening kickoff and smashed 80 yards for a touchdown, picked up three more points on a second-period field goal and clinched the victory with a 38-yard scoring drive in the final stanza.

Alternate quarterback Kent Nix passed six yards to Joe Ball for the first touchdown, Bruce Alford booted a 25-yard field goal and quarterback Randy Howard raced five yards for the winning counter.

The Bears seized an 8-7 edge in the first period on a 39-yard pass from Terry Southall to Lawrence Elkins and a conversion aerial from Ronnie Wilson to Harlan Lane.

With victory virtually beyond reach, Southall hurled the Bears 81 yards in eight plays and tossed a 11-yard TD strike to Ken Hodge with 2:07 left.

WEST VIRGINIA, 26-21

Wildcats Lose Fourth Straight

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Quarterback Allen McCune led rebounding West Virginia to a 26-21 upset victory over Kentucky here Saturday as the faltering Wildcats lost their fourth consecutive game.

McCune connected for three touchdown passes and ran for another in personally accounting for each WVU score.

The Mountaineers, crushed 38-7 last week by Penn State, scored on their first play when McCune hit Dick Madison on a 24-yard touchdown pass. The play came with only 58 seconds gone in the game and was set up by a Kentucky fumble.

The favored Wildcats came back minutes later to go ahead briefly when quarterback Rick Norton hit Bill Jenkins with a nine-yard pass in the end zone. Rich Tucci's kick made it 7-6.

The Mountaineers, now 4-3 for the season, came back to score on a 70-yard drive that took 17 plays. The score came on the first play of the second quarter when McCune hit end Milt Clegg on an eight-yard aerial.

McCune tossed his third scoring pass shortly before the half ended, hitting end Bob Dunleavy on a fourth-and-15 situation from the WVU 25.

West Virginia scored again after intermission with McCune sneaking over from the one, and then withstood Norton's aerial bombardment that gave the Wildcats their last two scores.

Both of Norton's touchdown tosses came in the fourth quarter. He hit end Dan Spanish on a 24-yard scoring play and then passed 38 yards to halfback Rodger Bird.

The loss left Kentucky 3-4 on the season. The Wildcats haven't won since defeating Auburn four weeks ago.

TULANE QUARTERBACK Dave East (12) gets turned everyway except loose as he is thrown for a nine yard loss by MVI left tackle Larry Wertz (73) in early action at New Orleans Saturday afternoon. 25-6 OVER VMI

Wave Victorious In Homecoming

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—Tulane outclassed the visiting Virginia Military Institute squad Saturday to chalk up a 25 - 6 homecoming victory.

The Greenies showed strength both on the ground and in the air as they dominated the field throughout their first win since last year's 20 - 7 win over South Carolina.

The first Green Wave score came early in the second quarter after taking a VMI punt on their own 45 - yard line. Quarterback Dave East started the drive with a pass to left end Ron Krajewski on the V M I 41.

Kicker Don Bright missed the extra point try.

The second Greenie score came minutes later when defensive back Jim Davis stole a VMI pass on the Tulane 38, and punched his way to the VMI 12. His 50 - yard gallop was probably the most spectacular play of the game.

Three plays later, East went over from the two.

A pass attempt for two extra points from East to Graves failed. After another Tulane drive ended on the two - yard line, the half ended with the Greenies ahead 12-0.

The third Tulane score got started with another interception, this one by center Bill Goss. The play ended on the VMI 17. The Cadets were penalized to their own seven for a personal foul.

Quarterback Mac Brousseau passed to right end Mike Steeves who was all alone for the touchdown. Another pass try for two extra points was unsuccessful.

VMI came back almost immediately after Tulane tried an on - side kick. Quarterback Charlie Snead passed from his own 46 to end Jamie Browder on the Tulane 19. Then left half Ted Mervosh raced around right end for a touchdown, without running into any Tulane defenders. An extra point try for two failed.

Tulane ended the scoring and the game with a concentrated drive from its own 20 after VMI kicked into the end zone. Fullback Mike Findley, Brousseau and fullback Al Higgins handled the running chores down to the 12 yard line and Brousseau hit left halfback Butch Cook with a pass good to the three.

Higgins blasted through the middle for the touchdown, and Bright kicked the extra point.

Michigan Rips Northwestern For 35-0 Win

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Powerful Michigan scored three of the first four times it had the ball in rolling over Northwestern 35-0 in a Big Ten football game saturday.

Quarterback Bob Timberlake scored twice for Michigan on runs of two and six yards.

Rick Volk and John Henderson combined on a 33-yard scoring pass in the second quarter as the Wolverines raced to a 21-0 halftime lead.

A 30-yard touchdown run by Mel Anthony in the third period closed out the scoring.

Northwestern did not pose a serious scoring threat until late in the final quarter when it marched to a Michigan six. But Dick Wells broke up a fourth-down Northwestern pass in the end zone to preserve Michigan's second shutout of the campaign.

The loss was the fifth in a row for the wildcats, who have now lost three straight seasons to Michigan.

The Wolverines brought their over-all record to 5-1 and their 3-1 conference record assured them of at least maintaining a tie for second place.

Michigan picked up 29 first downs against the outclassed Wildcats, 22 of them coming on the ground.

Michigan once again showed off a crushing ground attack, charging through Northwestern for 336 yards. It added 117 more through the air.

Northwestern was held to a 44 yards rushing and 109 in passing.

Big, Bad Buckeyes Squeeze Past Iowa Hawkeyes, 21-19

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Explosive Iowa scored with two seconds left but failed on a try for a two-point conversion Saturday to let top - ranked Ohio State salvage a 21-19 victory and remain in a tie for the Big Ten football lead.

The Buckeyes, who turned two Iowa errors into touchdowns and electrified the crowd with a touchdown in three plays in the third quarter, stopped Gary Snook's extra point run eight inches short of the goal for their sixth straight triumph.

Iowa had blocked an Ohio State punt on the Buckeye 12 earlier in the fourth quarter, but failed to gain.

With four minutes left Iowa drove to the Ohio State two and called four running plays without a huddle. Craig Nourse finally cracked over on fourth down with two seconds to play.

On the try for a tie, Snook rolled to the left and was stopped by Ohio State's Dwight Kelley, who earlier had blocked an Iowa extra point kick.

The finish was no more exciting than the start, when Ohio State's' Steve Dreffer intercepted Snook's pass on the first play after the opening kickoff and raced 36 yards for a touchdown.

The second Buckeye score, a two-yard run by Don Unverferth, came after Iowa's Dalton Kimble had fumbled on the Hawkeyes' 15.

Both Iowa touchdowns in the first half also were set up by miscues. Snook scored on a two-yard run in the first quarter after Dreffer bobbled a punt snapback on the Ohio State 39. Late in the second period Snook passed 30 yards to Karl Noonan for a touchdown after Ohio State's Willard Sander fumbled on the Buckeye 30.

Ohio State took a 14-13 lead into the third quarter when Kelley blocked Gary Simpson's extra point kick after the second Iowa touchdown, and the Buckeyes widened the gap with a ferocious assault after the intermission.

Tom Barrington returned the kickoff 68 yards to the Iowa 24. After an incomplete pass Unverferth tossed a touchdown strike to Bob Rein. Bob Funk kicked his third extra point of the day for the margin of victory.

The loss left Iowa wtih a 1-3 Big Ten record and a season mark of 3-3. Ohio State is 4-0 in Big Ten play and shares the conference lead with Purdue.

Undefeated Irish Roll Over Navy

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Unbeaten Notre Dame, ranked No. 2 in the nation, rolled to its sixth straight victory Saturday in a 40-0 romp over Navy that included three touchdown passes by John Huarte.

The score equalled Notre Dame's 1949 rout of the Middies, the most lopsided in the 38-game series.

Jack Snow, Huarte's favorite target and his summer pitch-and-catch pal at Anaheim, Calif., grabbed two scoring passes. The fleet split end caught seven passes, tying Jim Kelly's Irish season record of 41 receptions.

Coach Ara Parseghian's Irish shut out Roger Staubach, last year's All-America quarterback, who has been handicapped by an injured left heel. However, Staubach completed 19 of 36 for a naval academy record.

Notre Dame struck quickly in the second period for three touchdowns after a scoreless first quarter. Huarte tossed a screen pass to Nick Eddy, who went 75 yards behind a covey of blockers that included everybody but Parseghian.

Then Huarte hit Snow with a 55-yard bomb. Bill Wolsku crashed over from the one after a 44-yard Huarte-to-Snow pass set up the score.

The Irish stuck to the ground most of the way in the second half, marching 75 yards on 10 running plays before Joe Farrell plunged over from the one early in the third period.

Snow grabbed two more passes in a fourth period drive that ended with a Huarte-to-Snow toss into the end zone for seven yards. Dennis Conway added the sixth and last TD.

It was Navy's worst defeat since the '49 Notre Dame game and its fourth in seven starts this season. Their closest bid for a score came in the second period when Fred Marlin's field goal attempt from the 28 was short.

Two Long Runs Give Oklahoma 14-11 Victory

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) —A quick 57-yard scoring punt return by Larry Shields and a 40-yard touchdown run by Lance Rentzel pushed Oklahoma's plodding Sooners to a 14-11 Big Eight football win over Colorado.

The teams traded punts, fumbles and pass interceptions all afternoon before only 24,200 fans. Rentzel capped Oklahoma's only sustained drive in the first period when he headed left, cut back and stepped down the right side line 40 yards to score. The 90-yard drive took eight plays.

When the offenses bogged down in the fourth period, Shields, a 200-pounder from Wichita Falls, Tex., took a Colorado punt at his own 43, pulled away from three tacklers and ran 57 yards for the final Oklahoma touchdown.

Thhe Buffaloes plodded 76 yards in 15 plays in the final seconds of the game for their only touchdown. Frank Rogers kicked a 31-yard field goal in the third quarter for Colorado's other points.

Oklahoma got into trouble with its passing game an stuck to the ground the rest of the time. Colorado intercepted two Sooner passes—halting an Oklahoma drive with one and almost scoring with the other.

Colorado got deep into Sooner territory three times in the first half, but stalled each time.

The Buffaloes' deepest drive was set up when halfback Ben Howe intercepted a deflected pass by Sooner quarterback Bobby Page at the Colorado 22 and returned 56 yards to the Oklahoma 22. The Buffaloes got to the Oklahoma four, but Shields threw quarterback Hale Irwin for a nine yard loss on fourth down.

Colorado also drove to the Sooner 10 and 26 in the first half, but the brisk Oklahoma defense halted each drive. Oklahoma defensive halfback Rod Crosswhite intercepted a Colorado pass in the end zone just as the half ended.

Oklahoma Gets 14-11 Big Eight Win Over Buffs

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Larry Shields' 57-yard punt return for a touchdown in the fourth period after Lance Rentzel's 40-yard touchdown run in the first quarter insured Oklahoma's 14-11 Big Eight Conference football victory over Colorado Saturday.

In the waning minutes Colorado marched 78 yards to a consolation touchdown. Bernie McCall's two passes covering 33 yards to Bill Fairband were the big gainers. Ben Howe plunged over for the touchdown and McCall ran over for a two-point conversion.

Two 15-yard penalties against Oklahoma helped move Colorado to the Oklahoma 15 before the Buffs stalled and settled for a 31-yard field goal by Frank Rogers midway of the third quarter.

Tony Lema, 30, won the British Open golf crown in this first try.

Rhome Provides Aerial Attack In 65-14 Tulsa Win

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Jerry Rhome, the nation's top passer, dazzled Oklahoma State Saturday by completing 35 of 43 tosses for 488 yards and four touchdowns as Tulsa upset the Cowboys 61-14.

The largest crowd ever to watch a football game in Tulsa, 23,731, saw Rhome shred State's pass defense, which was ranked second nationally before the game. The Cowboys were one of only two teams which had not allowed a scoring pass.

Three of Rhome's touchdown tosses came in the final quarter—28 yards to halfback Bob Daugherty, 1 yard to end Howard Twilley and 36 yards to halfback Billy Van Burkleo. He passed for his first in the second quarter, 8 yards to Twilley, the nation's No. 2 receiver prior to the game.

Twilley caught 15 passes for 217 yards, a new school record.

Daughterty scored three times, Rhome twice, Twilley twice and Van Burkleo and fullback Bill Goods added one each in the most lobsided score of the 46-game series, which will end next year.

Oklahoma State scored on a 74-yard burst by fullback Wilt Garrison in the first half and a 3-yard pass from quarterback Glenn Baxter to Lynn Chadwick in the third quarter.

Counts Inks Pact

BOSTON (AP) — The world champion Boston Celtics announced Saturday the signing of their No. 1 draft choice, 7-foot, 225-pound Mel Counts, former Oregon State basketball star.

The 23-year-old Counts returned recently from Tokyo, where he was a member of the U.S. Olympic Gold medal basketball team.

Nicklaus Gains Tie With Devlin In Tournament

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Big Jack Nicklaus, who never has won a tournament in three visits to Australia, birdied three of the last nine holes Saturday and shot a five-under-par 67 to tie Australia's Bruce Devlin in the Australian Open Golf Championship.

They finished the 72 holes over the 6,618-yard, par 72 Lakes course with totals of 287 and will play off for the title over 18 holes Sunday.

After shooting an ordinary 74 in the morning round during a steady rain, the husky Columbus, Ohio, pro went out in 33, two under par, as the weather cleared in the afternoon. He picked up one stroke on Devlin there then made his big bid coming back. At the 540-yard 15th hole, Nicklaus thrilled the gallery by hitting a five iron shot past the flag and then getting down in two putts for a birdie four.

Devlin had 71-71 on his last two rounds. He took the lead on the third round with 216, a stroke ahead of Bruce Crampton and two ahead of Alan Murray, with Nicklaus four shots back.

He played it safe on the final round as Crampton and Murray faded until he came to the 15th. Nicklaus already was in with his 67 and Devlin knew he needed a birdie and three pars to win.

The Aussie also birdied the 15th and parred the next two. On the par five 18th, Devlin's second shot was 20 yards from the green. He chipped onto the shoulder of the green and the ball rolled back downhill. He chipped again but failed to sink his putt and took a bogey six.

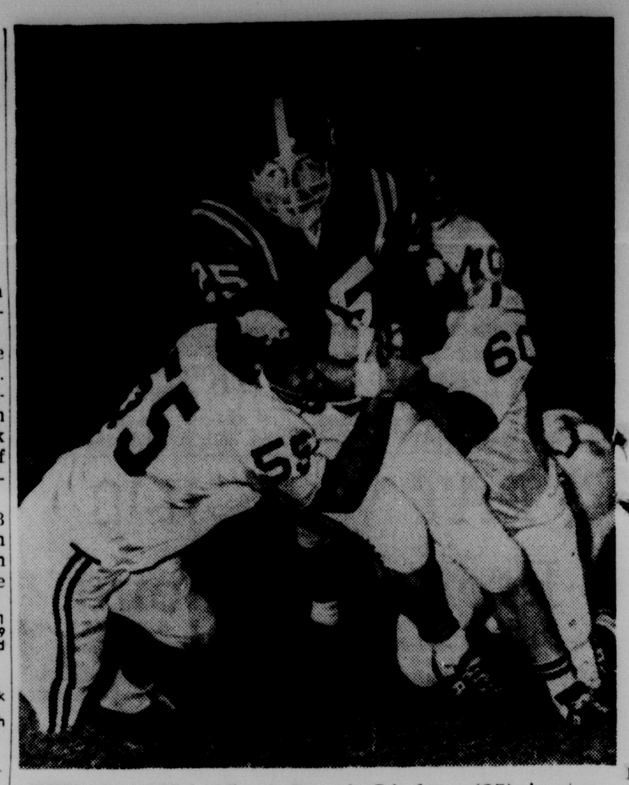

"I had it in my pocket and now I have to play again," Devlin commented.

Nicklaus, who had planned to return to the United States Saturday night, said, "I am surprised and pleased that I got a tie."

Nicklaus Wins

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, of Columbus, Ohio, won the Australian Open golf championship in an 18 hole play-off with Australian Bruce Devlin Sunday.

Nicklaus shot a 67 and Devlin a 70 on the par 72 Lakes Course. They had tied at 287 Saturday in four rounds of the tournament.

TEXAS A&M halfback Ronnie Lindsey (25) is stopped by Arkansas left halfback Ronnie Caveness (55) after a two yard gain during the first quarter of their game in College Station, Tex., Saturday night. Also in on the play is Arkansas guard Jim Johnson (60). (AP Wirephoto)

AUBURN FALLS

Florida Defense Leads 14-0 Win

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Dick Kirk ran 84 yards to score with one of two intercepted passes as the defense did most of the work in muscling Florida to a 14-0 victory Saturday over an Auburn Tiger that couldn't do anything right.

An intercepted pitchout and a pass interference penalty in the end zone set up Florida's first touchdown early in the game. Kirk picked up the second score in the second quarter.

Even Steve Spurrier, Florida's sensational sophomore, couldn't muster much offense, but the Gator defense was superb and Auburn's mistakes never stopped.

Little Jack Card intercepted two passes and Lynn Mathews picked off one.

The absence of Jimmy Sidle, Auburn's injured All-America quarterback, put the burden on sophomore Joe Campbell. Campbell, however, couldn't overcome Florida's defensive rush, plus a strong wind that hung his passes a little too long.

Florida tried three field goals in an effort to pad its margin, but the wind blew all three wide.

It was the fifth victory in six games for 10th-ranked Florida and kept the Gators in contention for the Southeastern Conference championship.

Nebraska Tames Missouri, 9-0, In Big 8 Battle

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Fifth-ranked Nebraska broke open a defensive battle with a safety and a touchdown in the final quarter against Missouri Saturday for a 9-0 Big Eight football triumph.

End Langston Coleman broke the ice by tackling Missouri quarterback Gary Line in his own end zone with the final quarter less than three minutes old.

Seven minutes later, with Nebraska in possession on Missouri's 37, Cornhusker quarterback Bob Churchich faded back to pass, shook off one tackler and hurled a high arching throw to halfback Kent McCloughan. He had to escape a tackler then got a key block from tackle Larry Kramer and cut across field for a touchdown.

The victory ran Nebraska's string to 14 games, longest in the nation among major colleges. The Huskers are 7-0 for the season, 4-0 in the Big Eight.

Missouri is 4-3 for the season, 2-2 in the loop.

So vicious was the defensive play on both sides that four long-range field goal tries were the only scoring threats of consequence until the final quarter. Missouri's Bill Bates attempted field goals of 40, 50 and 51 yards, and Nebraska's Duncan Drum tried a 40-yarder.

Zeno Sparkplug Of UCLA Upset

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Larry Zeno passed 30 yards for a touchdown to end Kurt Altenberg with about one minute left Saturday, bringing the UCLA Bruins from behind to a 23-21 victory over California in a Pacific Athletic Conference upset.

The scoring toss up the middle, Zeno's second of the game, wiped out a fine performance by California quarterback Craig Morton, who also passed for two touchdowns.

Arkansas Rides To 17-0 League Win Over Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Fred Marshall and Jim Lindsey led a smooth Arkansas offense that used Texas A&M mistakes for a 17-0 victory and hung up the seventh straight victory for the Southwest Conference leaders Saturday night.

And the Arkansas defense didn't give the Aggies a chance as the Razorbacks stayed atop the conference with a 4-0 record and advanced another step toward the Cotton Bowl.

A crowd of 24,000 had to be quieted on threat of A&M penalties when the Aggie stands forced officials to halt the game four times in the third quarter.

Marshall, the Arkansas quarterback, ran and passed for 73 yards in an 82-yard drive for the first Razorback touchdown in the opening period.

Jack Brasuell carried over from the two for the first of two touchdowns of the night for the halfback.

McKneely kicked a 33-yard field goal to make the score 10-0 in the first quarter. A 20-yard run by Lindsey and a 15-yard Aggie personal foul penalty set up the field goal.

Early in the second period a 37-yard pass intereference penalty set the bal oln the Aggie 22 and an Aggie offside penalty of five yards helped Arkansas to its second touchdown, scored by Brasuell from the two.

McKnelly kicked his second extra point and that made him 17 for 17 for the season.

A&M threatened three times. The final threat ended on the Arkansas one-yard line as time ran out.

Purdue Remains At Top Of Big 8

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Sophomore Bob Griese of Purdue laced Illinois into a straightjacket with needle-sharp passes in the first half and the Boilermakers hung on to beat the Illini 26-14 Saturday.

Purdue stayed at the top of the Big Ten football standings with a 4-0 record and virtually rubbed out Illini hopes for a second straight conference title by tagging them with their second loss.

Purdue scored three touchdowns in the first 18 minutes of play. Two came in the first quarter on marches of 60 and 55 yards during which Griese hit seven passes without a miss.

Rich King Stars In 21-6 Victory

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Rich King, a second string quarterback playing defense for the first time this season, ran 30 yards with an intercepted pass for a touchdown, then made a key recovery of a teammate's fumble in Syracuse's 21-6 football victory over Pitt Saturday.

King, a senior who rarely has played any defense, scored in the second quarter, 50 seconds after Syracuse, top team in the East, grabbed a 7-6 lead on Floyd Little's seven-yard touchdown scamper and Roger Smith's extra point.

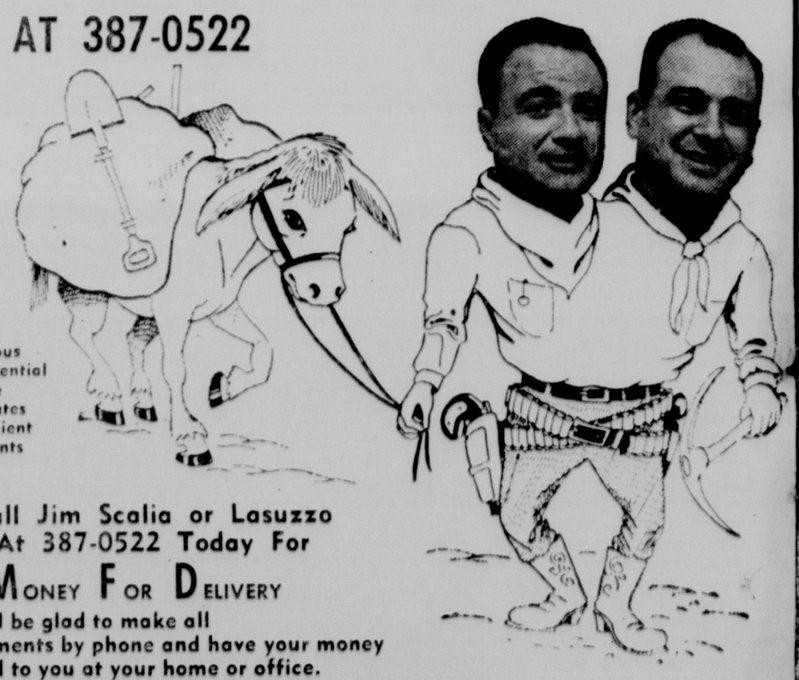

On the second play after the Orange kickoff, Pitt's Ken Lucas passed to Mickey Rosborough on the Panthers' 30-yard line. Rosborough appeared to have the ball, but King snatched it away from him and raced into the end zone unmolested.

Wildlife Bills On Big Ballot

With Sam Hanna

Federation Against Changes

Louisiana voters are being asked by the Louisiana Wildlife Federation — the sportsman's organization — to vote against two proposed wildlife amendments on the ballot Tuesday.

The federation is opposed to the amendments — No. 11 and No. 12 — because they propose to change the Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission, which the federation helped organize in an effort to get Louisiana's game program out of politics.

No. 12 is the most drastic of the two wildlife amendments in that it would permit the governor to reappoint any member of the commission after serving a full six-year term.

This amendment was sponsored by Sen. George Lee of Alexandria, the hometown of Ray Whatley Jr., commission chairman, whose term expires soon.

At present the law prohibits the reappointment of any member if he has served six years or more on the commission. However, this does not limit membership to only six years, since a member serving less than a full term can be eligible for reappointment.

It is possible for a member to serve 11 years on the commission, either by being appointed to fill an unexpired term and being reappointed, or by resigning before the end of his term and being reappointed.

For background information, commission members serve staggered terms and the purpose of that is to prevent the governor from stacking the commission with his own appointees.

However, the governor can get around this by having the Legislature address the commission members out of office, which has happened before.

Besides being in direct conflict with the purpose of the commission, No. 12 is really not needed, since the governor can get his "own" commission members if he so desires.

But Amendment No. 11 is somewhat different.

Sponsored by Sen. Spencer Myrick of Oak Grove, it would increase the commission from seven to nine members. Each congressional district would have a representative on the commission while the ninth member would come from the state - at - large.

While the federation is opposed to this amendment mainly because it does not want the commission-form changed at all, we, personally, can see merit in this proposal because it would provide for equal representation.

At present our own Fifth District does not have a man on the commission while the Eighth District has three. At least under Myrick's proposal the Fifth District would get a representative on the commission.

Personally, we're dead-set against No. 12, but as we've said before on No. 11 it's just a matter of personal preference.

Arkansas Hunting Seasons

Arkansas is getting ready for its early deer season. We say early, because the regular gun season on deer opens sooner in Arkansas than it does in Louisiana.

The first split of the season there will be November 9 - 14th with the second split following December 14 - 19th — bucks only during both splits. But Director Nelson Cox informs us that the Arkansas Game & Fish Commission may have a third season toward the end of the year.

Arkansas' season limit on deer is still two while in Louisiana this year the limit has gone up to three, which won't mean anything for some people, both outlaws and would-be's.

And, of course, the big season in Arkansas — for Louisiana interest — is the duck season, which opens November 25th and runs through January 3rd. The bag limit is four — same as in Louisiana — with two mallards included.

The goose season has already opened, from October 26th through January 3rd, while Arkansas is having a closed season on Canadian geese, same as Louisiana.

Arkansas is open now for squirrel and rabbit hunters, the squirrel season closing January 15th with the rabbit season going until February 15th, while the quail season opens December 1st through February 15th. They've added 15 days to the quail season.

So there it is for Arkansas. If you plan to go up for a hunt, non - resident licenses cost $15 and if you plan to bag a buck or a gobbler it'll be $25.

The turkey season will be set later for the spring.

Pass-a-Loutre Hunting

The Wild Life & Fisheries Commission will begin taking applications November 2nd for hunters wishing to use the public camps at Pass-a-Loutre this duck season.

Located at the mouth of Mississippi River, Pass -a-Loutre is a 66,000-acre waterfowl management area. It's a good place to hunt ducks, though not as good, in our opinion, as Southwest Louisiana.

But the state has nine public camps there, which are filled on a drawing basis. A two - day trip costs $5, once you get to Venice with your own groceries of course, and each party can have up to eight hunters.

If you're interested in going, you should write to the commission, 400 Royal Street in New Orleans, to make application between November 2nd and December 14th.

The drawings will be held within that period and the season will range at Pass-a-Loutre from November 21st through December 30th.

Most of the shooting down there is for smaller ducks, but there are plenty of them usually. And if you've never been on a duck hunt in the marsh, it would be an interesting trip.

Personally, we prefer solid ground.

Little Man's Corner

It was warm for October, but there were a lot of wary targets as the little man made news afield.

Black Bayou at Monroe was still producing bass catches and Pete Shambro caught five, including one that weighed five pounds and another that tipped the scales at four.

Angello Danna, now a Shreveport resident, returned to his favorite spot to catch a six-pound bass in Black Bayou. Johnny Danna landed 11. Specs were biting too and Clemnon Washington of Monroe landed 20 on grass shrimp.

In Tensas Parish, Raymond Guinn of Newellton High School killed a deer with a bow and arrow. Norman Arnold of Newellton dropped a spike with his bow.

But the best deer report we've received came from Tallulah where Bill Windham, the teacher, killed an 8-point buck. Bill says two bucks came out by him and what followed is an interesting story.

He shot at the first buck, but the arrow sailed over the deer. So Bill shot at the second one, and this time the arrow went beneath the buck, but buried into the ground.

Deer are inquisitive by nature and this led to the downfall of the second buck, which came back to investigate the arrow in the ground. Bill's third shot struck home.

And if that story is not good enough, try this one for size: Uncle Honey Laningham, a sage by nature, was out squirrel hunting in the Russell Sage Wildlife Management Area. Uncle Honey came back to inform friend Jack Rushing that a panther came out on him and he shot it with squirrel shot.

Of course it didn't stop the panther, Uncle Honey says. Colonel Rushing says it was a bobcat, but Uncle Honey says it was really a panther.

And this really happened. We were shooting doves last weekend and our gun double - fired and we bagged a double. Really happened.

From Ferriday, Roland Dinger got the limit of bass and barfish at the Blue Hole using a Swimming Minnow. Jimmy Kennedy of Ferriday got the limit of white perch in Little Cross Bayou on shiners and Jimmy Tullos of Lake St. John landed the limit of bass at St. John.

Also getting the limit of bass in St. John was Claude Lee of Waterproof. He was fishing with an H&H.

Two Ferriday hunters got the limit of cat squirrels — Austin Miller and Dan Drummond.

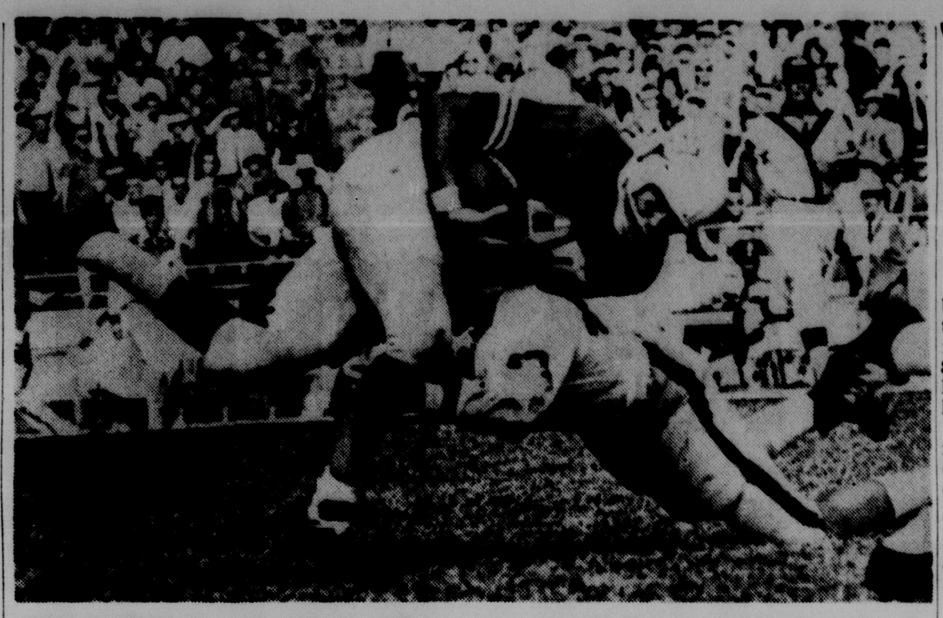

Catching the limit of white perch below Vidalia were Charles Custer, Louis Spencer, Rudy Case, J. Y. White, Al Strickland and Willie Goss, all of Vidalia.

Bill Strickland, Hy Standiford, Bill Berryhill and Arthur Coutrue, all of Ferriday, caught the limit of bass in Lake Concordia.

Around Lake Providence, Mrs. Morris Coleman landed 22 white perch in Old River and Mrs. Sam Foutz caught 16. Henry Turner got the limit of white perch at a barpit below Lake Providence.

Two Twin Cities residents reported bagging deer last week using bow and arrows. J. C. Elliott, 1603 Dawnview, Monroe, killed a 125 - pound deer late Tuesday evening on Chicago Mill land, and L. G. Dawkins, 623 Smith St., West Monroe, bagged a spike buck, which weighed 90 pounds field dressed. The kill was made around 6:30 a.m. Saturday in the D'Arbonne area of Ouachita Parish.

From Holly Ridge, Wayne Yates reported the biggest kill of the season so far — a ten point buck dropped by Wayne with his bow and arrow in Madison Parish.

SECOND PERIOD TD HOLDS

Mustangs Tough, But Fall To Texas Longhorns, 7-0

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)— The University of Texas moved 38 yards to score early in the second period today then scraped out a 7-0 victory over Southern Methodist in a vicious contest of field position.

The Longhorns' big tailback Ernie Koy made the final two yards around the right side to score with four and a half minutes gone in the quarter for the only touchdown of the game.

Texas stuck almost exclusively to the ground with hardnose football preferred by coach Darrell Royal. But a surprisingly staunch Mustang defense held the Longhorns 161 yards rushing and the Steers could only manage one of eight pass attempts for nine yards.

Southern Methodist, on the other hand, went to the air for its main effort. The Mustangs, with quarterback Danny Thomas directing most of the time, completed 13 of 24 passes for a net of 133 yards.

Thomas, playing his first game in several weeks, completed about a dozen more lateral passes, but they went in the statistics as ground yardage. It was this play that accounted for most of SMU's 90 yards rushing.

The strong Texas defense came through with four pass interceptions to dampen the Mustang attack. It was a pass interception by Tommy Nobis on the SMU 38 that led to Texas' only score.

SMU grabbed off one Texas pass, thrown by quarterback Jim Hudson, and nabbed two Longhorn fumbles. Hudson was in for one series of plays for the first time in five weeks after being injured in the game Sept. 26 with Texas Tech.

The Mustangs' best effort of the game was at the start of the fourth period when Thomas' passing carried the Mustangs to the Texas 15. But defense man Knox Nunnally intercepted a Thomas pass on the Texas drive to kill the drive.

Sugar Bowl Given National Clearance

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Civil Rights Law—which most Southern congressmen opposed—has helped clear the way for Louisiana Sugar Bowl to go national.

The annual New Year's Day football classic has been a neighborhood scrap for most of its 30 years. Since 1956, only Dixie teams have played in the New Orleans bowl.

But bowl officials said Wednesday that all top football teams—whether or not they have Negro players—are being considered this year.

Sugar Bowl committee members have already scouted Notre Dame. This weekend, one of the games they watched was Nebraska-Missouri.

Eventually, officials say, the all-athletes decision goes for every sport in its year-end carnival—track, basketball, sailing and tennis.

Why the policy change?

"There's really been no policy change," said Sam Corenswet, veteran bowl committee member. "We've been national before. We were originally organized with the idea of matching two intersectional teams.

"But due to state laws and restrictions over which we had no control," he said, "we just couldn't get teams to come under the conditions that existed."

In the past, Louisiana laws segregating hotels and restaurants created problems for teams with Negro athletes. In addition, there were state laws banning integrated sports and seating.

But federal court decisions struck down the segregated sports and seating laws. This year the Civil Rights Act opened up hotels and restaurants in interstate commerce to all races.

"The law of the land now makes it possible for us to no longer be concerned with restrictions," said the Sugar Bowl president, Theo Maumus.

A glance at the record shows a surprisingly large number of bowl teams from out of the South. Since the first Sugar Bowl game in 1935, 13 of the 30 classics have had non-Southern schools.

But only in 1956 did Negro players compete. Pitt came with fullback Bob Grier. Marquette had a Negro on its basketball team.

Local newsmen say after segregation became a national issue, it became more difficult to bring in a school with integrated athletes. Since 1956, only Southern teams have clashed.

"We had to stop going to teams out of our area," Corenswet said. "They found out what our problems were. So if they couldn't meet them, we just didn't invite them.

"Disappointing? Sure it was disappointing. But we couldn't do anything about it. So we didn't worry about it."

There have been at least two other factors in the national move—the fans and television.

"I believe the fans were tired of seeing the same teams play every year," said Maumus. "They want to see new faces. And the television people have expressed a desire that we would get teams that are national in scope."

The go-national decision is likely to fatten the bowl's pocketbook.

It follows that the bigger the game, the wider the television audience. The bigger the audience, the more the network can bill the sponsor who picks up the tab. The more the sponsor pays, the more the bowl can ask from the network.

Last year, each team got around $175,000, Maumus said. This year, he said, bowl officials are talking about $200,000.

Tulane and Temple, who played in the first Sugar Bowl, each took home checks of $27,500.

Enterprise Wins

WESTON (Special) — Enterprise and Dodson scored victories over Weston's teams to capture final rounds in the Weston Invitational Tournament here Saturday.

Enterprise's girls won, 56-42, while Dodson's boys took a 56-54 squeaker.

WIN 21-8

Georgia Tech Tears Blue Devils' Defense

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Halfback Terry Haddock scored two touchdowns as Georgia Tech ripped Duke's defenses for a 21-8 football victory Saturday to keep Tech unbeaten and enhance its bowl bid chances.

Orange Bowl and Sugar Bowl representatives were among the crowd of 45,000 who watched eighth-ranked Georgia Tech play near flawless ball and capitalize on Duke errors in winning its seventh victory. It was Duke's first loss after four victories and a tie.

Duke, which drove to Georgia Tech's 27, 23 and 27 in the first half, finally scored in the last quarter when the Blue Devils marched 99½ yards for a touchdown. Quarterback Scotty Glacken hit end Chuck Drulis with an eight-yard pass for the score.

Georgia Tech went 51 yards for a touchdown early in the first period after recovering a fumble by Duke's Mike Curtis. Haddock went over from the four.

Tech made it 14-0 in the second period when Haddock raced over from the Duke three to end a 75-yard drive. Halfback John Gresham sparked the march with runs of 35 and 17 yards.

Haddock took the second half kickoff and ran 55 yards to Duke's 34. Seven plays later fullback Jeff Davis went over from the one.

After Duke rolled to Tech's 27 in the first period, Mark Caldwell attempted a 44-yard field goal which was partially blocked.

Tech's Tom Jackson intercepted a Glacken pass in the third quarter and ran from his 20 to the Duke 47. From there the Georgians moved to Duke's one, where the Blue Devils held and took over one-half yard from their goal. Then Duke moved the length of the field for its only touchdown.

In the second period Duke drove from its 38 to Tech's 27. On the next play Glacken passed to halfback Sonny Odom on the 14, but the Blue Devils were penalized 15 yards for holding. Tech's Bill Curry intercepted a Glacken pass to stop the threat.

Mr. Rich gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's gown of moon glow satin was fashioned with sweetheart neckline, long sleeves tapering to points over the hands and a bell-shaped skirt featuring scissor pleats. At opposite ends of the table were the tiered wedding cake crested with yellow roses and the crystal bowl of yellow punch.

A graduate of Bastrop high school the bridegroom served four years in the navy and is now employed in Ferriday where the couple will reside.

Anteater Bags In Forecast

Next year turn up your nose at this year's status symbol, the honest to goodness alligator leather handbag. Then the status to have at hand will be an anteater or pangolin bag.

The skins come from the Far East, are tanned in France, and are so rare that the bags will sell for upwards of $500.

Miss Dale Guilkey Weds Jim N. Dimos Saturday

Miss Dale Guilkey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Guilkey, 1712 Lexington, became the bride of Jim N. Dimos, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Dimos, 410 Erin, Saturday, October 31, in Grace Episcopal Church.

White chrysanthemums in brass altar vases interspersed with white candles on the altar formed a setting for the exchange of vows.

The Rev. W. Bradley Trimble performed the double ring ceremony at 10 a.m. in the presence of family members and close friends of the bride and groom. Craig Chotard, organist, played traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a French blue sheath dress, styled with basque bodice, high neckline and three - quarter sleeves, complemented by a single strand of pearls, with matching slippers and white kid gloves. Her hat was a veiled creation of white velvet bows and white mink tails and she carried a bouquet of small white bride's roses.

Miss Cindy Guilkey served as maid of honor and only attendant for her sister. Mr. Dimos attended his son as best man.

Vary Hosiery During Travel

The growing diversity in hosiery has made possible a travel wardrobe of stockings designed for specific needs.

Sitting long hours while on the way? Wear panty stockings that need no girdle to hold them up.

Sightseeing from dawn to dusk? Support stockings are the thing to keep legs from getting fatigued.

For under pants there are now calf-high stockings. And for thong sandals, thong stockings protect the feet from dust and heat. For small packing space, tuck in three pairs of the new stretch stockings that are so small off the leg, fit so well when on. These are good for evening with those sheer toes and heels.

Full Length Evening Coat Adds Opulence

The full length evening gown takes on additional opulence, this season, by adding its own long coat to the look of great splendor. Sometimes the coat matches the dress or, in less-rare - than - heretofore instances is a floor length wrap of unbelievably rich fur.

In either case, somehow, golden settings for your jewels look newer and more precious. If the gown is on the understated side, delicate rhinestones, set in golden threads are the perfect finishing touch. If the gown is highly beaded or of an extremely rich fabric, glorious rhinestone earrings, especially long, dangly ones with much movement and an exquisite rhinestone bracelet or two, might well be your choice of complementing jewels.

Uncluttered Elegance Sets Theme For Autumn

Classic designs call for one jewelry accent to create the distinction of simplicity — the Fall '64 look that is uncluttered, poised, lady-like. There is a look of completeness prevailing: emphasis is on ensembles . . . coats, suits and dresses of matching fabrics that create harmony in color and texture. There are as many subtle variations of this theme as there are designers and fashion leaders.

American designers team silky blouses with mohair suits lined with the same fabric; two-piece dresses match wool coats which reverse to show fur. Chanel, of Paris, outlines her popular cardigan jacket with braiding, even more important now than ever. She leads the eye to the domed diamond-strewn ring by cuffing sleeves with jeweled buttons. Long gold link - chains drape gently as necklace fill-ins; bold pins define real pockets which Chanel designs for functional purposes.

Entering the suit scene are "swinging" skirts, some with unconfined jackets, some with decorous, conservative jackets, some pared at the waist with a satin bow nestled at the center neck closing; side - buttoned jackets are belted lightly at hipline; peplum jackets rise to rounded collars, perfect foil for the antique look of golden bar-pins with star-set brilliants, fashion now in the ascendant. Cape-suits shape up in bulky tweeds and handsome town suits are lean with wrist-long jackets.

Restaurant wools, a new variety of dinner-dress, are of soft wool crepe. Lifted waistlines allow for an impressive pin to mark the rising bodice; the kimona top shows its bias cut with pins in pairs placed high on the shoulders. Plunging "V" necks in straight and narrow evening wools call for long-line jewelry: a matinee-length necklace or single diamond drop pendant on a delicate chain.

The slick coat-dress is precise and narrow-shouldered. Six or eight buttons evenly spaced down the front eliminate the need for jewelry on the dress. Long sleeves focus attention on the jeweled finger: a bold circlet encrusted with coral contrasted with diamonds and turquoise.

Skinny tunic dresses are split in two — black on white or white on black — wrapped with a sash at the waist. One or two jeweled clips spark the sash. Low blousons, reminiscent of the Thirties, hold a pin-accent at the border above a pleated "living" skirt.

Long-torso dresses with partial back-belts and dress-up necklines show a trend to smoother fabrics. Roll-away turtlenecks yield to a classic pin frosted with diamonds and creamy pearls; wide cowl necklines can be drawn closer to form a ruffle.

Evening suits, the newest way to dress after dark, are of ribbed wool or soft wool crepe — all in black. Paris shows a blazing platinum - diamond pin worn high at the center neckline of a white moire blouse teamed with an evening suit. The dinner costume of rich brown velvet is easy and elegant. It comes in three parts: a column-slim skirt topped with a shell blouse and a fitted, long-sleeved jacket. The classic long black wool dinner sheath is cut straight and narrow, nipped at the waist with a cognac satin sash.

A matching long evening coat with cognac satin lining completes the ensemble.

An early December wedding is planned in the home of the bride's parents.

Miss Oetgen, who is a student at West Monroe High School is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Womack of West Monroe and Mrs. Alma Herschbarger of Champaign Illinois.

Grandparents of the prospective bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. James A. Nelson and Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Haynes Sr., all of West Monroe. He was graduated from West Monroe high school and is now with the U. Muted Shades Suited To French Provincial

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: We are newlyweds and just finishing our living room. It is a small one with a single window. Walls are off-white, furniture is white and gold French Provincial. Sectional sofa is a deep lavender. Please suggest color for rug, chair, draperies and accessories?

A: A muted gold or curry would be suitable for the rug and also for a chair. Draperies could be in off - white or in an off - white ground print with lavender, spring green and muted gold. Pillows on sofa could be in the print or embroidered in designs using these colors. Small accessories could be spring green and lamps in off-white.

Q: Bedroom has bamboo-colored walls, furniture is teak. A single window is by the bed and the adjacent wall has a double window. Over the bed is a five - foot - wide painting on burlap in white, green, blue, gold, orange and bamboo. Would white draperies with a gold scroll motif be suitable? Also, a gold quilt, moss green rug and chair in a green print?

A: Instead of your plan, what do you think of this? Have bamboo color for over draperies, quilt and dust ruffles. For the chair and half curtains, a small scale bamboo ground print with sky blue, moss green and touch of orange. Have moss green rug.

Q: I'd like to redo my very small bathroom. Tile around tub is pink with dark gray border. Equipment is green. What color for walls, woodwork and baseboard heaters?

A: It is best to confine colors to those already in the room. Paint walls and woodwork, heater too, in pale pink. Have green for rug and towels in a bright, clear, pale pink. Or, in summer have them in a green and white print. Curtains should be pink or be in a small scale design in pale pink and green.

Q: For our living room, I have white draperies with a gold carpet. I plan to have white draperies with a gold figure, walls are off - white. I must keep two matching chairs that are covered in a light cocoa color. Sofa is turquoise but I'd like to change this to a gold color. A wing chair needs recovering. What color should this be?

A: The wing chair could be in a lime green and pick up this color for small accessories but keep the lamps in an off-white. Yes, change sofa to gold.

Stylish Bangs Should Be Kept Sparkling Clean

This season, almost every fashionable coiffure is elegantly styled by either brushing hair across the forehead in intricate ways, tapering it out onto tinted cheeks or combing long bangs down to the eyebrows or even below.

How to keep the hair sparkling clean and free from make-up from shampoo too shampoo is the problem of many women. First, when you remove your make-up, loosely fasten this part of your hair up and away from your face with hair clips. After the cleansing is complete, wipe away all stray powder or cream from the hairline roots with cotton saturated in a skin freshener.

Never apply make-up with these sweeps of hair around your face. Fasten them away from the area as you did for cleaning. Every three or four days, shampoo your bangs and cheek curls. Gently hold your coiffure away from these whisps of hair with a bandeau. Apply a small amount of shampoo to them with your fingertips, then wash and rinse with running water. Set hair, allow to dry and comb into place.

HEIRLOOM KICK

Are any of the family jewels lying idle in the dresser drawers? Get them out, shine them up, and wear them. Jewelry styles are on an heirloom kick, right down to the pendant watches of Grandma's day. Also as part of the return to nostalgia are cameo rings.

Jewelry Should Be Highlight Of Any Costume

After the casual days of summer, welcome Fall with its dress - up quality, its holiday airs!

Jewelry can set the tone of any ensemble. Says a stylist for Marchal Jewelers, "The jewelry you wear . . . even changes you."

Jewelry should be the highlight of any costume. Use the skill of decorator to decorate yourself. You may want to add one piece in a sharply contrasting design or color to bring a room to life. Do the same with jewelry, for yourself.

Fashion authorities suggest these rules: with a simple dress, wear a rope of beads (coral and jade are high in favor), dangling earrings, or a large bracelet or ring. As an alternate, wear an elaborate brooch or pendant. (The antique, "heirloom" look is much in vogue for Fall '64.)

If your dress is feminine, with softer lines, your jewelry might be a foil: as severe as possible — a pair of simple gold earrings, gold bangle bracelet, an interesting, simple pin . . or a strand of pearls.

Caution . . .not all of those at one wearing! Better too few than too many. When in doubt — don't!

If you want to emulate the fashion leaders renowned for their taste, irrespective of income, try for really good jewelry — a single diamond pendant, for instance, will give you more "mileage" during a lifetime than any dozen other pieces of lesser quality.

Two pieces of jewelry are always in good taste, with any outfit: the wedding band, and the individually-chosen charm bracelet that is almost a living part of your life.

SAME DECOR?

In the how's that again department — California designer Don Loper says there really is no difference between designing a dress for a woman and decorating a ballroom. "The ballroom is bigger that's all." he says. "The purpose of both is to make everyone look attractive."

Leather Goes Everywhere

Makers of shoes may be having their troubles with those man-made leathers, but leather garments more than take up the slack. Leather goes everywhere now, even to dinner and dancing at the discotheque.

Dinner suits appear in suede with scalloped-edge jacket in satin to match a satin blouse. For dancing, have a little slip-dress, shaped and sexy; in shiny black cobra, to be worn, of course, with black lacy silk stockings.

For resort travel, the leather coat now becomes an all-weather costume, and in vivid colors. Have the dress in white kid bodice and black and white striped kid skirt, with hip-belt, beneath a carnation color suede coat, worn casually open.

Leather hats continue to be classic with suits

Curly, Brushed, Crimped Defines Fall Fabrics

Femininity is the spirit for fall. The fall fabric forecast is warm, sunny and soft.

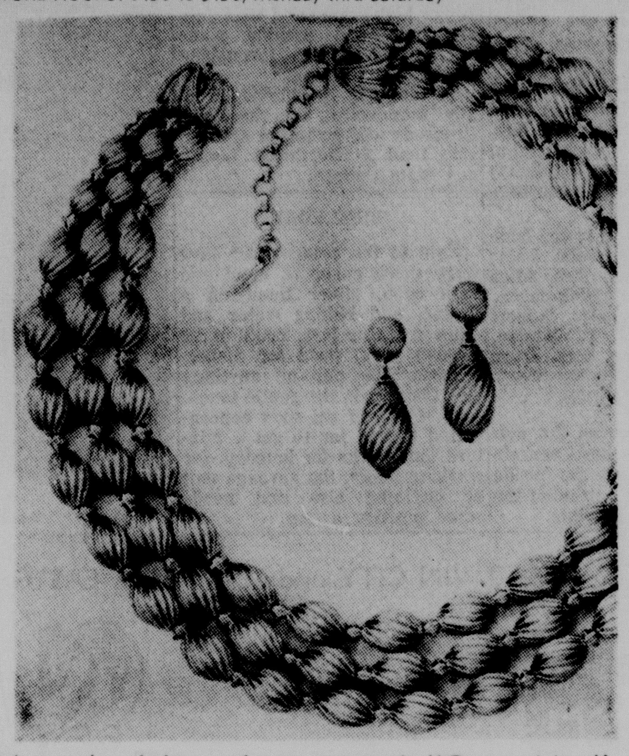

Texture gives coatings and suitings this softness. Popular surfaces will be curled, brushed, crimped, thick-yarned. Chenille makes a comeback whether it be the pipe-cleaner yarns mixed with mohair or used to re-embroider lace. The sculptured look is new and important. Flat surfaced wools are woven in scooped - out patterns, as tear drops, chevrons, and jacquards.

Some fabrics get their sculptured look by surface embossing. Be certain to get proper care instructions for these, because some embossed designs may be removed by the small amount of steam required to take out wrinkles.

Matelasse', cloques and ottomans also fit into the new sculptured look. Mohair runs the gamut from lacy and lightweight handwoven fabrics to heavy-weight fabrics made by combining alpaca, chenille, or synthetic yarns.

Should you have a question in your mind about the care to give your new fall wardrobe, the National Institute of Drycleaning suggests that you call your professional cleaner. Call him before you purchase an item that is not labeled as to the method of care.

Poor Posture Can Result In Eyestrain

By MARGERY McELHENY
United Press International

CHICAGO (UPI) — Muscle fatigue and eye strain go hand-in - hand with poor posture.

The student who writes with his head resting on his arm, or reads sprawled out on a sofa with his face buried in the page, is often reading through his own shadow on the printed page.

Some schools use large posters showing the right and wrong way to read, in hopes of instilling proper habits at an early age.

The experts agree that poor posture not only punishes eyes with strain and tension, but muscle fatigue adds to a shorter interest span, and reduces the ability to concentrate.

Doctors and educators insist on a few "musts" for good study habits, including:

—The need for good light on the page, either daylight or adequate artificial light for writing and reading. Light should be over the shoulder and high enough to prevent glare on the page.

—A 75-watt bulb for lamps, or a 150-watt frosted bulb with a drum shade that provides both direct light downward on the print and also upward diffused general lighting.

—A window shades to control glare from bright sunshine.

—A place away from television, radio and family distractions. A desk in a quiet room is ideal, providing it has good light. An average distance between eyes and printed page or notebook is about 14-18 inches.

In other words, good posture plus good lighting in a quiet spot adds up to a simple formula.

A few guides also help to prevent "tired eyes."

—A break of a few moments away from the printed page, with eyes looking far away at a distant view of grass or trees or traffic will rest the eyes temporarily.

—If light is poor, change the bulb to a 75-watt or a 150-watt frosted bulb.

—If a student has eye fatigue use a few drops of eye lotion for quick relief.

—It is a good idea to walk around the room to stretch larger muscles, or go to the refrigerator for a cool drink or a piece of fruit.

Best of all, good posture helps to build better study habits. Good lighting without glare can promote longer interest span. Taking a break to relieve the monotony also helps add up to a more productive study period.

Lighting should be planned to serve three different needs, including general lighting, area lighting and close work.

A light fixture located in the center of the ceiling is inadequate for homework. Supplemental desk lamps are needed to cast light on the page without casting glare to eyes.

IN UNDERSTATED ELEGANCE is this Ottoman corduroy dress by B. H. Wragge, featuring the popular blouson top with shirt spread collar, elbow sleeves and toggle buttons. Its colors are silver birch or pink elephant.

Make Holiday Goodies Ahead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Make pickle patties ahead of time and store them in the freezer to use for holiday parties.

Combine 2 (2¼-ounce) cans of deviled ham with 1-3 cup of sweet pickle relish, drained, 1 tablespoon of prepared horseradish, 1 teaspoon of paprika, 2 tablespoons of all-purpose flour and 1 egg, slightly beaten.

Mix well, and shape level teaspoonfuls into patties. Coat with bread crumbs, using ½ cup total. Fry in hot shallow fat until browned on both sides. Drain on absorbent paper, wrap in moisture-vapor proof paper and seal. To serve, thaw at room temperature ½ hour or bake 15 minutes in a 400-degree oven. Makes 14 patties.

BIG NEWS among music lovers in the Twin Cities is announcement of the presentation of "Otello" by Shreveport Civic Opera association, which is scheduled for Tuesday, November 17, at the Municipal auditorium. And the reason we are so interested in this production is that our own DAVIS BINGHAM is to sing the role of Montano. Davis, who is associate professor of music at Northeast Louisiana State, is also directing the opera chorus, composed of college music students.

"Otello" is, of course, Shakespeare's tragedy set to music, and marks the Opera association's observance of the Bard's quadricentennial. Leading roles will be sung by baritone CESARE BARDELLI of the Metropolitan, Iago; DIMITER USUNOV and his wife, KATJA GEORGIEV, Otell and Desdemona; STANLEY KOLK, Cassio; MALCOLM SMITH, Lodovico; PERRY PRICE, Roderigo; and NORMA JEAN LOCKE, Emilia.

Several individuals in our area have been invited to serve as members of Shreveport Civic Opera Association's regional board of directors. They are: BELLE OAKLEY, general chairman, assisted by VELMA WILLEY as co-chairman; BLANCHE OLIVER, publicity; MABEL RATLIFF, information chairman, with ROOKH HARRISON, co-chairman; PEARL RHYMES and MERRIMAC MORRIS, Rayville; JENNIE REYNOLDS, Columbia; JOE DAVENPORT, JR., Mer Rouge; and FRED PREAUS, Bastrop.

On Thursday, several members of the association's board of directors were here from Shreveport for the day. Belle Oakley entertained at a morning coffee in their honor, inviting regional board members and other music lovers from the Twin Cities to meet the visitors. Honor guests were ROBERT EWING BROWN, president of the association; CHARLIE NELL RIVES, JULIET WALLACE, DELTON HARRISON JR., and MINNIE COLE FLOURNOY.

Belle used masses of yellow chrysanthemums throughout the house for the party. In the dining room, the table was centered with yellow roses which overflowed from a Waterford and silver container. A tall triangular arrangement of yellow mums stood on the buffet.

Arriving guests were greeted at the entrance by Velma Willey and Pearl Rhymes. EMYLOU BIEDENHARN presided at the coffee service. Others who assisted in the dining room were JANE OLIVER, JERRY OAKLEY, FRANCESCA BIEDENHARN, MARY CUMMINGS, and Mabel Ratliff. About ninety guests called to meet the visitors.

Following the coffee, Mabel was hostess at luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club, also honoring the Shreveport guests. The table on the porch presented a picture in greens, using the green cloth and green goblets. Flowers were pale green Fuji mums, used with green grapes in a silver epergne. Smaller, similar arrangements stood at each end of the table where twelve guests were seated.

Shreveport's Opera association is not organized on a season membership basis. That is, tickets are available for individual performances at the Municipal Auditorium boxoffice. They are priced from one dollar for balcony seats to seven-fifty for the golden circle.

Indian summer is a lovely time for an outdoor party, and just such was planned Tuesday evening by JOAN and MILES SAGER, JERRY and C. D. OAKLEY JR. The two couples entertained at the log cabin and barbecue area at Bernbet Farm out of West Monroe. Oysters on the half shell were served as a first course, followed by barbecued ribs and all the trimmings. About forty-five couples attended the party.

This week your reporter had the opportunity to visit former Monroyans CINDY and BENTON WAKEFIELD JR. and their sons WAKE and WALTON in Munster, Indiana. We had a delightful time, meeting new friends of our hosts and viewing the Wakefields' new home, now under construction.

Even in unfinished state, the house reflects the gracious hospitality for which Cindy was so well known here. She ruefully refers to pitfalls involved in building a Southern - type home in Indiana, and results show her careful planning. One can visualize the Wakefields' lovely antiques and accessories fitting perfectly into the new setting.

Construction is of red Colonial brick, a two story style with center door framed by fanlight and panels of leaded glass. From the entrance hall, doors open into the living room at right, dining room straight ahead, family room to left, and stairs to second story. An unusual and restful shade of green - brown - gold, which might be described as pale bronze, is used throughout the house. Wallpaper in different patterns for various rooms is being custom printed in this color.

In the living room, walls will be panelling, painted the theme color. This is a long room with vaulted ceiling. An open fireplace centers the end wall opposite the entrance. Dining room walls are to be covered with paper in a scroll pattern, tone - on - tone of the bronze. Hardwood floors are used in these two rooms.

Light brown quarry tile covers the floor in the entrance and continues to the left into the family room and kitchen beyond. Grass cloth covers the walls, two of which are devoted to cabinets and bookshelves. Utility areas are in the garage, opening off the kitchen, and upstairs, less nearly complete, four bedrooms and two baths.

The BIG TIMERS Dance Club has scheduled its first dance of the season, a fall formal to be held next Saturday, November 7 at Bayou DeSiard Country Club. Activity will get underway with a cocktail hour from 8 to 9 p.m. Music for dancing will be provided by Tiny Skaggs and the Kings Men from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Here is Andrew Marvell's poem "To His Coy Mistress."

Had we but world enough and time,
This coyness, Lady, were no crime.
We would sit down and think which way
To walk and pass our long love's day.
An hundred years should go to praise
Thine eyes and on thy forehead gaze;
An age at least to every part,
And the last age should show your heart.
For Lady, you deserve this state.
Now would I love at lower rate.
But at my back I always hear
Time's winged chariot hurrying near;
And yonder all before us lie
Deserts of vast eternity.
The grave's a fine and private place,
But none, I think, do there embrace.
Now therefore, while the youthful hue
Sits on thy skin like morning dew,
Now let us sport us while we may,
And now, like amorous birds of prey,
Let us roll all our strength and all
Our sweetness up into on ball,
And tear our pleasures with rough strife
Through the iron gates of life:
Thus, though we cannot make our sun,
Stand still, yet we will make him run.

MISS HELEN HUSTON FOLTZ

New Mexico Girl To Wed James LeRoy Caldwell

Barbecue Protection

Now that many families cook with wood charcoal briquets all year, here are a number of tips for protecting this popular fuel and grill against rain and snow when not in use.

A waterproof covering is one good method.

A pre-fab storage center for the garden or patio can hold all winter barbecuing gear. These units are available in handsome finishes to blend with surroundings.

Should light drizzle or snow threaten your outdoor cooking, place a length of foil over the cooking surface to shed moisture and to retain the cooking heat of the briquets.

Madras Bleeds In Showers Or Sunshine

Fashions of the rain and storms show no sign of slowing down the Madras explosion. Once the uniform of the Ivy League and the Southampton set, Madras is now the fashion of everyone everywhere. The Madras coatdress with the chelsea collar and pussycat bow is demure hence popular. The Madras belted trench coat is practical and has a matching Madras umbrella.

You'll find Madras in the dress departments too. One firm quilts the top of a back wrap shift in Madras and lets the corduroy skirt swing around with an over-sized Madras pocket.

Scarf Provides Head Guard To Protect Hairdo

How to pull the new tight, turtleneck sweaters, high-neck dresses and blouses over your head without ruining your coiffure and smudging your make-up is a wonderful trick you should know and one which fashion models practice dozens of times every day.

All you need is an inexpensive silk scarf at least a yard square. Choose the thin, slick, shiny silk which will allow other materials to slip over it easily and quickly. Before taking a garment off or putting it on, place the center of the scarf at the top of your head and let the four corners fall around your shoulders. Grasp the two corners of the scarf that fall over your back, bring them toward the front of your neck and loosely tie them just under chin. Now, carefully and slowly pull your garment down or up over your head as you dress or undress.

MRS. BOBBY RAY ALLBRITTON

Nuptials Unite Karen McClung, Mr. Allbritton

McClendon Baptist Church was scene of the ceremony Saturday, October 24 which united in marriage Miss Karen Anne McClung and Bobby Ray Allbritton. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jim McClung and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Allbritton, all of West Monroe.

Rev. E. L. Hayes performed the double ring ceremony in a candlelight setting. Baskets of white chrysanthemums were alternated with branched candelabra holding white tapers.

Preceding the exchange of vows candles were lighted by Miss Sandy McClung, sister of the bride and Steve Allbritton, brother of the groom.

The bride's gown featured a bodice of imported French lace, and belled skirt of satin. The scoop neckline was etched with seed pearls matching her headpiece which held her veil. She carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums and small white roses.

Mrs. Nancy Holton served as matron of honor and bridesmaid was Miss Peggy McClung, sister of the bride. They were dressed in blue sheaths with matching accessories and carried bouquets of blue tinted chrysanthemums.

Ronnie Allbritton attended his brother as best man.

A reception was held in the church social room. The couple has established a home in West Monroe.

Cotton Takes On Leather Look Disguise

On the surface it looks and feels like leather. But what is it? It's 100 per cent cotton, coated to look like leather. The material comes from Italy and already is showing in coats, suits and dresses for women and children and in several items for men.

The man - made fabric can be washed, dry - cleaned and ironed. And developers claim it is highly water repellant. The material is called Aerpel, after the Italian words for air and leather, because the fabric "breathes" through millions of tiny pores for extra comfort.

Alice Jean Cooper Bride Of William A. Doyle Jr.

In the presence of the immediate families and close friends Miss Alice Jean Cooper became the bride of William A. Doyle Jr., of Vidalia on Friday, October 23 in the First Methodist Church of Lake Providence. Rev. Ned Stout performed the double ring ceremony at 6 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Cooper of Lake Providence and Mr. Doyle is the son of Mrs. Marguerite Doyle of Vidalia and William A. Doyle Sr., of Dallas, Texas.

A sunburst arrangement of white gladioli, carnations and stock centered the altar and similar arrangements in gold vases were used on either side of the church. Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. W. B. Ragland Jr., aunt of the bride.

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father who gave her in marriage. Her floor length gown of French Chantilly lace and nylon net over satin was styled with fitted bodice and long tapered sleeves. A portrait neckline was edged with pleated tulle folds and scallops of lace and the bouffant skirt was defined with deep lace inserts. Her veil of silk illusion was held in place by a queen's crown of seed pearls and her bouquet was of white orchids and stephanotis atop a white Bible.

Miss Nita Evans of Monroe, served as maid of honor and only attendant for the bride. She wore a floor length gown of pale yellow, fashioned on empire lines and carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations.

Serving as best man was W. J. Erwin Jr. and ushers were Bobby Joe Tullos and Marvin Ragland. George H. Cooper Jr., brother of the bride, acted as ring bearer.

Mrs. Cooper was wearing for her daughter's wedding a seafoam green silk model with mink hat and harmonizing accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a beige lace gown. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cooper entertained at a reception in their home on Lake Street. The bride's table, covered with an imported cutwork cloth, held a central arrangement of white carnations and stock. The tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Marvin Ragland and presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. Bobby Joe Tullos. Mrs. Jeff Hair assisted in the courtesies.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a two piece suit of natural wool with brown accessories and a hat of white mink. Her corsage was the orchid from her bouquet.

Mrs. Doyle was graduated from Lake Providence high school and attended Louisiana Tech at Ruston and Bish Mathis Institute in Monroe. Mr. Doyle attended Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe. The couple will be at home in Natchez.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Sleep Talkers Rarely Reveal Any Secrets

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy, 17 years old. College is a year away, but I am already beginning to worry about something. I talk in my sleep.

For years my brother has been ribbing me about it. I accused him of making up lies to get my goat but he swears he is telling the truth.

According to my brother the talking goes on and on like a soundtrack of a movie. He says I speak distinctly and call people by name. I've said things in my sleep that have made two girls look bad and I'm ashamed of myself because it isn't true.

Do you know any way to cure a sleep - talker? Every morning when I wake up I ask my brother what I said during the night. — 24 HOUR ORATORY

Dear Oratory: Your brother is giving you the business. So long as he can get a rise out of you he'll keep it up.

Stop asking him what you said in your sleep. Chances are you said nothing that made any sense. Most sleep-talkers mumble unintelligible phrases. Occasionally you may utter a word or a sentence, but you can be sure there is no "self-incrimination." (Now go to sleep and keep quiet.)

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing in behalf of my niece. She is 30-years-old — and in a jam. Corrine has been going with a married man, (age 40) whose wife is in the state mental hospital. The man told Corrine and her parents that he can't get a divorce because his wife won't consent to it. He also volunteered this: "It's against the law to divorce a person who is in a mental institution."

Last Sunday I went to see the man's wife in the hospital and she was as gracious and fine a person as I have ever met. She told me her husband had never asked for a divorce and if he wants a divorce he may have one. She said she would not want to be the cause of a child born out of wedlock.

Corrine's mother has dumped this problem into my lap because she is too nervous to deal with it. What should be done about this mess?—SELECT D

Dear Sel: It sounds as if they have the wrong person in the institution. The wife appears to be the most sensible one of the group.

In some states it is not possible to divorce a person who is in a mental institution. See a lawyer and learn what the law is in your state. The man is obliged to pay the medical expenses and support the child — whether he marries Corrine or not.

Dear Ann Landers: I've been going with Don for three years. He is a wonderful young man and I love him very much.

The problem is Don thinks he owns me. He insists on knowing where I go, what I do, who I talk to and what was said. It's a battle every time I want to spend an evening with the girls. Don insists on driving me over and taking me home.

I've tried breaking up with him for as long as one whole week. I can't stand to be away from him and he knows it. This is true love but I wish he wouldn't act like my Lord and Master. I feel like I'm being trailed by the F. B. I. What can I do to build his confidence in me? — BALL 'N CHAIN

Dear Chain: It's not his lack of confidence in you that makes Don behave this way, it's his lack of confidence in himself.

People in love hold each other close only when they set one another free. When Don is sure of HIMSELF he will be relaxed about YOU.

Leach-Murdock Vows Are Read

Clayton Baptist Church was scene of the ceremony October 24 at 6 p.m. which united in marriage Miss Marilyn Murdock and J. Mack Leach. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Hamby of Clayton and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Leach of Florien, La.

Rev. Ellis O. Smith officiated at the ceremony. Miss Barbara Prunty attended the bride as maid of honor and Jimmy Leach of Colvin, served his brother as best man. Pete Hamby, brother of the bride and Mack McIntosh, served as ushers and candlelighters.

A reception followed in Fellowship hall of the church. After a short wedding trip the couple is at home in Clayton.

MISS ELIZABETH ELAINE WHITE

Babin-White Wedding Set

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Elizabeth Elaine White to Lane Robert Babin, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil White of Mayna. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Babin of Jonesville.

The wedding will be solemnized on Thursday, November 26 at 7 p.m. in the Mayna Church of God with Rev. J. R. Tackett officiating. A reception will follow in the recreation center of the church.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Jonesville Block high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe. She is presently employed at the Baptist hospital in Alexandria.

Mr. Babin was graduated from Block high school and recently was discharged from four years service with the U. S. Navy. He is now employed in Alexandria.

Dresses For New Season Are Animated Femininity

Everywhere there is motion in fashion — skirts that swirl, pleats that dance, looking fresh and interesting, especially with an abbreviated jacket — the soft blouson in dresses demonstrating the diminishing waistline.

Entering a favorite bistro in a soft flourish of pleats seems in keeping with your gay mood. For daytime, the new "tummy" banded skirt highlights a cluster of fine pleats to give a moving action.

Fluid skirts cut on the bias have the feminine look of beauty. Eased skirts — low godets and gores bring to mind the buoyant 30's.

Chanel startles the fashion world by introducing the tiered skirt with one of her tailored suits, retaining the mood of the gentlewoman. We see the tiered skirt for Fall in wool, crepe and dressy fabrics, including lace.

Necklines are consistently important. For day-time they are gently set-away and often bowed, framing the face. Turtlenecks in classic and newly widened versions complement the open-faced suit jackets, for casual wear.

For evening, necklines are often decollete, yet with decorum. Some rise high for late-day with a back utterly bare.

The "snooty" litle blacks, an elite group of dinner dresses, move from dining to dancing at your favorite discotheque.

For the fluid dress, soft wool crepes, shadow-checks, pebbly and ribbed surfaces are good.

The news in dresses begins at the neckline, wanders to the waist, swings gracefully at hem, and heralds a delightfully feminine season.

Stepping elegantly into the spotlight is white fur for both late day and evening wear.

White mink and ermine will be seen in softly draped capelets and small stoles.

Styled in fluid wrap-around lines are natural white broadtail lamb jackets with push-up sleeves and a cowl collar that can be worn as a hood for cooler occasions.

White fox, in one or more tiers, in capelets and stole styles, is a perennial favorite.

Pale Colors Continue Dominance In Fashion

So much variety exists in American fashion today that it often seems impossible for women to find any standard by which to know what is or isn't fashion.

But search the world of French, Italian and American design, and you do come up with one: pale color. So great is the fashion dominance of white, cream, oatmeal, all the beiges, that a woman can find herself "in fashion" simply by picking what she usually wears in these colors instead of dark shades.

Notice how often today stores offer basic fashions in black, navy and some shade of beige or white. Choose the pale shade, and the basic becomes a fashion. It's that simple.

Many suits and coat costumes are offered in combinations of cream and camel or gray on gray. Take the first, not the second, to get a quick fashion reputation.

Color, in short, has nothing to do with the silhouette or the details It stands alone, fashion in it's own right. Yet many women still fail to see this, pick their clothes in colors that kill off any fashion point. Instead, they should think of the current standard brocade suit for informal evenings. What has made this classic into a fashion is solely that it's always in white.

Men Against Pants Look For Women

A quick survey taken among some of the world's prominent men reveals that women won't be wearing pants in town if the gentlemen have their way.

Even show businessmen, probably more exposed to fashion extremes than other men, turned thumbs down on the idea with only a few exceptions. They want to be able to identify the girls, say they see enough pants on them at rehearsals and such, where pants are practical dress.

Europeans are surprisingly against them in view of the fact that a Paris designer started the trend.

THE AFRICA-CONSCIOUS Italians are inspired this season by African colors and prints. A new velveteen in black and white pony print, shows the trend, in this jumper by Enzo of Milan, ready-to-wear designer. Cinched with a newly shaped calf belt, it is worn with a turtle-neck sweater.

ITALIAN ready-to-wear suit designers like the longer jacket for fall. Here it is done in water-repellent Dacron-cotton as a rainsuit, by Simamir of Giussano, Milan. Walking jacket is long enough to double as a separate coat, has large but trim patch pockets, newly large club collar, tabbed sleeves and medalion on breast pocket.

Accessories In Closet Now Fashion Symbols

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Fashion today extends beyond clothes themselves to the way they are hung and kept. Clothes closets can be so beautiful that women are delighted to show off a new wardrobe item with the ulterior motive of showing off their closets.

Hangers for example, in crystal, gold or tortoise shell finishes, and paddings of every color in satin, are used to organize clothes. One kind means suits, perhaps the tortoise shell, another in padded color for the dresses, while crystal means evening clothes.

Foam padded hangers covered in jewel-toned velvet are specially designed for fur collared clothes, fur garments and stoles. Knitwear can now be hung on a rack of velvet-covered bars. As for scenting closets, many padded hangers come with fragrances incorporated in them to freshen closets.

The once-plain garment bag has become a kind of glamorous filing system fo rclothes, with such ideas as a combination clothing and shoe bag. Floral patterns have given way to more fashionable gold vinyl, with clear plastic for fronts. Transparent hat boxes have matching gold covers.

A beautiful closet makes lovely clothes that much more of a pleasure. Fashion should go the whole way with particular women.

DINNER SUIT

The dinner suit, this Fall's big fashion, is spectacularly featured in Harper's Bazaar's. The fashion magazine shows it in black velvet with beading, deep velvet combined with satin and black wool with jeweled blousing for sheer sorcery after dark.

Bold Colors, Casual Air Seen In Fashion Trends

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

The Italian fashion scene has recovered to some extent from the defection to Paris a few seasons ago of the top Italian designers. At the couture showings, Valentino, Forquet and Lancetti showed strong collections, especially in coats and suits.

Their silhouette is fitted, varying from all-around fit to more cautious front fit with rounded backs. Shoulder lines are broader, done by rounding the fabric, not padding. There is an edging toward the body look of the Thirties, but those who went further that way, such as De Barentzen and Veneziani, had little success with observers at the Florence showings.

The boldness in Italian design is always in the so-called sportswear field, and top man Emilio Pucci came through as smashingly as always. His theme this time is African, and he used African prints and colors with a sure hand. An African warrior headdress, for example, was adapted for an outfit that combined tights with a batwing chiffon jacket in African print.

Some of his prints have as many as 26 colors, and he uses them in a velveteen jacket, then on white silk for the costume beneath. Pants for the man who launched Capris into fashion are now harem pants, made of yards of silk jersey under pullovers whose African prints can be solidly beaded.

Italian knits are as full of new ideas as ever. Trico has skinny pants plus a white all-pleat knit tunic that has black sleeves and fake black bolero effect. Dresses are knit in bubble stitches that look bulky, yet the dress is slim.

Of greater importance to most women here is Italian ready-to-wear, which is both less expensive and more available. Just before the couture showings, SAMIA, the international clothing and accessories show held in Turin, showed colorful ideas which will shortly be available in many U. S. stores.

Italian designers are bolder about color, for one thing, and their fall series, called "hung colors," includes red fox, leather, wild dove gray, deep heather green and goldy marsh green. Blue, turquoise, flame, gold and a new creamy yellow are also used.

Furs, too, appeared, with pony leading, because of its bold patterning. It was also liked as a print on velveteen, and Enzo of Milan's spotted pony jumper in this fabric seemed to hint at Pucci's African theme even before the couture openings. Another attention - getter at SAMIA was leopard-printed lamb, used for trims and jackets.

Coats are in the trim silhouette which is evidently to be general fashion this fall, but suits were strong for longer jackets. Buyers found here the many walking suit and tunic length jackets that were often only tentatively shown in American fall collections.

This was particularly true in rainwear, a field of design which the Italians have made particularly their free - wheeling own. One of the best is a rainsuit in Dacron-cotton, the jacket really a three-quarter, single-breasted coat. The club collar is a new larger size, and the patch pockets, while large, are rounded and therefore trim.

Art Glass Not Really Antique

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Some of the most popular objects sought by antique collectors are not really antique at all.

Art glass, as it is known, is the fancy colored glass of the '80's, '90's, and early 1900s. It was popular in Victorian homes, likely to be seen on mantel piece or sideboard.

The hitch is, it doesn't meet the 1830 antique date set by the government; it therefore is not classified as antique although many dealers specialize in it.

Production of art glass began when a Chinese vase of the Tang period was copied by two glassworks houses. It was called Peach Blow, a satiny vase that shaded from rose-red to pale yellow over a white lining. One of these vases could cost a small fortune today.

Antique dealers who realize there just aren't enough pre-1830 curios to keep their stocks supplied offer art glass. There is now more of a supply to meet the demand. Some of it is very expensive.

There is amberina glass, running from amber to a deep salmon pink to lemon yellow, two of the more popular shaded glass styles. Other types of art glass include Spangled Glass flecked with color in spatter effect; Agata, a mottled glass; Vasa Murrhina with imbedded variegated colors, and the Nicholas Lutz glass.

Glass in the Spanish lace design — opalescent cranberry or vaseline decorated with white — is high on the list of desirable art glass, along with the cameo vases made in the 1880s.

AIR BOTTLES

Vacuum bottles and picnic containers develop a stale odor when closed and not used. To eliminate it, wash the containers in hot soapy water, then rinse with a solution of soda and warm water. Rinse in clear hot water. Let bottles air dry before closing.

ABSORB ODORS

A half lemon on the shelf of the refrigerator helps absorb odors.

Chemist Predicts Men Will Dye In Privacy

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — If gentlemen really do prefer blondes, then they owe a vote of appreciation to Lawrence Gelb for his generous contribution to the present profusion of platinum misses.

After all, he did pioneer and win the battle of respectability for the bottled blonde. Without his 30 years psychological war of words, the taint of tinted tresses probably might even yet tarnish the reputations of the cosmetically intrepid.

As a young chemist during the years he bottled and sold a French - originated hair formula. But his adversary was existing Victorian prudery which decreed that, "Nice girls don't dye."

Yet, ladies did smear their lips with paint, as they have done for centuries. With that as a wedge, Gelb and his one-man art department campaigned to teach that coloring hair is no different morally. Nor does it fade or rub off, like lipstick.

Since then a lot of other psychological phrases, including plenty of euphemisms for the word dye, have rolled under the printing presses. Appeals to womanly desire for youthfulness, romance and glamor, and asides to husbands to take pride in the swing of things have made their mark.

Today silver-haired Gelb is a millionaire board chairman of the world's largest hair preparation company with a yearly multi-million dollar advertising budget that continued to slug away at feeble resistance put up by mouse - colored females.

Although his young sons Richard and Bruce handled most of the business complexities now the intense, self - effacing one-time chemist keeps a shrewd eye on tomorrow through his huge research laboratories.

Bubbling in vials there are company secrets. Many must be tested for at least three years before they can be placed on the market.

Some are destined to cover the gray-hairs of breadwinners in this youth - conscious business world.

As soon as they can apply a really good product in the privacy of their own bathrooms, men will be big customers, he predicts. Indeed, he plans to smear his own silver-thatched head with such a color treatment some day.

Although the veteran cosmetic chemist has not researched the matter, he is convinced that personalities do match hair types, even though the hair type was not originated by nature.

If the lady is a peppery redhead, a sloe-eyed brunette or a cool, pale blonde at heart, but not on top, she'll probably change her hair to live up to the way she feels she is, says Gelb. Or she'll change her personality to live up to the hair stereotype.

Husbandly influence on hair coloring matters is negligible, the well - traveled man claims.

Washable Wool Pleated Skirts Are Permanent

OSLO (AP) — Woolen skirts with permanent, washable pleats have been introduced on the Norwegian market.

The Norwegian Textile Research Institute solved the problem of creating permanent pleats in pure wool materials. The Norwegian section of the International Wool Secretariat financed the research problem.

The process, termed Perma Pli, has been reserved for the Norwegian marked for one year so that the Perma Pli garments will not be produced in other countries before next year. Some exports to Sweden are expected this fall, however.

Dr. Joel Lindberg, head of the Textile Research Institute, said that the material is pleated in the usual way. Then the pleats are fixed permanently by high temperatures under controlled humidity.

THERE'S AN AIR of spaciousness about the T-shaped design of this house, yet its six-room interior, with an in-door-outdoor living plan, falls into the modest budget category.

HOUSE OF THE WEEK

This Economy House Has Big House Look

By ANDY LANG

Architects often are asked to design four and five - bedroom houses which will fit on narrow lots. But it is suprising to learn that architects also get requests to design a two - bedroom house with a modest living area in terms of square feet — yet having the appearance of a much larger house.

People making such requests have no need for a big house, but nevertheless want a house with an impressive exterior, to enhance the neighborhood and satisfy their own desires for a home with a look of bigness.

SUCH A HOUSE

The latest in the House of the Week series is just such a house. Designed by architect Fenick A. Vogel, it has a modest 1392 square feet of living area, but seems to be much larger because of its T-shape and the placement of the two-car garage. Adding to the impression of size is the wide roof overhang on all four sides and the sweep of the roof itself, giving it a spacious Western look.

All of the things that go to make up a comfortable house are included in Design H-55. The living room is typical. It is dropped two steps from the dining room and has a planter wall divider with cabinets underneath. The cathedral ceiling rises high, and at the far end there is a paneled wall, highlighted by a raised fireplace with brick in the wall section above it. Also, the living room has 100 per cent cross ventilation, the T-design permitting windows at the front and rear.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan H-55.

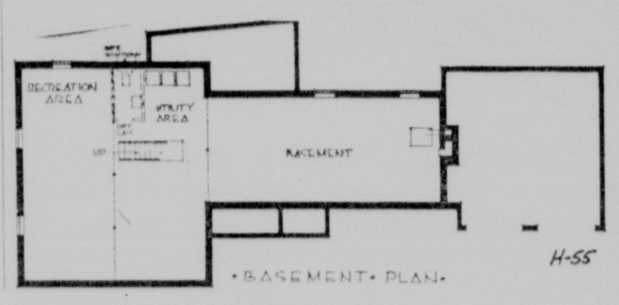

The dining room is set off from the flagstone entry by a curved screen. There is a wall of sliding glass doors leading to the stone terrace beyond, facilitating outdoor dining when desired. Neither the living room nor the dining room need be disturbed by family traffic, since the kitchen and bedroom area can be reached either by way of the front entrance or the door connecting the terrace with the kitchen.

KITCHEN COMPACT

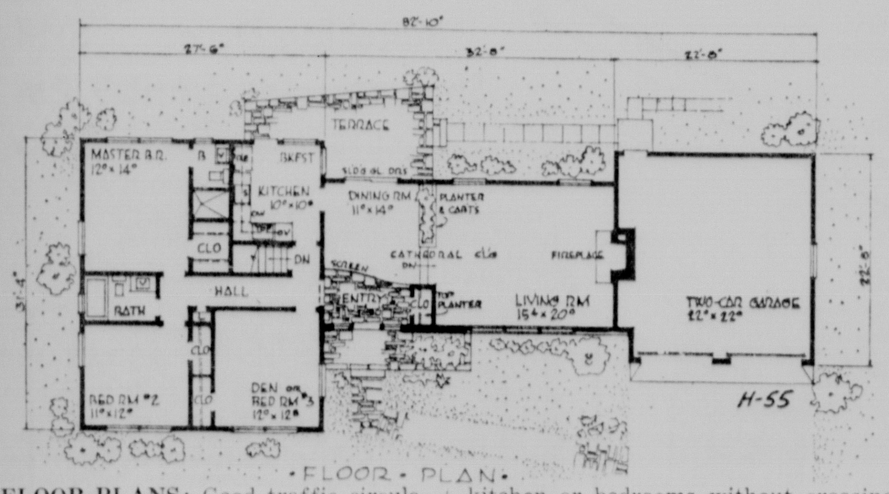

The kitchen is compact, with an L arrangement of counters, cupboards and appliances to save steps. There is a breakfast nook in one corner near windows that look out over the terrace.

Two bathrooms are in the bedroom wing, the one in the master bedroom having a stall shower. This bedroom also has a walkin closet. Both rooms have two exposures. The third room in this area can be used as a den, study or spare room, with its two exposures and large closet.

The two - car garage is oversized and has plenty of space for storage, as has the basement. Depending on the needs and finances of the family, the basement can be completely or partially finished.

•BASEMENT• PLAN•

FLOOR PLANS: Good traffic circulation permits entry into this house from the front or rear and movement to the kitchen or bedrooms without crossing the living-dining area.

TWO STEPS DOWN from the dining room, this fireplaced living room has large glass windows on opposite sides, with a high cathedral ceiling.

Remodeling Of House In Question

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

How can you estimate the cost of remodeling an old house, asks a would-be buyer?

She and her husband have found a wonderful old house, "a terrific buy," so good, in fact, that they wonder whether there is a catch to it. They plan to remodel it, in particular making some rooms larger, but aside from a few needed repairs, "it seems sound as a dollar" to the lady. But her husband casts a wary eye on the whole deal, she says, and she wonders if there could be any hidden problems that would be so expensive to remedy that he would blame her for getting him into the project.

CONSULT EXPERTS

Whenever possible, it is a good idea to consult a few experts. If you are really sold on the house, they can give you the assurance you require if it checks out. If the house isn't right, employing their services will prove to have been a good investment.

Areas in particular that should be checked are:

Roof — A roof in bad shape can run into repair money. Indications of a bad roof are often found by examining the condition of walls and ceilings on upper floors. Further investigation should be made by getting right up on the roof.

Termites — some people sell a house cheap after they discover termites. One place to look for signs is in the cellar. (But it isn't foolproof.) There you may find signs on foundation walls that resemble strips of putty, if termites are present. These may be found too on the outside of the house. It is often hard to detect termites if they enter in wood pilings of the house built into the soil, and that is often the spot that attracts them.

Plumbing and heating systems should be checked carefully, especially if the house is large. Open faucets at each sink, letting them run simultaneously. If water gushes out, plumbing is probably in good condition. If a mere trickle comes out, the pipes probably are corroded.

That's only a preliminary test. If the house passes its tests, pipes should still be more thoroughly checked by an expert.

There are other aspects of the house to investigate — whether there is a septic tank and an efficient heating plant.

FOUNDATION

And make sure there is a foundation. A careful buyer relates that in buying a country house, he just naturally took for granted it had a foundation. He inspected it with a fine tooth comb, bought the house and discovered how stupid he had been. The cost of a foundation did up the price considerably.

It's a good idea too, if the house needs to be remodeled to call in a carpenter for consultation and estimates. Make sure you can remove walls. Some old houses are built in very odd fashion, and it may take an expert to predict where studs and girders may be found.

An easy type of house to remodel is a plank type, built without studs. Walls may be removed, windows and doors carved in them or door openings made wider to suit the fancy of a new owner.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Saluting Juniors

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

"Saluting Our Juniors," is the topic of greatest interest in our October issue of the "Newsletter," the monthly official letter to the Federated Garden Clubs of the L.G.C.F. The program for the Fifth District Garden Center last Wednesday was a timely one since one of our most prominent Louisiana Junior Garden clubs, The Jonesboro-Hodge High School Gardeners, presented it. Miss Elloise Aldy, president, came with the club's sponsor, Miss Valerie Barnum, to set up the lovely display of arrangements made by the club's members.

After talking with Miss Aldy, I learned that there are 20 members, all very active, in this three year old club. The members have participated in quite a number of standard Flower Shows and won many blue ribbons in the Horticulture Division as well as the Design Division. Miss Barnum, home economics teacher at the Jonesboro-Hodge High School, is also a member of the Jonesboro-Hodge Garden Club. The club is very lucky to have Miss Barnum as a sponsor since she is quite talented in the art of arranging, corsage making, and also is interested in growing flowers.

ASSISTING

Mostly she is interested in these young High School Gardeners and with untiring patience is helping them in many ways to become the club that they are today. I do hope this program will inspire other young groups to get started in our Fifth District.

Since Halloween was so close, it was used for a theme in the first design. Coylon Maxwell used sweet gum branches, sprayed black, for the triangle line in a black glass bowl. This line was massed in the lower section of the design with two shades of orange Marigolds. The whole design was placed on a round, black, wooden base which gave the required balance. Anyone who looked at this design would immediately think of the events of Halloween.

Elloise Aldy used unusual materials together which created distinction in her modern design — stressing line. The line for this arrangement was the stalk of the rice paper plant with the larger leaves clipped leaving only the small tip leaves which are a soft grey-green color. One large yellow mum was placed in the focal area with a background made of one large leaf from the rice paper plant.

The container was a small green compote. It is an excellent design for a console table or narrow wall space. For her second design Elloise used all yellow for the monochromatic symmetrical design. The line was established with yellow tips of the viriegated euonymous. Light yellow glads were placed secondarily with the tips of the glads showing gracefully. Golden yellow mums filled in the central section of the design which was made in a creamy yellow ceramic compote.

MODERN MANNER

Kathy Edwards also chose the modern manner for her design. The line, a vertical, was created by plaiting or weaving the yucca spikes together in a very unusual, interesting manner. One bronze (Harvest Giant) mum was placed in the focal area backed by two leaves of the begonia (back sides). The container was a cylinder metal pipe section sprayed bronze and placed on a round cork inside the pipe to hold the plant materials. Very clever idea which caused quite a lot of comment after the show.

The use of all mums was cleverly done in the design of Edna Nolley. A vertical placement of bronze spray type mums with gold centers to form a massed design in a pewter washed copper urn type container proved to be unusually pleasing. To add a finishing touch and balance the design was placed to one side on an irregular shaped wooden (homemade) base. This was an unfinished wood which had been burned with a blow torch to bring out the grain cleverly. This also gave the wood an antique look. This design brought many comments from the lookers at the garden center. So many were inspired to use their mums from the garden alone to accent their beauty just as Edna had done.

INSPIRING

The whole show was an inspiration to all of us. Thanks to these wonderful High School Gardeners from Jonesboro-Hodge High School who proved to us that they could arrange as well as grow. The specimens of their growing ability included roses, lilies (milk and wine) several types of dahlias, and mums from their own gardens. Hope you came by Sears to see these in the Fifth District Garden Center.

Why not plan to sponsor one of these Junior clubs, either in high school or in elementary grades and junior high? Miss Elloise Aldy offers her assistance by her willingness to tell another group how they got started. This would be a wonderful project for our senior garden clubs. The Garden Center offers help toward this type project, also. We need more of these junior groups throughout the state, especially in our own Fifth District.

Wednesday, our program will be brought by the Garden of Eden Garden Club of Bastrop, of which Mrs. Claude Houston is the president.

Dazzling Gold Of Hickories

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

The dazzling gold of the hickories is one of the strongest colors in our autumn woods. The tall shafts of pure gold light up hills and mountains from one end of the south to the other. Yet, these marvelous trees are being left out of plantings around our houses and in our cities because they are not available to us from nurseries.

It seems to be another case of "which comes first, the egg or the chicken?" Nurserymen say they have no call for hickories, and gardeners say they do not ask for them because nurserymen do not have them!

TRANSPLANTING

The long tap roots of hickories make them difficult to transplant after the trees are more than two or three feet tall. The same is true of pecans, however, and we have learned how to transplant them. Actually, pecans are a kind of hickory. One of their Latin names is Hicoria pecan.

Because of their upright growth, long life and durability, hickories make wonderful shade trees. Their autumn color and bumper crops of nuts add to these virtues to make them some of the most desirable of our native trees.

MOST CHARACTERISTIC

In failing to plant hickories, we are neglecting our natural birth-right because these trees comprise one of the most characteristic groups of trees of the North American Continent. Food from hickory nuts constituted a large part of the winter food of the Indians when white men first came here. The Indians pounded the nuts and by several means separated the shells from the meats which they then served as a sort of soup, called by some early writers a "lob-lolly."

If you think hickories are too slow-growing to justify your growing a few from seeds, just plant a few in big pots or gallon cans and see how soon you will have to transplant them. The speed with which the tap root reaches twelve inches in length will astound you: two years. Some kinds get down that far in less time after they sprout, and this is one of the problems of handling them.

Very small hickories can be transplanted from the woods. Never try to dig one that is more than a mere seedling because a few inches of top is likely to have all the roots you can dig. Be sure that the tip of the long root is not damaged in any way. If you can beat the squirrels, of course, you can plant hickory nuts right where you wish to grow a tree. Because of the fact that some nuts will be faulty, it is wise to plant several within a foot of each other. Then, if all come up, the biggest one can be left to grow and the rest removed.

There are a few nut tree nurseries in the North which supply hickories along with walnuts, filberts and other nut trees and bushes. If you wish to receive these catalogues, drop a note to the column in care of this paper.

NEW YORK (UPI) — New products designed with "Safety First" in mind:

A self-adjusting auto seat belt for maximum safety, comfort and convenience. Equipped with a spring-powered, reel-type device, the belt operates on much the same principle as a window shade. In use, it automatically conforms to the wearer, giving a snug fit whatever his size, but allowing temporary loosening for a shift of position — to reach for toll-booth change, for instance. Unfastended, it automatically snaps into a neat roll.

An across-the shoulder auto safety harness, designed for use with existing standard lap-type seat belts and installable in any car using standard anchor locations.

For youngsters, a vest-type auto seat belt that allows movement still affording protection. Installation in rear seat is recommended for maximum safety. Available in two sizes.

Anchor slippery rugs with a liquid rubber coating which, brushed on undersurface of carpet, forms a tough, non-skid film that eliminates the need for tacks, strips, binders or underlays. Coating fuses to bottom of rug, strengthening fibers and preventing fraying.

A flame-safe mattress ticking exposed to a burning cigarette, or even to direct flame, the ticking incorporates a layer of incombustible asbestos material with layers of quilted fabric and cotton batting, treated with fire-retardant resins.

Provide home fire protection with a new alarm system kit for do-it-yourself installation. An open detector circuit in each of several zones in the home is closed by any abnormally rapid rise of temperature or any abnormally high temperature. Closing of the circuit sounds an alarm horn and lights a signal lamp on a central control panel, indicating location of the fire. A prowler button allows manual triggering of the alarm. Accessories include an auxiliary horn, weather-proof bell and a converter for automatic switch-over to battery power.

On The House

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

At least twice a year, in the spring and the fall, the home owner should go on an inspection trip — around the outside of his house.

His purpose? To see what needs to be caulked. If he can find and repair small openings in the house while they are still small, he can prevent major trouble later on.

It isn't enough merely to walk around the house quickly, trying to spot openings from the ground. There are some tiny gaps, especially around windows in an upper story, which can't be seen except while standing on a ladder. Especially look for crevices which have developed between dissimilar materials, which do not contract and expand in the same manner.

Caulking compound can be applied from a tube, with a putty knife or with a professional - type caulking gun. The most popular form of application by the home owner, is with the small caulking gun, which can be purchased at a moderate price and into which tube - like cartidges are inserted. They are easy to use and they do a good job of filling most openings. Pulling the trigger not only pushes the compound out of the cartridge, it exerts enough pressure to force the material below the surface.

PREPARATION

Cracks of various sizes occur in older houses, but sometimes occur even in a house a year or two old because of natural shrinkage. The new compound will not adhere properly if the opening is dirty or damp or loose particles are present. Joints should be cleaned out with a putty knife, chisel or old screwdriver, making certain small bits of old caulking compound are removed. Where the opening is large, use a course hemp or oakum to fill most of the gap, then apply the caulking compound.

White or gray compound generally is used for the sides of houses, black for the roof. The white or gray can be left as is, or painted over if desired. Black must be left the way it comes out of the tube, cartridge or container, since it usually contains a substance that will bleed through paint.

Planting Season

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

November is the month when the planting season really begins. Most shrubs and trees planted in the fall and early winter will become well established before spring growth begins.

Most spring flowering bulbs can be planted in November. Daffodils should be planted early, while tulips and hyacinths should be planted in late November or early December. Be sure tulip bulbs have been refrigerated 45 to 60 days at 35 to 40 degrees F. Plant tulips in a well drained area in full sun or filtered shade. Raise the beds four to five inches above the surrounding soil level. Plant bulbs at the depth of four inches in heavy soils and about five inches in light soils. Mass colors for unity in the landscape.

Rose beds should be prepared in November. Roses require well drained soil with full sun exposure. Elevate bed in areas where surface and internal draingage is not good. Break soil to depth of 12 inches and add peat moss or leaf mold. Coarse builders' sand helps if the soil is heavy clay.

For a green winter lawn plant rye in early November. About five pounds of seed per 1,000 square feet of lawn is adequate. An even distribution of seed is a must for a pleasing appearance.

Seeds to sow in November are sweet pea, candy tuft, sweet alyssum, pinks and sweet William.

Plants which you may set out include stock, calendula, phlox drummond, pansy, snap dragon and shasta daisy.

SEWING

You, Mrs. Young Homemaker, can sew corduroy just as easily as other cotton fabrics if you understand how to handle it. It's quite a popular fabric this season for all ages. It comes in a variety of beautiful colors. Here are some suggestions from our clothing specialist, Fae Roark, which will help you. Remember that corduroy is a pile fabric and the direction of the pile will affect the color. Pile running up gives a richer color; running down, a lighter or duller tone. Select a pattern without intricate design. Wide wale corduroy ribs must be matched, all pattern pieces must be placed with the top in the same direction.

Test machine adjustments for the fabric being certain to have a balanced tension. Heavier fabrics require a lighter (looser) tension and less pressure on the presser foot. Trim and grade seams to eliminate bulk. Press as you sew. A heavy terry towel over your ironing board will prevent flattening of pile as you press.

A THOUGHT

We usually admire the other fellow more after we have tried to do his job.

Here's The Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: The wooden supports of our outside porch appear to be rotting slightly. When we built the porch some years ago, we set the supports on masonry bases 10 inches from the ground as a prevention against termites.

There are no signs of termites, yet the wood is rotting in several places — not very much, but enough to make us worry. I figure that I can patch up the damaged spots, but won't the trouble occur again?

ANSWER: When dry rot attacks wooden supports, it usually means that there is insufficient ventilation under the porch. To provide proper ventilation, cut openings in any enclosed portions of the porch between the ground and the floor and most especially in the sides of the porch steps. First place wooden strips in lattice patterns in the openings, then cover the slats with fine screening. Before patching the supports, be sure they are still in reasonably solid condition. If dry rot has spread too much, the porch will sag and new supports will be needed.

QUESTION: I spilled a can of paint on our concrete basement floor. How can the stain be removed?

ANSWER: It will be harder to remove now than if you had tackled it at once. Use a liquid paint remover, following the directions on the container. It may require two, three or even four applications. When you finally get the stain off, a slight, hardly perceptible discoloration may remain. If so, wipe it vigorously with a cloth saturated with turpentine.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

The theater is a strange phenomenon. It is as old as the primitive rites performed around a ritual fire in a French cave millenniums ago and as new as the first part being played by a starry - eyed actress in an off-Broadway play. It is illusion which sometimes has the power to seem more real than reality.

Words and ideas subtly woven into the fabric of some seemingly innocent bit of play-acting have been used for centuries to soothe, beguile or infiame man as the playwright saw fit. And the most often quoted individual in the English language, however obscure his real identity, was not a writer of learned books of philosophy or a brilliant lawyer or a wise theologian. He was a playwright.

SUPERSTITIONS

Acting, like nearly all professions, has it's own pet superstitions. One of these has caused some puzzled conjecture around Monroe recently. The Olin advertisement in our program silhouettes a running leg, separated into two parts, with the cryptic note, "Break a Leg." Now, it may sound downright unsportsmanlike to wish such a fate on an actor about to go on stage. Yet in reality, that is exactly what he wants to hear. Theater superstition holds it extremely bad luck to send an actor off with a hearty, well-meaning, "good luck." It is tantamount to giving him a wrong cue. But, whisper "break a leg" to him as he stands nervously in the darkened wings and he knows you're hoping he'll knock 'em dead with a performance to rival Richard Burton's "Hamlet."

Chris and Suzy West are in Fayetteville, Ark. this weekend attending the Southwest Theater Conference on the campus of the University of Arkansas. Executive Director Lonny Fraze wasn't able to get away since he is tied up casting "Sunday in New York."

Little Theater directors and assistants from a five state area meet in the STC annually in a three-day workshop and lecture session. They discuss mutual problems of production and financing, administration and public relations. Several experimental plays are performed and movies shown to illustrate better theater techniques. Chris will undoubtedly come back brimming with new ideas for staging our next play.

PANORAMA

As we said in a previous column, this play is a panorama of life in New York. But, ingeniously, the many scenes are played from one set. A shifting of props, and clever lighting do the trick.

This simple back - stage arrangement will be welcome after some of our recent productions where the prop people and stage crew practically needed roller skates to get their work done in the few seconds allotted them between scenes.

We've had many people say that they would like to join a stage crew but felt they didn't have quite enough know - how to produce the professional results our directors require. With a small cast and only one set, this is an ideal time for them to join in on the production of a play. Backstage confusion should be at a minimum and our more experienced members will have time to train the neophytes.

Lonny will need two dressers, two people on props, one man for stage crew and someone on lights. Tom Burton has already agreed to be stage manager.

HAPPY TIME

One of the happiest times for Strauss Playhouse each year is the children's play at Christmas. Although the title of this year's play is still unannounced, it will be produced in the week immediately following Christmas. If you plan to entertain a group of children during the holidays, nothing could be gayer than a theater party, so keep it in mind. We'll have more information soon as to exact dates as well as the title and cast requirements.

Relating to children's theater, we've had an interesting newsletter from the Mississippi Little Theatre Association this past week. In describing the Natchez Little Theater summer youth production of "Quiet Summer," they say, "Tryouts are wild. Teenagers dotted the Governor Holmes mansion like flies on a honey-cake, all clamoring for goodies. The parts were filled, with teenagers left over aplenty for props, promotion, ticket sales, poster painting, and what have you. What they were doing was fun, and it was theatre."

These children return summer after summer, becoming players with authority and polish as they mature. And that is any Little Theater's most valuable asset.

SUSAN HAYWOOD and Bette Davis star in the film "Where Love Has Gone," now showing at the downtown Paramount Theatre. The picture is in color.

GINA LOLLOBRIGIDA and Sean Connery share stellar honors with Ralph Richardson in "Woman of Straw," suspense drama opening Wednesday at the Rialto Theatre in West Monroe. The production in Eastman color is released through United Artists.

Flames Destroy Vidalia Drive-In

VIDALIA (Special) — Firefighting units from Vidalia and Natchez were unable to save the Dixie Queen Drive - In here Saturday morning but were successful in preventing the fire's spreading to the Western Auto store.

The drive - in was gutted. The alarm was turned in shortly after 5 a.m. and the fire was under control by 7 a.m. Clyde M. Furr, owner and operator of the drive -in, declined to make an estimate of the damage.

He said the drive - in was insured. Cause of the fire was undetermined, but according to a fireman, it was believed to have started in the kitchen.

CAMERA ANGLES

Tapes Are Handy In Photo Display

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

There is a new material available for photographers who wish to display photographs. It eliminates holes, hooks or nails on walls, panels or on pictures. It is easy to apply, and can be used and reused indefinitely. It is handy for a photo gallery at home or a public display in a museum, school, church or camera club.

I first became aware of Velcro tapes (that's the new material) more than a year ago as one of the judges in the Kodak National Snapshot Contest in Washington. We sat in front of a large panel covered with a velvet-like material. When a photograph received a judge's approval, the assistant holding the photo merely touched the panel with it — and it remained there! In the discussions which followed, some of the photos were removed and others rearranged. They came off the panel easily or could be put back instantly.

MARVELED

I marveled at this phenomenon and later went up to examine the photos. Each one had a patch of material attached to the rear side. It was dry and stiff to the feel. Yet when it touched the velvet-like panel, they clung together tenaciously. By pulling on one side, they came apart. It was like magic or magnetism.

A few days ago I happened to pass by as my brother, Max Desfor, supervising editor of Wide World Photos, was changing a display of 30 by 40 inch color photos in the AP Building in New York. I discovered he was using the same material in ¾-inch tapes. The previous photos had clung to the wall with these tapes for about seven months. Now they had been peeled away without any damage and the new pictures adhered to the same wall support. This time I investigated further.

The magical "magnetic" material is Velcro tape. Like the positive and negative poles of a magnet, the tape comes in pairs: "hook" and "pile." And, like a single end of a magnet, neither the pile nor the hook tape has any adhering power by itself . . . they work together or not at all.

Each tape is made of nylon. Pile tape (usually the base, wall or panel material) is covered with thousands of tiny, soft but strong loops of nylon. Hook tape (usually attached to the back of photos) is covered with thousands of tiny, stiff little hooks of nylon. When the two tapes come together, the mass of stiff nylon hooks engage the mass of nylon loops and the two become firmly enmeshed. When the two tapes are pulled apart, the nylon hooks at the edges straighten momentarily under pressure and break away from the loop. The hook instantly reforms, ready to grip again if it comes into contact with a loop. The strong nylon loops don't tear or break so they continue to grip and peel apart indefinitely.

SOURCE OF IDEA

It was interesting to learn how the idea of this tape was born. Its inventor, George de Mestral of Switzerland, returned from a hunting trip covered with burrs. Why did they stick to his clothing and his dog? Intrigued, he studied the burrs under a microscope. They had hundreds of tiny hooks that fastened onto his clothing threads and animal hairs. It started him on a relentless eight-year search for a method of duplicating nature. This was followed by many more years of research and development to perfect the precise textile material available today. Because it is jam, snag and rustproof and is durable, washable, lightweight and adjustable, it found many uses in many industries.

PLAGUED NATION

Indians Restless; Hunger Abounds

NEW DELHI (AP) — There were sounds of trouble in the air — distant rumbles and murmurs that made small boys run about excitedly and started police horses prancing sideways.

It was 11 a.m., on March 13, 1964, and 10,000 ragged, hungry-looking villagers were riding into New Delhi on squeaking ox carts or ancient buses that coughed and steamed. Many plodded wearily along on bare feet.

And with them came a new era for India.

For the ragged 10,000, demonstrating under a Socialist canopy of red flags, were driven from the countryside by hunger, anger at rising prices and frustration with their government.

At that moment Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru—with just 75 days to live — must have known that despite his lifetime of toil for "Mother India" an unavoidable part of the legacy he would leave behind would be discontent and turmoil.

UNHAPPY

Thus it has been since that sunny, pleasant day in New Delhi.

India's millions, buffeted by man and nature, are discontented and show it. Food riots and demonstrations have exploded in scores of cities. Thousands have been arrested.

Bright young men, too citified and smooth-talking to fit in with India's peasants, are laboring night and day to exploit that discontent, often in the name of Communism.

Nehru's shy, soft-spoken successor, Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, is on the spot. He must combat the discontent — and the young agitators — or go under.

It won't be easy, for India's problems read like a catalogue of ills for underdeveloped nations.

There are too many people — 465 million — and too little food; not enough factories to meet the consumers' needs, let alone their desires; sickness, illiteracy, social injustice, government red tape—all are present in stunning quantity.

There also are heavy external pressures, primarily from neighboring Communist China, that distract, worry and confuse. When all effort should be directed at providing bread, India must also manufacture bullets.

The question — and this worries many Indians — is whether the nation can wrestle with its ills and, win or lose, maintain its dedication to democracy and the parliamentary form of government.

LEFTISTS

For all around India — in Pakistan, Burma, Indonesia, Viet Nam — are examples of "new" Asian nations that turned to the army or authoritarianism when civil governments failed. Conditions existing in those countries prior to the failures — economic shortcomings, political turmoil, diplomatic problems—now exist in some degree in India.

Leftists, at the moment incapable of taking power, have assumed the role of spoilers. They want to disrupt and confuse in hopes of finding political gold in turmoil.

Rightists work more quietly, hoping to swing the government away from nonalignment abroad and "democratic socialism" at home toward firmer ties with the West and heavier reliance on capitalism.

A battle is under way between these two groups for control of the countryside, and for positions of power within Prime Minister Shastri's government and the ruling Congress party.

TRYING TO keep a balance between right and left political pulls, India's Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri is in constant danger of failing, and falling. Revolts in the ruling Congress Party foretell a power struggle should Shastri be forced out. Many Indians feel that within a few years leadership will be taken over by political unknowns of the young generation. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

ON FELT COMPANY

Miller Says Press Misreported Affair

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. (AP) — William E. Miller reached the end of his campaign Saturday night, declaring that "we have got a real chance to win."

Allegations that he was "a hatchet man" for the Republican team, said the GOP candidate for vice president, were "a product of the press."

And, the New York congressman said, "I think the press was unfair" on the issue of his connections with the Lockport Felt Co.

"Humphrey and Johnson didn't make this allegation (of possible conflict of interest), the press made it," Miller said.

Asked if his over — all press coverage had been fair, Miller replied "part of it." When asked by reporters to be more specific, he replied, "Oh, I guess I would say a lot of it has been fair."

Miller reviewed the campaign in an airborne news conference on his campaign plane, "The Niagaran," on which he traveled nearly 60,000 miles to deliver 155 speeches in 133 cities in 40 states.

He was tired from the long grind and still bothered by a cold as he flew east for final campaign stops in Lancaster and Philadelphia, Pa., before returning Saturday night to Washington.

On the question of future control of the Republican party if its ticket loses on Tuesday, Miller said the pattern of voting in defeat would be a factor in determining whether Sen. Barry Goldwater remained as leader.

"If Goldwater runs a substantially good race it might not indicate any repudiation at all within the party and Goldwater might well be the strong man of the party," he said.

On the other hand, Miller said, a serious defeat for Goldwater while other prominent Republicans did well in their states races might be considered a repudiation of Goldwater by GOP voters.

He said he would have to see the election results before he could make any specific comment.

In response to questions from reporters, Miller had these comments:

The election outcome — "I think we have got a real chance to win. Everybody I talk to says that Johnson is going to win but they are going to vote for Goldwater. I am guessing around 28 states for us."

Local Woman's Article Printed In Publication

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — The October issue of "Louisiana Schools" is featuring two articles relating to the Summer Institute on the Slow Learner sponsored by the Special Education Department at Northwestern State College last summer.

The two articles, entitled "Slow Learners — Exceptional Children" by Hurst M. Hall, of the NSC Special Education Department, and "The School Work Adjustment Program for Slow Learners" by Mrs. Louise Bacle of Monroe, one of the institute graduates, explain the program for slow learners.

The institute this summer provided twenty teachers trained for teaching slow learners on the high school level. These teachers are presently instituting class room programs in their respective parishes.

Peacetime uses of the atom include even the study of antique glass. When a specimen of old glass is harmlessly bombarded by neutrons in a reactor, certain atoms become radioactive. Analysis of the radioisotopes reveals the presence of elements as rare as a few parts per million.

from out of our past . . . SCENES of YESTERYEAR . . . in the Twin Cities

ANYONE RECALL this scene? According to Leonard Lemle, of Monroe, who brought in this picture, this is Company D, First Louisiana Infantry parading along DeSiard Street back in 1916. According to information, this company was made up of men from the immediate vicinity and was sent to the Mexican border during the dispute there shortly before the U.S. became involved in World War I. The Palace is noted in the picture and the Allen Pharmacy. The pharmacy location is now the site of Zales Jewelry Store. According to the information submitted with the picture, the company commander was named Alex Young. Lieutenants were a Mr. Utley and Reilly. Remember if you have any pictures of old Twin Cities scenes bring or mail them in to us along with all the information available.

Robert Kennedy At Crossroads

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert F. Kennedy comes to the crossroads of his career in next Tuesday's election in New York.

By nightfall, he will either be a U.S. senator or a man without a job, after more than 10 years in public life.

He will either be the third member of the Kennedy family to go to the Senate or the first to have failed in the attempt.

He will either have a powerful political base for his future or, for the time being at least, a sharply reduced chance of going anywhere at all, politically.

But if Tuesday is a critical day for Kennedy, it is equally critical for his opponent, Republican Sen. Kenneth B. Keating. Keating is 64 years old and not likely to have another chance to run for the Senate.

In the final hours of the contest, surveys of voter sentiment came up with mixed results.

The New York Daily News straw vote gave Kennedy a long lead. However, pollster Samuel Lubbell reported during the week "an edge of victory for Sen. Kenneth Keating but, with one in every 12 voters undecided, the election still could go either way."

The Daily News said late in the week that Kennedy was running ahead of Keating by 57.4 per cent to 40.3, in tabulations of 24,716 straw votes.

Most surprising was Kennedy's showing in Upstate New York, which is considered predominantly Republican except for the major cities. The Daily News' figures gave Kennedy a percentage there almost as big as the statewide figure. New York City votes heavily Democratic.

"This is much more optimistic than anything I have seen," said a top Kennedy aide. He said his figures show Kennedy ahead by a percentage of 52 to Keating's 48.

Kennedy himself has been saying, "It's going to be very close."

Herbert Brownell, Keating's campaign director, said: "Kennedy may be slightly ahead but Keating is coming up fast. It could very well depend on which organization gets out the bigger vote on Election Day."

At this late stage of a campaign, a reporter frequently can sense the prevailnig atmosphere at a headquarters — but not in this battle.

There is no feeling of overweening confidence, certainly no dank smell of defeat, in either office. The organizations are operating at top speed, evidently believing this race will go right down to the wire.

The rival candidates —

Keating is a onetime Latin teacher, graduate of Harvard Law School and then a lawyer. He has been in Washington 18 years, 12 in the House of Representatives and now in the Senate.

He came into national prominence in the summer of 1962 when he began issuing statements about Soviet missiles and military activity in Cuba and demanded action by the State Department.

Kennedy is 38. He graduated from Harvard and the University of Virginia Law School. He then entered the Department of Justice in the Criminal Division. In 1954 he became chief counsel for the McClellan committee. The committee's investigation of labor-management problems brought Kennedy national attention.

Keating is running on his record. He is generally popular and respected. It seems certain that he will get a "sympathy vote" from the voter who will agree with a woman electronics worker. She said, "Keating has done a good job and I don't like seeing a young whippersnapper come along and try to take it away from him."

Keating declined to support Sen. Barry Goldwater, the GOP candidate for president. "There are fundamental differences of viewpoint," Keating said.

It appears that this will cost him some Republican votes and win over some support from Democrats and independent voters.

Kennedy also will receive a "sympathy vote" as the brother and closest confidante of President John F. Kennedy.

70 Million Americans Might Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 88 million Americans are registered or otherwise qualified to vote in the Nov. 3 general election. More than 70 million of them are expected to exercise that right.

These are the estimates of voting officials and qualified political observers in the 50 states and District of Columbia in response to a nAssociated Press survey.

They estimated 88,697,400 persons are registered or otherwise qualified in states which don't require central registration. That's an increase of 4.1 million over the 1960 figure.

And these experts predicted that 70,856,050 — a record high — will take part in the presidential election. But that figure is only about 2 million more than the number of Americans who actually cast votes in the 1960 election.

A similar pre-election survey in 1960 predicted a turnout of 67.3 million voters. The actual vote was 68,838,979, and a similar error this year would mean a turnout of about 72.3 million.

The total vote in 1960 represented about 63 per cent of the 107 million Americans of voting age reported by the Census Bureau at that time.

The bureau recently said there will be 114.4 million Americans of voting age on Nov. 3, but conceded that many millions would not be otherwise qualified for such reasons as failing to register or failing to meet such state voting requirements as residency or literacy.

A turnout of 70.8 million this year would be slightly less than 62 per cent of the age-qualified population.

Aside from growing population, two factors both stemming from recent amendments to the Constitution, are expected to swell the vote to a record high.

An estimated 175,000 residents of the District of Columbia will take part in a presidential election for the first time.

And persons in Arkansas, Alabama, Mississippi, Texas and Virginia no longer have to pay poll taxes in order to vote in a federal election.

Musical At Tech Slated Nov. 5-6

RUSTON (Special) — Final preparations are being made for "The King and I" musical production at Louisiana Tech at 8 p.m., Nov. 5 and 6, in Howard Auditorium.

James G. Smith, assistant professor of Music, will direct the Rodgers and Hammerstein classic.

Principle roles will be handled by Miss Mary Beth Williams of Alexandria and Melvin Simmons of Shreveport. Featured cast members include Nancy Walker of Minden, James Gill of Baton Rouge, Richard Love and ten-year-old Richard Thompson, both of Ruston.

Tickets, $1.50 for adults and $1 for students, may be purchased at the door. Tech alumni will be admitted free to Friday evening's performance.

Bible Contest Title Shifts To Another Area

For the first time since the International Bible Contest began in 1958, the world championship has passed from Israel's hands. Graham Mitchell, a Seventh Day Adventist from Sydney, Australia, was declared winner of the Third International Bible Contest, held in Jerusalem recently.

Graham, who edged out Israel's Yom-Tov Krasniyansky, the 24-year-old Yeshiva student who was his closest rival, by one point, 45-44 (out of a possible total score of 50), called his victory "unbelievable, more than I ever hope for or dreamed of."

The other two finalists, from among the 20 who entered the quiz, were Miss Irja Immonin of Finland (38½ points) and Hugh Allen Lewis of New Zealand (37 points). The American contestant, Samuel Joshua Singer, was among those eliminated after the second round, having scored 11 points.

The Contest came to an end with the presentation of the winners' awards to the champion and the two runners-up by Israel President Shazar and the playing of the Finnish, Israeli and Australian anthems, followed by thunderous ovations for each of the three winners.

WITH GOSPEL TRANSLATION

Society Breaks Old Precedent

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The American Bible Society broke a 148-year-old precedent recently by publishing a new English translation of the gospel of Mark.

Since it was founded in 1816, the society has sponsored translations of the Bible into more than a thousand foreign languages. But it never undertook an English translation, because it felt that plenty of good ones were already available.

In recent years, however, the society has recognized a need for an English translation suitable for people with a limited vocabulary. It put its linguistic experts to work and the new gospel of Mark is the first fruit of their labor. The other books of the New Testament are now under preparation and will be published later.

INTENDED OVERSEAS

Originally, the society intended to use the new translation overseas, among people who speak English as a second language. But the new version proved to be so readable that it will also be given widespread distribution in this country. Society officials believe it will be very helpful to children, migrant workers, American Indians, and adults of limited literacy.

The new translation sticks to a simple and precise vocabulary. Sentences are short and direct. Most subordinate clauses are eliminated and verbs are usually in the active rather than the passive voice. Obscure and misleading terms are avoided. The type is set in modern paragraph format, with boldface subheads. Quotation marks are used for direct speech.

LIMITATIONS

The Rev. Dr. Eugene A. Nida, the society's secretary for translations, said that the limitations on vocabulary and sentence structure "do not permit poetic expression" and no claim is made that the new version possesses literacy elegance.

"But it is both accurate and enjoyable reading," he said.

A brief sample will indicate how its style compares with the beloved but often baffling Elizabethan English of the King James Version.

The King James records (in the sixth chapter of Mark) that "Jesus said unto them, a prophet is not without honor, but in his own country, and among his own kin, and in his own house."

The new version translates the same passage in these words:

"Jesus said to them: 'A prophet is respected everywhere except in his home town, and by his relatives and family."

The American Bible Society is a non - profit organization supported by 55 denominations. It will sell the new gospel of Mark at 10 cents a copy.

New Survey About Home Mission Task

A new survey of the home missionary task facing The Methodist Church in America reveals some new challenges and re-emphasizes some familiar problems. Produced by the research specialists of the National Division of the Methodist Board of Missions, the survey brings out the following points:

1. Church extension in the years immediately ahead will be one of Methodism's most demanding tasks.

2. The Negro residents of northern cities constitute "one of the greatest mission fields in the world."

ENVIRONMENT

3. A favorable, Protestant environment can no longer be assumed for the suburban church.

4. Suburban churches must increase their help to churches in the inner city, but should also be ready to receive help from inner city churches in a reciprocal ministry.

5. The churches must provide more space in church colleges, more university chaplains and more pre-marital counseling to the rapidly increasing number of young adults.

Those findings and others are contained in "Horizons in Home Missions," a recently - published document produced by the research and survey staff of the National Division of the Board of Missions, which is responsible for the home missions and church extension work of The Methodist Church in the United States. The document surveys the changing American society and recommends areas where Methodism should place emphasis in its home missions program. It discusses the church's task in relation to population increase, population mobility, new trends in the suburbs, current patterns of work and the increasing amount of leisure time.

COMPILERS, WRITERS

The compilers and writers of "Horizons in Home Missions" are the Rev. Dr. Robert L. Wilson, executive secretary of research and survey in the National Division; the Rev. Dr. James H. Davis, director of research and survey, and the Rev. Joseph D. Kipfer, research specialist. All have offices in Philadelphia, Pa. In an introduction to the document, the three authors say:

"To the theologian, the church's mission to the world is an abstract concept to be explored doctrinally and Biblically. To the National Division of the Board of Missions, the church's mission is the day-to-day workings of thousands of local churches and community centers in hundreds of communities in all parts of the country. These churches are involved in the myriad of social changes occuring in the nation, changes which affect church members, constituents and outsiders as well as the social climate in which the churches carry on their ministry."

Youth Revival Is Scheduled For Three Days

A youth revival will open Friday at Southside Baptist Church, 700 South 6th St., Monroe, and continue through Sunday, it was announced by the Rev. L. E. Traxler Sr., pastor.

Services will be held 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and at the regular times of 10:45 a.m. and 6:30 p.m .Sunday, November 8.

Evangelist for the revival will be the Rev. L. E. Traxler Jr., student at Louisiana College, and son of the pastor of the church.

Church music director, Tom Porter, will be in charge of music for the services. On Sunday, November 8, all offices and class teaching posts of the church will be filled by young people.

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: I have just about decided that I am not one of the chosen. For years I have read the Bible and all kinds of religious books, but nothing seems to change my heart. I don't believe there is any hope for me after all this time.

P.S.

ANSWER: No one can be healed by reading a medical book, and there is no magic about reading good religious books, unless the truths therein are appropriated. Even in the Bible there is no magic. "The law", says the Bible, is a schoolmaster to lead us to Christ. In Him there is life, forgiveness, and strength.

Yes, there is hope for you, but not if you place your faith in the wrong thing. Jesus said: "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you." You ARE one of the chosen, if you make a choice to respond to the invitation He has extended to you.

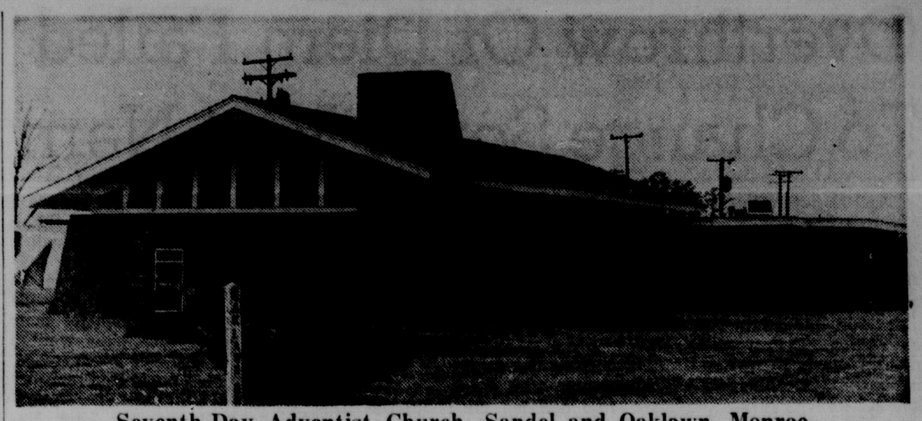

You have read good books; you have read the Bible; now, rest your case on Christ. The books, and especially the Bible, point to Him. He is the One of whom Moses and the prophets wrote. He is the same, yesterday and today and forever. He brought hope to the hopeless centuries ago, and He is doing the same today.

QUESTION: My daughter and I read the Bible together but we often get a different meaning out of the same verses. Shouldn't there be just one clear meaning to each verse?

Mrs. H. L.

ANSWER: I do not believe that it is because the same verse actually has double meaning, but rather because we seldom get the full meaning from any given text. When two people get just part of the meaning of a verse, they would naturally seem to be different, but in reality they compliment each other. The very fact that this is experienced by so many should caution us to prayerfully observe all that God's Word has to say to us and not be content with morsels of truth. The best way to be reasonably sure of the meaning of any Scripture is to compare it with other Scriptures as the Scriptures themselves. Once we understand fully the teaching of the Bible, we find it to be in complete agreement and consistency.

The Holy Spirit inspired men long ago to write this book — He must guide in its interpretation.

MONROE SEVENTH-DAY ADVENTIST

Church Growth Guided By Dedicated Leaders

The Monroe Seventh-day Adventist Church had its beginning in the summer of 1934.

Elder I. C. Pound erected a tent, and gave a series of lectures at the corner of Ouachita and South 3rd streets. As a results of these meetings, 11 persons were baptized.

These formed a nucleus for the work here, and the group continued to grow in membership. Three years later, in 1937, Elder and Mrs. Kelsy were sent to the district. Church officials reported that, "Under their help and guidance, together with the help of the Holy Spirit, the company continued to grow and prosper. On November 26, 1938, the company was organized into a church."

In 1943, the Conference sent Elder G. C. Williamson to the district. As the work advanced, property at the corner of South 2nd and Plum Streets was purchased for a church home.

PROPERTY PURCHASED

In 1945, Elder J. D. Nichols took over the responsibility of guiding the work, and the original church building at the corner of South 2nd and Plum was erected. Two years later, on February 22, 1947, it was dedicated.

During the next 10 years this structure served as church home. The building was sold in 1957 and the church group met for a time at the South Side Methodist Church building in Monroe.

Elder and Mrs. J. S. Jameson came to this district, and in December of that year, ground was purchased on Sandel and Oaklawn in Lakeshore Addition for the erection of a new church home.

The first meeting in the new building was held June 7, 1958. Elder Jameson continued to carry the work here until 1962, at which time he was called to pastor the Hot Springs, Arkansas District. In the same year, Pastor M. H. Rossier and his family came to Monroe to assume duties at the church.

Elder Rossier is married and has two children, Jennifer, 10, who resides at home, and Constance, 9, who is in the Virginia State School for the Deaf in Staunton, Va.

A native of New York, Elder Rossier, 35, studied at Southern Missionary College, Collegedale, Tenn., and at Union College, Lincoln, Neb. He has been in church conference work for six years, and this is his third year of ministerial duties. The Rossiers live at 125 Linden Drive, West Monroe.

In its 29 years of ministry here the church has grown to its present membership of 94.

On the matter of beliefs of Seventh-day Adventists, Elder Rossier gave the following points:

"For the acceptance of Christ's Message for our Day, we as Seveth-day Adventist, believe in the following guiding principles. 'Lift Up a Standard for the People.' Isa. 62:10.

"1. Acceptance of the Lord Jesus Christ as our personal Savior for salvation from sin, and a real change of heart through being born again. (John 1:12, 13; 2 Cor. 5:17)

"2. Compliance with Christ's terms of pardon for all our sins, by repentance and confession of all known sin to God, and making all matters right with our fellow men, as far as is possible. (1 John 1:19; Eze. 33:-15)

"3. Reception of Jesus Christ as our indwelling Savior, by a constant surrender of ourselves to Him, thus permitting Him, through the Holy Spirit, to live in us daily. (Col. 1:27; Gal. 2:20)

"4. Acceptance of Christ's word, the Holy Scriptures, as as our only guide, ever walking according to it's teachings. (2 Tim. 3:16,17; Acts. 20:32)

"5. Living for Christ each day by doing His will in all matters, and by His grace obeying all all His commandments. (Rev. 19;12; Col. 3:17)

DAILY PRAYER

"6. Maintenance of a true spiritual experience by a daily prayer and feeding on Christ's Word, and by endeavoring to win souls to Him. (Job 23:12; Ps. 55:17)

"7. Acceptance of such truths as the personal, visible, literal, imminent return of Christ (Acts 2:9-11) immortality only through Christ (2 Tim. 1:10); the unconscious state of the dead (Eccl. 9:5,6); the destruction of the wicked (Mal. 4:13;; and the other special truths that comprise Christ's special message of Rev. 14: 6-12.

"8. In conformity to Christ, our Saviour, keeping holy the true Lord's day, from Friday at sunset as the same seventh day of the week which He sanctified for men, and observed during His life upon earth at His first advent. (Gen. 2:3; Ex. 20:8-11; Luke 4:16; Mark 2:27, 28; Luke 23:54-56)

"9. Remembering Christ in our money by returning unto Him first the tithe, or one tenth of all our increase (Lev. 27:30; Mal. 3:8-10); and then offerings as we are able, according to His prospering hand. (Deut. 16:-17; Luke 6:38)

"10. Glorifying Christ in our eating and drinking (1 Cor. 10:-39), by using food and drink that will preserve our body in the best condition for Him (Rom. 12:1); by total abstinence from all intoxicating liquors (Prov 23:29-32) Tobacco in all it's forms (Cor. 3:16, 17), swine's flesh (Isa. 66:16, 17) and other unclean food.

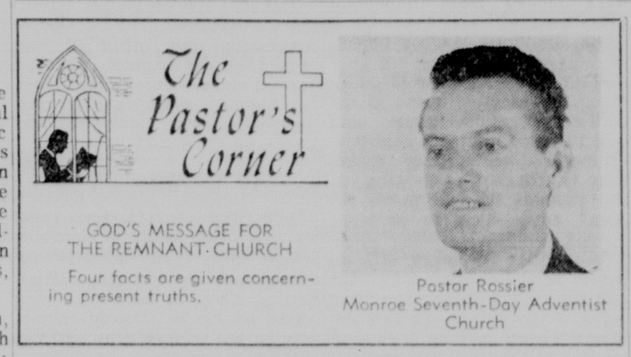

"11. Rightly representing Jesus in our dress, by observing His rule of modesty and simplicity in our attire, and by refraining from the wearing of ornaments as taught in (1 Tim. 2:9, 10 and 1 Peter 3:3,4).

"12. Obeying Christ in the selection of reading materials, conversation, by being separate from the world as He commands (2 Cor. 6:17), and refraining from following the practices of the world, such as dancing, card-playing, and other questionable wordly amusements. (1 John 2:15, James 1:-27; 4:4)

"13. Observing the ordinances of feet-washing preceding the Lord's Supper, as Jesus commands us. (John 13:12-15)

"14. Acceptance of the Spirit of Prophecy as the testimony of Jesus in His remnant church. (Rev. 12:17; 19:10)

"15. Compliance with baptism by immersion, as Jesus was baptized. (Mark 1:9-11; Matt. 28:18-20)

The Bible makes it plain that God has had a church, or a people, from the very beginning. In the Old Testament we read of the church in the wilderness. In the New Testament God speaks often of His church. He has had not only a church through the centuries but a definite message for His church to proclaim during the various periods or generations in the history of the world. Each special message that was proclaimed could well be called "Present truth" for the period in which the message was given. Speaking of present truth, the Apostle Peter says, "Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth."

Four facts are given concerning present truth: (1) "I will not be negligent"; (2) "I will . . . put you always in remembrance"; (3) "Though ye know them"; and (4) "Be established in the present truth." We can know what present truth is. God wills that we shall know. And we can know, for how could we "be established in present truth" unless we know what it is?

Some truths are present truth in every age or generation. These are the truths that might be called faith, conversion, and obedience. Some truths, as mentioned before, are special truths. They are truths for a special time, a definite period, a definite generation, and therefore present truth only during the generation in which they are given. It is important to notice that the acceptance of these special truths by those who lived at the time they were given, meant salvation. Rejection meant the loss of eteranl life. The purpose of every special truth, regardless of when it was given or is given, is to develop in the life the three truths that are present truth in every generation or age; namely, the truths called faith, conversion, and obedience. The proclamation of any truth or message is useless unless faith, conversion, and obedience are revealed in the lives of those who receive the message. Let us notice some of the special messages that were given to the world during special periods.

PRESENT TRUTH IN NOAH'S TIME

The special truth for Noah's time was, "Yet one hundred and twenty years and the Flood will come." As the message that God gave to Noah was preached it had for its purpose the development of faith, conversion, and obedience. This is made plain by the following words: "By faith Noah." Hebrews 22:7. It was a message of faith. Before Noah could preach that message he had to believe it himself. Through his preaching he tried to persuade the people of his time to believe the message God has given him. Lack of faith led to their destruction. Noah's message was a saving message. In Hebrews 22:7 we read that he responded to God's commands "to the saving of his house." His message was given for the purpose of saving those who lived in that generation. Any truth that develops faith, conversion, and obedience is a saving truth. "By faith Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is by faith." Hebrews 22:7. And Peter says, "While the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls were saved by water." 1 Peter 3:20.

Conversion of the heart precedes the saving of the life, or soul. Faith leads to conversion, brings about obedience. Of Noah we read, "Noah did according unto all that the Lord commanded him." Genesis 7:5. That is obedience. It is doing what God commands. Those who were saved in the ark were saved because of their faith, their conversion, and their obedience. These were couched in the truth that Noah gave in his special message, which was present truth only during this age.

PRESENT TRUTH IN JOHN'S TIME

The special truth for John's time, or his generation, was the proclamation of the first advent of Jesus. A study of John's message reveals that it taught faith, conversion, and obedience. He preached faith in the coming Messiah, faith in the establishment of the principles of God's government in the heart. His message called people to conversion. His plea was, "Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." Matthew 3:2. We read that as a result of the preaching of his message "many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God." Luke 1:16. Turning to the Lord means true conversion. John's message brought about not only faith and conversion, but also obedience, which is the natural fruit of faith and conversion. Of the people in his day we read, "Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judaea, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins." Matthew 3:5,6. So again we find clearly that God has a special message for John to preach in his day for those who lived in his generation. His message was present truth for his time. And it, as Noah's message, brought about faith, conversion, and obedience in the life.

WHAT IS PRESENT TRUTH FOR TODAY?

God must have a special truth, or message, for this time as He had for other times. Present truth now is not, "Yet one hundred twenty years, then the earth shall be destroyed by water"; it is not, "Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown"; and it not the first advent of Christ. The present truth for today must be a special truth that develops what all other truths have developed; namely, faith, conversion, and obedience.

Overthrow Of Diem Failed To Change South Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam, (AP) — In the glare of muzzle blasts and rumble of falling masonry, the nine-year dictatorship of Ngo Dinh Diem ended one year ago Sunday.

Crowds danced in the streets of Saigon. Prison gates were thrown open. It was a time of holiday exuberance and soaring hopes.

The physical debris has been cleaned up. Diem's stately white palace, blasted by shells and sacked by mobs, is restored and back in business. The new resident chief of state, Phan Khac Suu, was one of those released from Diem's political prisons last November.

The debris is gone, but the exuberance also is gone. The year following the revolution against Diem has been grim. Uncertainty seems every bit as dangerous as one year ago, and the nation still is tottering on the brink of disaster.

OPTIMISTS

There are optimists.

"You have to remember that this is the first taste of freedom Viet Nam has had," an American diplomat said. "Confusion and argument are normal under the circumstances, and the Viet Cong is not making things any easier. These are growing pains, and there is every reason to hope South Viet Nam will emerge as a stable democracy."

There also are pessimists.

One Vietnamese official said: "The only Vietnamese who have made any real progress during the past year are the Viet Cong. "It may be that South Viet Nam is not doomed, but I have the awful fear that we are entering the terminal phase."

What are the uncertainties?

For one thing, the government is back to just about the point at which it began one year ago — with a provisional charter, a provisional chief of state and little else. No man appears to be a real focus of power or even a universal rallying point. There have been impassioned speeches for unity and concerted effort, but no governing coalition has been successfully organized.

The greatest uncertainty is the war. If American participation were withdrawn, Saigon forces probably would collapse in weeks or days, and in Viet Nam eyes, the intentions of the United States are far from certain.

How much more political upheaval in Saigon will America stand for before reviewing its support?

Does America mean to jump with both feet if necessary, sending in combat units or even waging war against Communist North Viet Nam and China?

At what point will Washington decide something new must be tried, and what will that something new be?

The United States officially and traditionally avoids manipulating internal politics in other nations. But will this pattern have to be changed in Viet Nam to win the war? And if America begins to take an open hand in Vietnamese politics, is there any point in Saigon continuing to try to work out a government of its own?

These questions have been expressed in one form or another by every Vietnamese leader.

Against this background, the attitude of "me first" appears to have superceded considerations of national interest. Scores or hundreds of politicians, each at the head of a faction that may number no more than 100 followers, have operated as "loners." None has money or influence enough to build a real machine.

Even the pillars of the Buddhist hierarchy, united in 1963 for the campaign against Diem, appear a year later to be at odds with one another.

After Diem's collapse, power was in the hands of Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh — the man who had led the coup, the taciturn, strongwilled old resistance fighter.

But Minh declined to rule.

No one felt he had the authority to make important decisions except Minh himself, and Minh declined to make them. The result was chaos and military successes by the Viet Cong.

A 37-year-old major general named Nguyen Khanh moved to change this. Khanh had managed to keep his nose clean in past political upheavals, including an attempted coup against Diem in 1960, but was a virtual unknown until Jan. 30.

He swept into Saigon without firing a shot, but drew the line at overthrowing his old boss, Minh. He tried to bring civilian politicians into high places to avoid the charge of being a military dictator. The lion's share of civilian Cabinet posts went to the once powerful Dai Viet party.

Somehow, the organization never pulled together. The Dai Viet tried to undermine Khanh — he charged later the party actually was plotting a coup. The armed forces were restive. Buddhist leaders began to contend that Khanh was establishing a dictatorship.

Khanh saw a chance to rally popular support in the wave of excitement that followed the first Gulf of Tonkin incident Aug. 2. He launched a massive "march north" propaganda campaign and declared a state of national emergency. He promulgated a new national charter deposing Minh as chief of state and giving himself sweeping emergency powers. Then rioting broke out in Da Nang, Saigon and other cities. Buddhists, students and political groups, probably all infiltrated by Viet Cong agitators, attacked Catholic communities and government officials, and Catholics began retaliatory raids.

Khanh declined to crack down on the rioters, and more than 20 were killed.

Two months ago, Khanh felt he could not quell the rebellion so he announced he was resigning in favor of one of his civilian deputy premiers, Harvard-educated Nguyen Xuan Oanh. Oanh governed for five days, at which point Khanh returned.

He said he would stay in office two more months, during which time a civilian government would be created, to which he would transfer power.

Khanh also abrogated his August charter, putting Minh back as chief of state with the job of organizing the new government.

Buddhist pressure on Khanh continued. In one concession after another, Catholic officers were ousted from important jobs, along with other persons to whom Buddhist leaders objected.

Minh called together 17 politicians representing most of the political pressure groups, and told them to set up a new government. But military resistance to Khanh was growing, on the grounds he had made too many concessions to pressure groups.

A coalition of angry officers led by Brig. Gen. Lam Van Phat and Maj. Gen. Duong Van Duc seized Saigon Sept. 13 and declared Khanh deposed. The coup leaders had not counted on Vietnamese airforce commandant Nguyen Cao Ky opposing them. The coup collapsed in confusion.

But Ky and other young officers who came to be known as the "Young Turks," wanted something in exchange for their loyalty to Khanh. They wanted a tougher, stronger government.

Saigon was paralyzed one day by a general strike. The 17 politicians known as the High National Council issued a charter outlining the forms of the new parliamentary government but without details as to how it should be created.

True to his pledge, Khanh resigned Oct. 24, three days before the deadline. Several hours later, the council named Phan Khac Suu to replace Minh as chief of state.

None of the basic problems was solved, and Viet Nam was still looking for a leader.

The ambitious "pacification plan" drawn up by Khanh and Washington early in his rule had produced little tangible results. The Viet Cong seemed to be gaining ground.

Sunday the nation's new national day is to be celebrated with parties, a parade and speeches. But something seems to be lacking.

THE REALM OF COIN

Coin Collecting Frantic Pursuit

By JOHN BLUCK

An outsider looking at the coin collecting hobby might view it as a leisurely pastime far removed from the fast-paced world of jet planes, atomic power and electric toothbrushes.

Far from it!

Today's coin collector is caught up in one of the most frantic, confusing and controversial pursuits of the decade. He is chided for causing the coin shortage. He is labeled as a speculator and a Johnny-Come-Lately hoarder who doesn't know a rare coin from a burlap bag. He is called a money-mad opportunist who throws his good manners aside to scramble for B(rilliant) U(ncirculated) coins by the roll, bags, barrel and boxcar. He is accused of collecting coins on the basis of microscopic variations in details and not in the traditional way by type, mintmark and date.

Compounding the controversy is the recent introduction of the teletype which makes it possible to buy coins on a bid and offered basis through a "broker" who earns his keep by charging a commission on each purchase or sale.

The old time coin collector (anyone active in the hobby before these revolutionary developments) would hardly recognize the hobby and might find it difficult to identify himself with the new crop of collectors that has come along in the last few years.

It used to be the coin collector was interested almost entirely in obtaining one coin of each date, mintmark or type he needed for his collection. Duplicate coins were for trading to upgrade his collection, not for salting away with the hope that prices would rise and he would net a neat profit when it came time to sell. Collectors were numbered in the thousands, and the old time collector was as interested in learning the history and background of his coins as he was in adding a choice coin to his collection. In short, he was a student of numismatics who was willing to devote much time and effort to learning as much about coins as time and his resources would allow.

There are still a lot of the old time collectors and their kind around, but they are fast becoming a minority. Today's modern collector is likely to own as many uncirculated rolls of recent date coins as his bankroll will permit. He may extend himself financially to buy proof sets or other choice material, hoping to reap a profit when he sells. He may have a bank loan with uncirculated bags or rolls of coins pledged as collateral and the principal used to buy more uncirculated coins.

What brought about this almost overnight revolution in the hobby?

Two main reasons usually are cited. First, the tremendous increase in the number of collectors in a few short years. Second, the constant upward pressure on prices of coins, especially in uncirculated condition, as more and more collectors, dealers and "investors" bid for coins for which the owners may have paid stiff prices and which they are reluctant to sell for less than they paid.

One of the unexpected developments of great interest to collectors has been the high-level attention being given in treasury and government circles to changes in the silver content of our coins. The demand for coins has forced the two mints to work around the clock in a losing battle to provide the coins required for normal business transactions. A further complication is the world shortage of silver for both coinage and industrial uses. Present U.S. supplies of silver are estimated adequate to last only a few years if the silver content of coins remains unchanged.

Today it is not at all uncommon to read in your newspaper proposals to change the silver content of coins. This idea crops up in statements by spokesmen for the treasury and mint, congressional committees and even in advertisements. Coins are constantly being brought to the attention of the public. Here's a quote from a leading copper producer's recent ad in a highly respected and widely circulated business newspaper:

"The coin shortage is real enough, from copper pennies (error; they are cents, not pennies) to silver cartwheels. Reasons? More of everything: people, coin collectors, vending machines, silver speculators, sales taxes, bulging piggy banks and zooming industrial uses.

There's no pat solution. Each coin present a different problem. Take nickels. They're ¼ nickel and ¾ copper. Nickel makes the alloy a silvery white metal. Copper provides strength, toughness and the necessary malleability for coining.

"Silver coins are something else. Dimes, quarter, halves and silver dollars are made of 90 per cent silver and 10 per cent copper. Here copper imparts hardness, strength and workability to the soft silver."

Two years ago no manufacturer in the country would even consider running such an ad. But today it is indicative of how coins, the silver shortage and collectors loom on the contemporary scene. Don't be surprised if there is a change in our coins — and soon! Even now the mint plans to continue the 1964 date on coins to be made next year.

The next change? Your guess is as good as the next one. But one thing is sure: it's an exciting age for the coin collector!

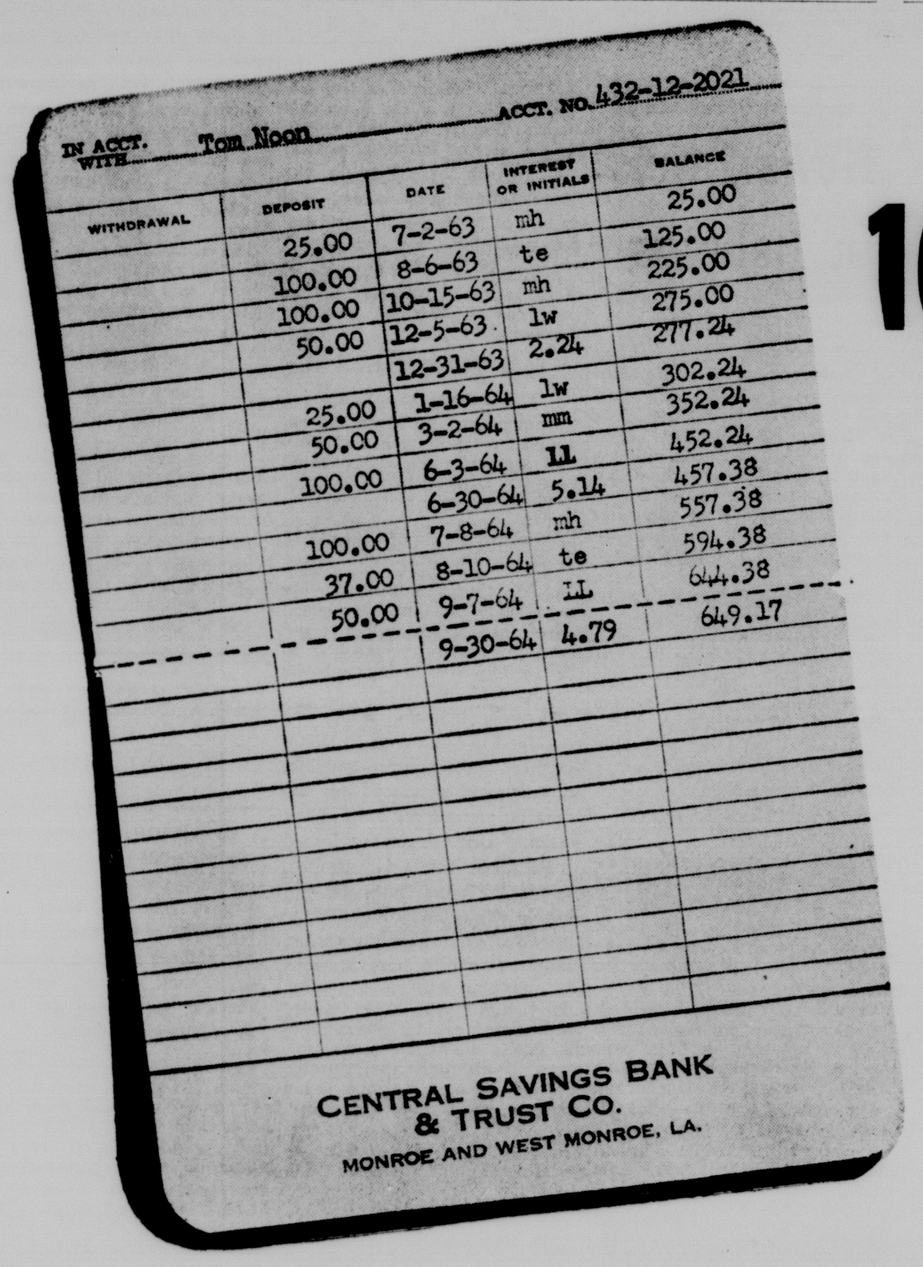

TV Executives Plan To Report Winner Early

NEW YORK (AP) — Television news executives expect to tell the nation the name of the probable presidential winner before 9 p.m., EST, Tuesday—an hour when voters still will be marking ballots in 23 states.

The networks are confident that their multimillion dollar computer systems for projecting the outcome on the basis of returns from carefully chosen precincts will quickly show the winner.

American Broadcasting Co., Columbia Broadcasting System and National Broadcasting Co. planned to report some early returns, and possibly projections, on regular evening news shows. Their election broadcasts will begin at 7 p.m. in elaborately equipped special studios in Manhattan.

For the first time, all three networks, along with the Associated Press and United Press International, will cooperate in gathering returns nationally and the figures will be simultaneously available to all participants.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:

You told us how to heat baby food in an egg poacher, and it was a wonderful suggestion, but let me go you one better . . .

I remove the little pans (which hold the eggs) from the poacher and place the jars of baby food in the circular rings and heat the baby foods in their own individual jars. I put baby's bottle in the extra ring. This way everything is warmed at once.

Helen Finkle

ORANGE ON FIRE

DEAR HELOISE:

Any time we eat an orange in our house I always make my family save the peelings.

We accumulate them and toss them into the fireplace at home or into our campfire when we go on an outing. They are absolutely beautiful, give a nice aroma and pop and sparkle.

Harry Smith

TWIN PIES

DEAR HELOISE:

When two different fruit fillings are desired, put a circle of pastry in a twelve-inch pie pan. Put filling in half of it and fold the other half of the dough over to the outer edge of the pan and crimp the edges together. This will look like a fried pie.

Roll out another circle of pastry, fit it in the same pan with the wide part against the other pie and pour in the filling.

Fold over the top half to the other outer edge of the pan, and seal. Put steam vents in each section, and bake as usual.

I have found this to be a great time saver, especially on a busy day.

Edith Silvagne

* * *

DEAR EDITH:

Your hint is great! Making two different pies with different fillings in one pie pan not only saves time, but also gives your family a choice of desserts.

Heloise

SLICK TRICK

DEAR HELOISE:

Here's an idea that will save the housewife much grief:

I always wet my fingers when handling eggs, as there is a substance on the egg shell that makes the egg slippery when held in the fingers.

By wetting my fingers first, I never drop an egg when putting it in the refrigerator.

Fred Alkire

OILING MOTORS

DEAR HELOISE:

When an oil can will not reach oil cups or openings inside certain machines, such as a motor behind a screen, I force a soda straw onto the spout of the can. This can be bent to any angle for easy oiling of hard-to-get-at places.

Denis Weaver

CASE FOR TEEN-AGERS

DEAR HELOISE:

For my teen-age sons who use lots of hair dressing, I made everyday pillowcases from a dark percale print.

Beats trying to keep the white pillowcases white!

Mrs. J. Muzzy

BUTTON BOX

DEAR HELOISE:

I cut matching buttons from old garments and store them between two strips of cellophane tape. The buttons can be seen at a glance, and individual buttons can be snipped off the strip as needed.

Certainly does keep the sewing basket and button box neat! No need to search for one matching button.

Mrs. Carl Petersen

TERRY CLOTH NAPKINS

DEAR HELOISE:

Have you ever thought of using fingertip terry towels for table napkins? Use them with plastic tablecloths in contrasting or matching colors. These terry cloth napkins eliminate all ironing after laundering. When neatly folded, they are ready for use.

By using individual colors or napkin rings, a personal touch is added to your table setting.

And did you ever think how quickly a spilled glass of milk can be wiped up with these absorbent terry towels so close at hand? And what a boon for patio parties and teen-agers.

June G. Thrash

DEAR HELOISE:

My husband suggested this little hint for women in the kitchen. When your recipe calls for diced bacon, try this:

Place the bacon in the freezer for about an hour before it is needed.

Remove the bacon and cube or dice it according to your recipe. The bacon will dice beautifully, and it will not stick to the knife or lump together.

Mrs. J. F. Murray

* * *

Now, isn't your husband clever to think of this one for the little housewife in the kitchen?

Heloise

PUPPY DOG TALE

DEAR HELOISE:

When our dog has to take pills, I bury one at a time in a small amount of his canned dog food. No fuss and no taxed nerves.

E. M. Beckam

GLASS JACKETS

DEAR HELOISE:

I find terry cloth or knitted glass-jackets very helpful in catching drippings from vinegar and oil bottles. They stretch to fit the bottle and look attractive, as they come in all colors.

I use these jackets on shampoo bottles and even on my hair spray cans. I have to keep my spray on the tub and the can doesn't leave a rust spot.

Olga

SHAMPOO TIME

DEAR HELOISE:

When I wash my hair in the sink or tub, I always place a piece of steel wool over the drain. This catches the hair, preventing a stopped-up drain.

E. M. Beckam
